Senate Passes $923,000,000 Farm Measure

$202,000,000 Added To Budget Total; Morgenthau Warns On Treasury Balance

By John B. Oakes.
Post Staff Writer

The Senate bade at least temporary farewell to economy yesterday in passing a $923,000,000 farm bill that exceeds budget estimates by some $202,000,000.

Facing probable House approval, the Senate action was taken despite a warning from Secretary Morgenthau that the Treasury's balance on June 30 will be "about as low as it can be permitted to go" even without making allowance for the unbudgeted agricultural expenditures.

The bill, which passed the Senate by voice vote, includes $212,000,000 for parity payments and $85,000,000 for surplus food disposal. Both items were written into the measure after it passed the House.

Provides $90,000,000 In Loans

In addition to the $923,000,000 in actual appropriations, the Senate bill makes provision for $90,000,000 in RFC loans for rural electrification and farm tenancy.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who early in the debate had engaged in controversy with Administration leaders over the Treasury's ability to pay the increased appropriations out of its working balance, presented Morgenthau's figures.

In a letter to Byrd, the Secretary declared that on June 30 the Treasury's working balance will be about $1,011,000,000, according to present budget estimates. This sum, he said, represents a reduction of $1,291,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

"In view of the large amount of demand obligations now outstanding which the Treasury may be called upon to meet," wrote the Secretary, "it is felt that the estimated working balance of the Treasury on June 30, 1940, as contemplated by the President's budget, will be about as low as it can be permitted to go."

"Actual Balance" $600,000,000

Senator Byrd added that he was informed by Undersecretary of the Treasury Bell that the billion-dollar balance includes $400,000,000 of deposits from various Government corporations, and that therefore the "actual working balance" will be approximately $600,000,000.

Senator Byrd declared that he had also received a letter from the General Accounting Office estimating the Treasury balance on June 30 at $515,000,000.

In view of the Secretary's statement, it was thought yesterday by many observers that passage of the farm bill in its present form would necessitate new taxes, an increase of the $45,000,000,000 debt limit or a slash in the national defense appropriations now in committee.

It was in an effort to avoid these courses that the House has already effected appropriation bill cuts totaling some $300,000,000, including a small reduction in the $721,000,000 budget estimate for the farm bill.

But Senate insistence on increasing the agricultural appropriation will be difficult for the House to turn down in an election year. The House farm bloc is more than likely to be supported by many big city members who will hope for farm votes when the 1941 WPA bill comes up in the House in a few weeks.

After passing the agriculture measure the Senate arranged to take up the much-delayed reciprocal trade agreements bill Monday.

Wallace Hinted He ShouldQuit, Goss Declares

Says He Expressed Intention to Oppose Jones Farm Bill

Albert S. Goss yesterday told the House Agriculture Committee he resigned as Land Bank Commissioner after it was suggested he "would be happier somewhere else."

The former commissioner said he told Secretary Wallace in December that he expected to testify, if asked, in favor of legislation to create an independent Farm Credit Administration directed by a bipartisan board.

Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), of Texas, interrupted to say, "This may be interesting as gossip, but I'm not sure that it has anything to do with the legislation we are discussing." Representative August Andresen (Republican), of Minnesota, insisted the point was relevant and Goss continued.

The conversation with Wallace occurred, Goss said, shortly after it became clear that the FCA was to be integrated with the Department of Agriculture, a develop-

Wifely Jealousy Wrecking Egypt's Harems

New Orleans, March 22 (AP).—Egyptian harems, background for many a tall tale of love life along the Nile, have been so blighted by feminine jealousy and the high cost of keeping up wives that there is a tendency to abolish polygamy.

That's straight from Abd El Wahab Dawood Bey, retiring Egyptian Ambassador to Japan, a visitor here. He reported that feminine objection to being a second, third, fourth or fifth official wife, with her seniors snooting her, has permanently blighted the harem.

Slender Victory

By John Lloyd
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, March 22.—The new French government of Premier Paul Reynaud wrung an absolute majority of just one vote from the Chamber of Deputies today but decided to stick it out and fight for its life.

For a time it appeared that the seven Radical Socialist ministers, headed by former Premier Edouard Daladier, would desert the regime.

But, after an hour and a half's pow-wow the unwieldy 22-man cabinet agreed unanimously to carry on.

Whether this means a mere momentary arrangement, or that by the time the Chamber reconvenes April 2 Reynaud will try to whip up a larger majority, remains to be seen.

At all events, the inner "war committee" formed by Reynaud to meet several times a week is gathering tomorrow to get on with the premier's promise to push the war.

One Resigns

The government emerged from its first precarious day of existence shy only one man—the navy undersecretary, Jean Le Cour Grandmaison, who resigned under pressure from his Rightist Party.

There are now 12 undersecretaries in the new regime, making a total governmental group of 34.

Reynaud gave several clear-cut pointers in his talk to the Chamber which returned him a majority of one today.

He said he intended to prosecute the war vigorously.

Nevertheless, he intends to follow the policy of his predecessor, Daladier, in doing nothing rash. That is, he, like Daladier, will be "sparing in lives."

Odds Against Him

He will continue a relentless fight against communism. Speaking to the Chamber, he said: "It (the Communist Party) is an organization of treason. It acts against the country. We will crush it."

Today's close vote on the new coalition government showed 268 deputies voting in favor; 156 voting against. But 111 others present refused to vote at all, and had to be considered hostile. Sixteen deputies were away on leave today. Thus Reynaud got a one-vote absolute majority of those present.

World's Largest Airplane

Army Building 70-Ton Bomber With 6,000-Mile Fighting Range

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Army announced yesterday it had under construction the world's largest airplane, a 70-ton bomber capable of flying to Europe and back without a stop carrying a load of bombs.

It announced that two new artillery weapons, similar to those in wide use in the European war, have been adopted as standard equipment.

Built secretly at the Douglas Aircraft Corporation plant at Santa Monica, Calif., the bomber is nearly twice the size of any planes now flying and four times as large as the Army's present day four-engine "flying fortresses." It is now nearly complete and is expected to undertake its first flight tests this summer.

The Army announcement said the plane will be able to carry a "useful load" of bombs or other cargo of about 28 tons, and will have a range of more than 6,000 miles. Its speed was given as over 200 miles per hour, and it was stated that the wing-spread was over 210 feet.

Most observers felt the official figures were decided under-statements. It is believed the plane should make speeds close to 300 miles and will have a range considerably in excess of that stated.

So carefully has the construction of the plane been guarded from outside eyes that only vague reports have come out about it, though it

Washington, Capital of the Nation and capital of world peace, today prepared to celebrate the resurrection of the Prince of Peace, as thousands of visitors converged on the city to join in the religious exercises and holiday festivity.

Officials estimated that the large crowds who filled extra sections of trains, buses and planes arriving in Washington were the vanguard of more than 300,000 persons who will visit the city during the coming three weeks.

A light snow tonight and cold, clear weather tomorrow are expected to greet the Nation's earliest Easter since 1913. With the mercury due to hover between 22 and 45 degrees, Sixteenth street and Massachusetts avenue church-goers are likely to wear winter wraps over their Easter outfits.

At sunrise tomorrow—6:06 a. m.—thousands will participate in resurrection rites in the Arlington National Cemetery amphitheater, at the Masonic Temple in Alexandria, at the Franciscan Monastery, and at other churches in the city.

Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the sunrise ceremony at Arlington Cemetery. The President had planned to observe Easter services with the First Lady at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, but his physician was doubtful last night whether Mr.

Carol Given Nazi 'Guide' To Trade Pact

Negotiator Asks Lower Exchange, Speedier Production

By the United Press

Bucharest, March 22.—Dr. Carl Clodius, ace Nazi economic negotiator, has delivered to the Rumanian government a four-point letter, suggesting it form the basis for important German-Rumanian economic discussions, it was learned tonight in official circles.

It was denied that the letter was a German ultimatum. The letter was described merely as a "guide" for the negotiations, which already are under way.

The ministry of propaganda likewise formally denied that the letter was an ultimatum, either in respect to a change in the Rumanian government or in relation to the economic discussions.

The letter stated that Germany desires:

Lowering the exchange rate between the Rumanian lai and the German mark, long a sore point of discussion between the two countries.

Speeding up oil production and increasing the volume of general trade between Rumania and Germany.

Girl Suicide Leaps 1,000 Feet From Hired Plane

Santa Anita, Calif., March 22 (AP).—Louise Drolet, 24, plunged 1,000 feet to her death from an airplane today, leaving a note saying "It takes courage to die, but it is cowardly to live an empty, ill life."

Pilot Joe Hager said the girl, pale and nervous, purchased a $1 ticket for the fatal ride, explaining she wanted to go aloft to win a $5 bet with a boy friend that she wasn't afraid to fly.

When they neared a 1,000-foot altitude, the woman was about to leap. Hager attempted to seize her, but she tore from his grasp and plunged into space.

The note, found in her motor car, read:

"Forgive me. I just couldn't bear it any longer. It takes courage to die, but it is cowardly to live an empty, ill life."

Investigators for Coroner E. R. Abbey reported relatives of the dead girl, who live at Corona del Mar, Calif., near here, said she suffered a nervous breakdown six years ago. No inquest was ordered.

District Committee Chairmen Support City-Wide Demand

The city-wide demand for the appointment of a bona-fide resident of Washington to succeed George E. Allen as District Commissioner was given the support yesterday of the chairman of the Senate and House District committees.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, upon his return to the Capitol after a brief illness, said he definitely favored the selection of a Washington resident of long standing.

"I have always supported District citizens for District jobs," he said, "and I think this is especially important in the selection of a Commissioner."

No Candidates Indorsed

Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, likewise recommended the appointment of a bona-fide Washingtonian.

Neither "mayor" gave his indorsement to any candidate for the job.

5 D. C. Students Injured as Auto Crashes Into Pole

Five Washington high school students were injured yesterday afternoon, one hospitalized with a broken leg, as the light coach in which they were riding crashed against a telephone pole after rounding a sharp curve on Wheaton-Four Corners road near Wheaton, Md.

Police said the car, which was owned and operated by John D. Cokinas, 19, of 213 H street northeast, was traveling at high speed as it rounded the corner.

The rescue squad of the Silver Spring Fire Department administered first aid and took Augustine Matico, 18, of 338 G street northeast, to Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md., where he was said to have a compound fracture of the right leg.

Cokinas, the driver, and the other three students were taken to the same hospital by Benjamin Castle, of Mount Rainier, Md., and were discharged after treatment for scalp wounds and minor cuts and bruises. They were Phil Murica, 16, of 416 I street northeast; Benny Ciampo, 18, of 706 Third street northeast, and Orlando Caponiti, 17, of 617 Second street northeast.

Rider Bars D. C. Citizens In U. S. Jobs

Maryland, Virginia Residents Likewise Shut Out in Security Agency Supply Bill

A patronage rider that would bar residents of the District, Maryland and Virginia from employment on new noncivil service jobs in a dozen Federal agencies has been attached to the Labor Department-Federal Security Agency supply bill, now in the House, it was disclosed yesterday.

The rider stipulates that new employes may be hired only from States which are now under-quota in the civil service placements. As the District, Maryland and Virginia are all over-quota, the effect of the provision will be to bar residents of this area whenever employes are added.

Congress has long been disgruntled over the fact that the civil service quota law has not been rigidly enforced, with the result that some States have far more than their proportional share of Government jobs and others far less.

Agencies Criticized

The House Appropriations Committee, in reporting the bill, asserted that "in some of the agencies, appropriations for which are carried in this bill, there has been no effort whatever to equitably distribute among residents of the various States positions that are exempt from the operation of the civil service law."

In one unit, the committee added, 45 per cent of the employes, including many attorneys, are residents of only two States, presumably Maryland and Virginia.

The rider, if adopted, is apt to become more effective than the quota law, as it prohibits the agencies from expending funds for the payment of "any employe hereafter appointed if their State of residence is already over-apportioned."

As the bill has not yet been voted upon by the House, it is expected that the rider will come up for discussion next week and may be attacked by members from the over-quota States.

States Beyond Quota

States other than Maryland and Virginia which are over-quota in Federal jobs are New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, West Virginia, Rhode Island, North Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, Utah and Kansas.

Government agencies which would be governed by the rider are the Railroad Retirement Board, National Mediation Board, National Labor Relations Board, Employes Compensation Commission, Labor Department and the Federal Security Agency, which includes the National Youth Administration, Office of Education, Civilian Conservation Corps, Social Security Board, Public Health Service and the American Printing House for the Blind.

House Member Indicted in Sale Of Postal Jobs

Georgian Cited In U. S. Inquiry

REP. B. FRANK WHELCHEL, Rogge Hints Representative's Indictment Won't End Georgia Investigation

Whelchel Accused After Rogge Probes Charges of General Corruption in Georgia

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, March 22.—A Federal grand jury indicted a Congressman today, charging sale of postal jobs, and a prosecutor from Washington mapped inquiry into other reports of political corruption in Georgia.

O. John Rogge, Assistant Attorney General who broke widespread Louisiana scandals, declined to say if Georgia holds the "similar situation" which he had said previously was slated for Federal attention after the Louisiana cleanup.

Instead, he merely announced the indictment of Representative B. Frank Whelchel (Democrat), of the Ninth District, and issued a brief statement saying he would return here "within a few weeks" to inquire into various other matters, apparently including charges of graft and corruption in the State government.

The statement said the prosecutor had gone into "evidence given before the State Economy Committee," a legislative body which made a general investigation of the State government last year and heard many charges of inefficiency and some claims of illegal collusive selling to State agencies.

Daughter Is Ill

[Both Mr. and Mrs. Whelchel were in Gainesville, Ga., last night, having been called there some time ago by the serious illness of their daughter. Mrs. Whelchel has been attending the daughter for two weeks. The Whelchels have been living here at 2929 Connecticut avenue northwest.

[Capitol officials said that the indictment would not affect Whelchel's status as a member of Congress. Only in the case of conviction of a felony would the House have the right to declare a member's seat vacant.—Editor's note.]

Klan Wizard Accused

Rogge said a "large number of complaints have come to me personally" and it was believed that W. L. Miller, ousted State highway chairman, was among those making personal calls Miller, currently engaged in a court fight with Gov. E. D. Rivers over the State road chairmanship, has charged that he was dismissed because he tried to break up collusive practices of an "inner circle" which he said included Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Evans' name also was brought before the economy committee and the erstwhile Klan boss acknowledged that a firm he represented enjoyed a virtual "monopoly" on sales of asphalt for State roads, although he denied there was anything illegal in the business.

Rogge's activities in Louisiana brought a charge by Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, that the Government had interfered with State affairs and Rogge had taken sides in the recent primaries in which a "reform" ticket overturned the Huey Long machine. Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, also criticized Federal criminal investigations in his State.

Indicted with Whelchel, a three-term Representative from a north Georgia mountain area, was H. Grady Jones, Pickens County commissioner. They will be arraigned Monday. Paul Carpenter, counsel for Whelchel, said he would seek transfer of the trial to Gainesville, the Representative's home, in order to get a trial at the April term.

Charges Persecution

Whelchel called the indictments "political persecution" by "publicity-seeking lawyers from Washington," denied any misconduct and said he would seek reelection this year in order to receive vindication.

The principal indictment, involv-

Van Nuys Asks Farley to Quit Party Post

Calls for Resignation Of Committee Head In Fairness to Others

Active supporters of other candidates in the Democratic Presidential race yesterday privately urged that Postmaster General James A. Farley step down as national Democratic chairman, but only one voiced his views in a statement.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, backing the candidacy of Federal Security Administrator McNutt, said that in fairness to other candidates Farley should relinquish his national committee post.

Van Nuys referred to Farley's unconditional bid for the Democratic Presidential nomination in Massachusetts Wednesday and predicted the Postmaster General would not now wish to continue as national committee chairman.

Enlivened interest was evident all along the campaign front as Farley's unqualified entrance into the race spurred competing candidates

788 U. S. Officials Ride Free Of Cost, Tax, Parking Worry

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

All Government officials may not ride in class, but at least 788 of them ride in comfort and free from the parking troubles of the rest of the District's motorists.

A few of the cars are limousines with bullet-proof glass; and the only identifying marks in most cases are special "U. S. Government" license plates issued free of charge by the District Traffic Department.

But with recent demands on Capitol Hill that Federal agencies put their names in conspicuous letters on all "official" autos, the public soon may be able to spot such cars at a glance.

The 788 vehicles, according to Traffic Department records, are pretty well divided among the departments and bureaus. It is usually a division chief or field man who is assigned a special car for his personal use during business hours.

In addition to having little or no parking worries—special spaces are provided at most Government buildings—the official car driver doesn't pay anything for gas, oil or tags. Federal funds pay the running expenses.

Contrary to reports from the House Appropriations Committee Thursday that certain Government officials use their assigned cars for private business and pleasure, a spokesman at the Department of Commerce yesterday said he "doubted seriously" that the practice is widespread.

"Sometimes it is necessary to use these cars after regular hours," he

4 Directors Urge Changes In Labor Board

Smith Committee Publishes Report Criticizing Set-Up

By the Associated Press

Sharp differences within the National Labor Relations Board were reemphasized yesterday after publication of a report by four subordinate board officials saying that the agency's administrative division was "insufficiently organized" and "suffered in effectiveness."

J. Warren Madden, chairman of the board, said the report merely meant that the division needed a larger staff. On the other hand, William M. Leiserson, board member, told a House committee sometime ago that the report "showed plainly" that Nathan Witt, board secretary, "did not have ability or imagination enough to analyze the mass of work that came to the secretary's office, or to organize and manage it on an efficient basis."

The regional directors' recommendations, made last fall after Leiserson had demanded the removal of Witt, were divulged yesterday by the Smith committee, House group investigating the board.

Steps Already Taken

Madden disclosed that the board had taken some steps to overhaul its administrative machinery. In a statement, he said the report was "excellent" on the whole, and that the board had "realized for some time" that Witt's office was understaffed.

Some of the report's recommendations, he said, were incorporated in a reorganization plan drafted by another board committee which included Witt, as well as Assistant Secretary Beatrice M. Stern, General Counsel Charles Fahy and Associate Counsel Thomas I. Emerson.

The regional directors had recommended a series of administrative changes. Madden said a personnel officer had been appointed and a chief administrative examiner named to take over some of Witt's duties.

Leiserson Not Satisfied

The reorganization steps undertaken by the board, well-informed sources said, did not meet the demands of Leiserson for a complete reorganization.

The regional directors made this declaration in their report:

"We are of the opinion that by a clearer organization of the administrative division work through further division of labor and specialization of duties, a more continuous flow of case work can be realized."

The committee recommended not only reorganization, but better coordination in the Washington office among the various branches.

Eight Conclusions

The 10,000-word report of these officials, written last fall, was given out by the Smith committee investigating the agency.

The board committee consisted of four regional directors—A. Howard Myers, G. L. Patterson, W. M. Aicher and Edwin Amelliott. This committee summed up its findings in eight conclusions and five recommendations.

The eight conclusions were:

1. The administrative division as insufficiently organized.
2. Because of lack of organization, the administrative process has suffered in effectiveness.
3. Too many functions were centralized in the Secretary's office and there was too little delegation of responsibility.
4. Overcentralization had overburned the Secretary's office.
5. There was too little coordination between various Washington divisions.
6. There was too little coordination between Washington and the regional offices.
7. A definite personnel policy was lacking.
8. The board itself was participating in too many administrative details.

Recommendations Listed

1. Creations of a new division to afford a contact between Washington and regional offices.
2. Creation of a personnel officer.
3. Reorganization of the Secretary's office to delegate more authority.
4. Creation of a permanent administrative committee, composed of division heads, to analyze administrative problems.
5. Delegation of more of the board's administrative responsibilities so that "more time can be devoted to judicial and policy-functions."

Roosevelt Gives Red Cross Plea For China Relief

An urgent appeal for cracked wheat to meet "a desperate food shortage" in China was forwarded by President Roosevelt yesterday to the American Red Cross and the Church Committee for China Relief in New York. The appeal from the American Advisory Committee for Civilian Relief in China was sent to the White House through Consul General Clarence E. Gauss at Shanghai.

The message to the President said:

"During early months of the China conflict cash contributions from America for civilian relief were generously supplemented by grant of wheat. Wheat supply exhausted. Scarcity of rice and all other grain with the soaring prices are defeating relief efforts. With unfavorable exchange and high freight rates purchase of grain in foreign markets beyond resources of relief committees here . . . Multitudes of poor are suffering from hunger.

Tax Collection 31% More Than Last Year's

U. S. Income Receipts Are $621,448,616 In 20-Day Period

State-by-State figures showed yesterday that income tax collectors in the first 20 days of March varied from increases of 81 per cent in Michigan to small decreases in Texas, Maine and Oklahoma.

The comparisons were with the corresponding period of last year. The average national gain was 31 per cent.

In the 20-day period, representing the bulk of first quarter Federal income tax installments produced $621,448,616 this year, compared with $473,122,052 last year. Secretary Morgenthau said that the revenue was "comfortably ahead" of budget estimates, but declined to say by what margin.

Collections for Maryland, including the District of Columbia, increased from last year's $13,724,680 to $15,719,048, a gain of more than 14 per cent.

The variation in collections apparently bore no sectional characteristics. Thus States showing the largest increases included Michigan, Rhode Island, 77 per cent; Delaware, 73 per cent; Ohio, 62 per cent, and Indiana, 56 per cent.

Some of the biggest tax areas fell below the national average. New York State, easily maintaining its first rank with $156,298,903, had a gain of 24 per cent. Among other major States (those having more than one internal revenue office in their borders) California increased 9 per cent; Illinois, 29 per cent; Missouri, 8 per cent; New Jersey, 42 per cent, and Pennsylvania, 44 per cent.

Virginia had a 45 per cent increase.

Army Building 70-Ton Bomber

has been building for two years. Last year plans for the new craft were stolen but were promptly recovered, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI recently told Congress.

Four motors totalling 6,000 horsepower will turn three-bladed, constant speed propellers, 16 feet in diameter. Landing gear is of the retractable tricycle type.

In appearance, other than size, the "super" plane will be somewhat similar to the present B-17s and the XB-15. The latter, the Army's largest, weighs 30 tons and only one is in existence. Some of the new clipper ships weigh about 40 tons.

Designated as the B-19, the new plane will be all-metal and include heated and ventilated cabins and sleeping quarters for the crew of 10 men. The sleeping quarters, radio compartment and navigator's compartment have been soundproofed.

The new guns adopted by the department are a mobile 90-millimeter antiaircraft gun, larger and more powerful than the existing standard 3-inch weapon, and a 105-millimeter howitzer and carriage, which will supplement the 75-millimeter gun with the Field Artillery.

A number of new antiaircraft guns have already been ordered, it was said, with funds provided for the purchase of 3-inch guns. Money for buying more than 100 of the new type is included in the Army estimates now before Congress.

There has been criticism within the Army of the 3-inch gun in that it was not effective at the higher altitudes at which modern bombers can fly. Germany has adopted a 88-millimeter gun which is said to be effective at 25,000 feet, while Britain uses a 3.7-inch weapon and France a 90-millimeter gun, which are considered as good or better.

The new howitzer has pneumatic tires for towing at high speed and can be used either for level fire at tanks or against masked targets by indirect sighting.

Representatives of Interstate Bus And Transport Groups Protest of Too Many Regulations at Monopoly Inquiry

By the Associated Press

Spokesmen for motor carrier interests contended before the Monopoly Committee yesterday that conflicting State regulations have imposed heavy burdens on interstate truck transportation, while officials of two States defended their regulations as a necessary exercise of police powers.

Proposals for cooperative action among States and localities to permit smoother flow of commodities on the highways, and protests against multiple and nonuniform taxes and regulations were submitted by John V. Lawrence, American Trucking Associations; Leon F. Banigan, national council of private motor trucks owners, and Park M. Smith, National Association of Motor Bus Operators.

The State officials who testified were M. B. Holifield, assistant attorney general of Kentucky, and Floyd D. Strong, of the Kansas Corporation Commission.

Defending Kentucky's limit of 18,000 pounds on the gross weight of loaded trucks, Holifield asserted that "where there are as many traffic hazards as there are in Kentucky, trucks larger or heavier would not remove any imaginary 'trade barrier' but would rather create an insurmountable barrier to all automobile and light truck traffic."

Strong testified that the Kansas system requiring trucks to proceed to ports-of entry upon crossing the State boundaries had provided "an efficient means of exercising a reasonable control over motor carriers."

Lawrence commented that "surely some less expensive and annoying method" could be found to collect taxes than the port-of-entry system.

Lawrence proposed greater uniformity in restrictions on the length and weight of vehicles, in requirements for lights and safety appliances and in taxation.

ment which "greatly disappointed" him.

Wallace told him it would be proper for him to express his support for an independent FCA in conversation within the Agriculture Department, but that permission to appear before a Congressional committee "would have to be cleared through the White House," Goss recalled.

Two months later, he stated, FCA Governor Albert Black requested his resignation, which was accepted by President Roosevelt last week.

Goss said he supported the proposal for an independent board to direct FCA operations, "so we could have continuity of policy independent of elections." The FCA is a "business institution," he declared, "and its policies cannot be overturned overnight without violent repercussions."

The former commissioner concluded his third appearance before the committee with a fresh attack on the Jones farm credit bill. Secretary Wallace will be invited to testify at the committee hearing Tuesday, Chairman Jones announced.

Farm debt revision and reduction in interest rates, as provided in the Jones bill, were defended at yesterday's session by Representative Lemke (Republican), of North Dakota, as the only hope of thousands of Middle Western farmers.

Doubts Loans Will Be Paid

In the western half of North Dakota, Lemke stated, the FCA can never collect more than 20 per cent of its outstanding loans. Most of these loans were based on inflated land values and made "when you should have known better," he told Goss. "The land banks are as much to blame as the farmers."

"Apparently I have more confidence in North Dakota than you have, Mr. Lemke," Goss replied. "The wheat that built those North Dakota farms is coming back. There may be hard years, but those farmers will hit the jackpot again. . . . To say that country has to return to grass is like playing with a buzzsaw."

Goss said he believed in "making every possible effort to keep the farmers on the land" until rising prices restored farm income to normal levels. "But you can't solve the problem by softening or destroying this credit system," he warned.

Lemke pointed out that 15 States have enacted some type of legislation restraining the use of deficiency judgments. The Jones bill would forbid suits for deficiency judgments against land bank borrowers.

Opposes Stringent Action

Goss said, "I have contended for years that deficiency judgment suits should be pressed only in cases where the borrower is trying to beat the banks or his fellow borrowers."

He maintained that the FCA, in practice, had checked most abuses in the use of deficiency judgments by land banks, but said a bill forbidding the land banks to obtain judgments would encourage farm loan delinquency.

Questioned by Representative Hope (Republican), of Kansas, the former commissioner said the Jones bill, if administered in accordance with "loose lending policies," could lead to a Government monopoly of all farm loan business. At present, he said, Federal farm loan policy serves as a yardstick for other farm leaders.

Goss agreed with Hope that theories underlying the pending farm credit measure might eventually bring Government control of all credit facilities in such fields as housing.

Jones, in his concluding statement, praised the witness for his service with the FCA before remarking that "men connected with an institution get to love it as such and sometimes forget the public's expectations of the institution."

Norwegian Captains Sights U-Boat Fleet

Bergen, Norway, March 22 (AP).—Two Norwegian fishing boat captains tonight reported they had sighted a large concentration of German submarines just outside Norwegian territorial waters for the first time in several weeks.

One captain said a submarine stopped his craft and purchased fish. One of the officers told him, "From now on you will see plenty of German submarines; they will be as common as fishing boats."

U. S. Reported Ready to Free Newest Planes

Defense Conference Said to Have Decided Allies May Buy Them

By Frank L. Kluckhohn

Copyright by New York Times

Plans were nearing completion yesterday by which about 2,000 of the latest type of planes ordered by the United States Army will be made available for purchase by Great Britain and France, officials said last night.

After staff conferences at the War Department, following earlier discussions between President Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau and Army officials, it was reported that a decision in principle had been reached that close to $1,000,000,000 in additional Allied plane buying would so increase American production capacity that large plane reserves would no longer be essential to this country.

Of the approximately 5,500 planes which Congress authorized for construction by July 1, 1940, about 2,000 were intended for use as reserves. With increased production making rapid building possible, the need for these reserve planes is said to have lessened. It was decided, therefore, that many planes ordered by the Army (and on which it has priority) could be made available for sale by the manufacturers to the Allies.

Latest Models Included

Over a period of time, the British and French are expected to obtain a number of planes equivalent to the reserves ordered.

Some of these planes, including apparently the latest dive-bombers and high-speed pursuit craft most recently developed, will be made available to Britain and France shortly, officials said. They said that exact details had not been settled but that a stagger system might evolve by which the army would take a group of planes it has ordered and then the Allies be permitted to purchase some on a repeating basis.

As President Roosevelt made clear in his press conference Tuesday, the P-40, on which the Army is only beginning to get production, will be made available to the Allies and other foreign buyers. Some discussion apparently has developed as to whether equipment, such as special superchargers, should not be included on all late types that may be released for foreign sale, in order that the best performance may be obtained.

May to Fight Move

Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee said last night his group will "object seriously" if the Administration makes available the Army's latest warplanes to the Allies.

Declaring that he has "gathered from the newspapers that President Roosevelt wants to release our newest military aircraft over the objections of the War Department," May said he and his fellow committeemen feel that the latest American craft should be kept for our own Army.

The committee will begin an inquiry next week into the warplane controversy. May said Secretary Woodring and other Army officials will be called Tuesday or Wednesday for testimony in open session.

Meanwhile, the House Military Appropriations subcommittee was disclosed to be making an exhaustive inquiry behind closed doors into a controversy over the Army's new semiautomatic rifle. Ranking War Department officials have been questioned as to the merits of the Garand rifle, recently made standard for the service.

Accuracy Impugned

Undercurrent criticism of the new weapon was brought out in the open with the publication of an editorial in the National Rifleman, organ of the National Rifle Association, asserting that the Cavalry and the Marine Corps have found flaws in it.

The editorial said there was a division of opinion in the Army, both as to the practicability of the weapon and the advisability of adopting any semiautomatic gun as a standard rifle. The Garand was said to be less accurate than the Springfield, which it replaces.

The office of the chief of Cavalry later issued a statement regarding the National Rifle Association editorial, declaring that difficulties in lubrication mentioned therein were minor and occurred only in early models. Such defects normally occur in the development of new weapons, it was stated.

Marine Corps officials, commenting on a rifle association statement that the Corps had lowered its marksmanship qualification scores because of the lower accuracy of the Garand, said there had been no changes in qualifications.

said, "but I know of only a few instances where so-called official cars have been used for pleasure. There are regulations against it."

The White House has 20 official cars—those used by Cabinet members are listed as White House vehicles—with tag numbers running from 100 to 120. Cars also are assigned to the Capitol, Senate, House of Representatives and Army and Navy for official use of employes.

There are few official cars—other than trucks—which now carry the names of their departments. Bureau heads, however, at Commerce, Internal Revenue and Agriculture announced intentions of complying with the committee demand by painting the names in big letters on the sides of all passenger autos.

At the Department of Interior it was reported that Secretary Ickes had made "no decision" on the matter of lettering. He protested to the House Appropriations Committee that marked cars "embarrassed" Government officials.

There are numerous officials cars which carry no identifying marks at all—not even on tags. These are used for under-cover work by the Secret Service, F. B. I., Internal Revenue Bureau and other policing agencies.

Hoover Owns Auto

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the F. B. ., is one who is assigned an official car tax free, but also owns his own and pays for the tags.

Since, 1934, the number of "official" cars in Washington has varied little. The record shows 1934, 781; 1935, 888; 1936, 641; 1937, 663; 1938, 879, and 1939, 788. There are no records earlier than 1934 at the Traffic Bureau.

But there will be more this year, Traffic Department officials predicted, because field cars operating in the States are going to be registered in the District—the States, it was reported, are peeved at having to issue free tags.

In addition to Federal "official" cars, the District government operates 186—from Commissioner Hazen's to one in the tax assessor's office. They do most of their parking around the District Building and are seldom molested by police.

In the Diplomatic Corps, 451 "official" cars are listed—and they don't have any parking worries, either.

Postoffice Department Orders Letters Returned With 'Fraud' Stamp

By the Associated Press

The long arm of the Postoffice Department—synonymous in this instance with the long arm of the law—stretched out yesterday to interrupt a mail order traffic in what the department called "these so-called Mexican divorces."

Immediately involved were the Domestic Relations Bureau at Tia Juana, Mexico; Antonio Legasty, identified as its proprietor, and "officers and agents as such."

Said the Postoffice Department.

"All mail addressed to this concern and parties should be returned to senders stamped "Fraudulent—mail to this address returned by order of Postmaster General," and no money orders in favor of said concern and parties should be issued or certified."

"Persons securing these so-called Mexican divorces through the mails from courts wholly lacking in jurisdiction over the parties do not secure divorces valid in the United States," said Vincent M. Miles, department solicitor. "Even their validity in Mexico appears to be open to question."

"The evidence before me," he added, "shows that this scheme was deliberately designed and is being operated through the mails of the United States to defraud persons desiring divorce."

Lecturer Tells How Bird's Call May Ruin Film

The suggestion of far places carefully built up by a motion picture director while filming a movie may be upset when the note of a bird on the sound tract of the film discloses that the scene could only have been shot in California.

Speaking to members of the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall last night, Dr. Arthur A. Allen, professor of ornithology at Cornell University, told of two recent motion pictures in which the director had unwittingly failed to keep the telltale songsters away from the microphone and the familiar songs gave away to bird lovers the real location of the motion picture set.

The speaker described and illustrated with motion pictures a 20,000-mile tour of the United States, stalking America's birds to their nests and generally showing close-ups of mother birds feeding their young. During the tour, 125 different species of birds were filmed, including many rare and nearly extinct varieties.

The condor, a rare bird in the United States, the speaker described as the largest bird of flight in the world. This bird was shown at the door of its home, a hole in a cliff, where a baby condor was being cared for. The speaker explained that eight months elapse between the laying of a condor egg and the first flight of the young.

Capital Marks Good Friday In Solemn Rites

Special Services Held In Churches, Outdoor One in Franklin Park

Reminders of Christ's sacrifice on Calvary sounded in warm churches and in the blustery open yesterday, as Good Friday was observed with traditional solemnity.

Catholic churches celebrated masses of the pre-sanctified and "stations of the cross," while Protestants sponsored Holy Communion and sacred musical programs, notably renditions of Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion."

Methodist Union three-hour rites drew more than 1,000 worshipers to Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, where Dr. A. B. Potorf advised that the crucifixion revealed the value of human life and of man's most compelling beauty.

"There Is Hope"

Preaching from a floral-banked pulpit flanked by flickering candles, the American University professor of religion and principal speaker also emphasized that it "taught the simple but profound truth . . . that there is hope for all sinners."

Sandwiched between the presentations of the "seven last words" of Christ were musical selections by singers of the host church, accompanied by Organist-director Deane Shure. Above the console were illuminated silhouettes depicting Jesus' Passion.

Earlier in the service the chaplain of the House of Representatives, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, offered a pastoral prayer; Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent of the West Washington District, Methodist Church, led the call to worship; Dr. John W. Rustin, host pastor, gave the scriptural response, and Dr. S. Paul Schilling, pastor of the Prince Frederick, Md., Methodist Church, discussed the first utterance on the cross—"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Among other participants were Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident prelate of the Methodist Church; Dr. Edgar C. Beery, East Washington District superintendent, Methodist Church; Dr. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist National Memorial Church; Dr. Peter Marshall, New York Avenue Presbyterian Church; Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; the Rev. Edwin G. Latch, Chevy Chase Methodist Church, and others. Walter M. Bastian heads the Methodist Union.

Services in Park

While the March winds whipped their vestments, students and priests from religious houses at Catholic University sang at services in Franklin Park, Fourteenth and K streets northwest, under the auspices of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild.

Conducting the last four stations of the Cross and preaching the sermon, the Rev. A. J. Burggraff told his listeners that Christ achieved victory in his death on Calvary. He is Superior of St. Paul's College.

"'It is finished' was not a cry of defeat but of triumph," he said in a message broadcast over WJSV, explaining that it did not mean all was lost but rather that all was saved. Presenting other stations were the Rev. Emmett T. Shea, O. P., of the Dominican House of Studies, and the Rev. Eugene McCallem, O. Carm., of the university.

CCC Boys See Film

CCC lads from camps in the District and Virginia were among the hundreds attending Cecil B. De Mille's "King of Kings" last night at First Congregational Church.

Other principal Protestant services were centered at Reformation Lutheran Church, where Lutherans of the Washington area held their annual Good Friday three-hour observance; Fifteenth Street Christian host to Southeast churches' rites; Washington Cathedral and St. Margaret's Episcopal. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, led the last-named rites.

At the Franciscan Monastery, scene of impressive services yesterday, Holy Saturday rites will be held today beginning at 6:30 a. m. with the blessing of the new fire and of the paschal candle, singing of the prophecies and solemn high mass. The resurrection service is set for 8 p. m.

Mother of Girl, 15, Says Daughter May Wed Jessel, 42, 'If He's a Nice Fellow'

Actor Tells How She Proposed to Him, A Despondent Man

By the United Press

New York, March 22.—George Jessel, 42-year-old showman, and Lois Andrews, 15-year-old showgirl (she will be 16 Easter Sunday) collaborated today to enlighten a breathless public on two points, to wit:

They expect to be married next week, her mother willing; and her mother as much as said okay.

[An International News Service dispatch from New York says Miss Andrews' father wired her from Los Angeles instructing her to delay the marriage, and that her mother, in New York, also counseled delay. Both Jessel and the girl, says the International News Service, agreed with the girls' parents.]

Said Jessel: "It's true the child is only 15. But she's mature. Her mind is twice as old as her body."

Echoed Miss Andrews: "I am much older than my age. I can't be happy or enjoy myself with anyone of my own age."

Chorus: "It's love."

Jessel, who was divorced in Mexico last August by Norma Talmage and dittoed in 1930 by Mrs. Florence Courtney Jessel, deposed in part:

"The Broadway columnists jot down items that I am traveling about with 30 or 40 girls. The report of my personal charm has been greatly exaggerated. I am no Casanova.

"This has all come about so suddenly. I've only known this child for two weeks. I met her in Florida. Then we went to lunch together and sat and looked at each other. I didn't think I'd ever be able to look in anybody else's eyes again like that.

"She kept saying to me, 'I would love to marry you.' Now, a man who has known despondency and sorrow as much as I have finds a thing like that flattering. . If I can extract one grain of happiness from this, I intend to do it. I believe I have it coming to me."

And the remarks of Miss Andrews, who last August engaged in bouts with George White, her employer in the Scandals, and two other showgirls:

"George and I were sitting looking at Mickey Rooney in 'Young Tom Edison.' Then he proposed. I don't think the difference in age means a thing. I am so much older than my age."

She made it clear that the marriage would depend entirely on her mother, Mrs. Geraldine Andrews. Soon thereafter Mrs. Andrews flew in from Los Angeles and pronounced a conditional benediction.

"If George is a nice fellow I'm sure everything will be fine," she said.

Confessions Reported Here In '35 Killing

Two District Couples Said to Have Made Signed Admissions

Two Washington couples held for questioning in connection with the five-year-old murder of a Philadelphia housekeeper, signed confessions last night, the lawyer for one couple said. He said extradition would be waived.

John A. Lagana, 37, a commission merchant, and his wife, Mrs. Angela Lagana, 35, of 1322 Forty-fifth place southeast, were seized at their home yesterday by Detective Sergts. Guy Rone, Richard J. Cox and Timothy Fitzgerald.

Joseph Guida, 48, and his wife, Mrs. Helen Maurine Guida, 38, were taken into custody at their home, 4801 Wisconsin avenue northwest, when they returned after spending the night with friends.

Both couples were arrested at the request of Philadelphia police. They were booked as fugitives from justice.

Confessions Described

Harry T. Whelan, lawyer for the Guidas, said Lagana confessed binding and gagging Winifred A. Flannery, 61, housekeeper for Maj. John S. Morrison, retired army officer, while he and Santo Ruggeri, 31, of Astoria, Queens, searched the house. The Guidas, he said, admitted being at the scene of the crime but took no part in it except that Guida acted as lookout while Mrs. Lagana and Mrs. Guida waited in an automobile.

The confessions, Whelan said, related that Maj. Morrison was overheard in a Washington cafe discussing a large sum of money in his Philadelphia home. When the house was ransacked and the maid strangled by the gag the night of May 16, 1935, no money was found.

Lieut. Bernard O'Donnell and Detective Adam Sadorf, with Albert E. Short, assistant district attorney of Queens County, questioned the prisoners. The detectives had gone to New York from Philadelphia Thursday night.

Short said a man identified as Ruggeri was arrested in Queens and booked as a fugitive from Philadelphia.

Capt. William Engle, chief of Philadelphia's homicide squad, was quoted as saying that Ruggeri was arrested on information he received that three men and two women were involved in the slaying of the housekeeper.

Hate to Go Home? Not Happy, Duke U. Professor Deduces

Newlyweds Score 200, Divorce-Bound —60 In Scale of Bliss

That happy thing called happiness got a going over here yesterday from Dr. Hornell Hart, Duke University sociology professor, lecturing at the Agriculture Graduate School. He disclosed some conclusions, or happiness averages, like this:

That the student never engaged gets a score of 75; if engaged, the engagement broken off and not replaced, 60; those now engaged, 175; those recently married, 200, and married parties about to end in divorce, —60.

The averages are from a complicated questionnaire that inquires clinically into the subject's life, love, bothers and attitudes.

Especially emphasized is whether one came from a happy or unhappy home.

Dr. Hart has traced a tremendous amount of unhappiness from negative answers to the question of whether one likes to go home.

Otherwise, "when a man says he does not like the people he works for, he is acutely unhappy and is apt to be a trouble-maker in his office." University graduates, he found, are happier than persons who only finished the grades; he found listless persons unhappy while those of boundless energy were, in the main, happy.

Some causes of unhappiness, as traced down, were inadequate income (but this he minimized after finding many rich men sad); the physiological aspects; maladjustment in work or home; the love life (when that goes wrong "they are acutely unhappy," he said), and, finally, one's attitude.

In this last category, he singled out the people who eternally are overborne with a feeling of guilt. This, Dr. Hart ascribed to childhood experience entirely, to parents who unduly take their children to task. They are easily freed of it, when acquainted with its cause, he said. "Make the conscience your servant and not your master," he cautioned.

He believes religion to be more necessary to the husband than to the wife, as the male can use more of its restraining influence. He believes his tests will indicate maladjustments when incipient and correctable. His experiments date back to the 1920s and have carried him to many places, among them a North Carolina chain gang—where, to a man, they were pretty unhappy, he found.

He thinks three of four people are happy; five of six marriages are happy.

Take Pay Cut, A. F. L. Urges Home Builders

19 New York Unions Urged to Accept Lower Scale, Halt C.I.O.

By the Associated Press

John P. Coyne, head of the A. F. of L.'s building trades department, appealed to 19 unions yesterday for uniform acceptance of a reduced wage scale for building mechanics in New York City's small house construction field.

Negotiations with small house contractors started in New York earlier in the week after a conference of the building trades unions. The new rate is expected to be standardized at $9 or $10 a day, as compared with the $12 to $15 a day now in effect on large commercial structures.

The C. I. O. Construction Workers Union also has been conferring with building contractors in New York this week. It offers a wage scale on small house construction similar to that recommended by Coyne.

Coyne attached to his letter to the presidents of all building trades unions a copy of a letter from Thomas A. Murray, president of the New York Building and Construction Trades Council, urging united action on the small house rate to halt C. I. O.'s invasion of the "unorganized" field.

Coyne told his union chiefs that the small house contractors had agreed to negotiate an agreement with the A. F. of L. unions on the so-called "secondary scale" for an eight-hour day, five-day week, providing all the trades in New York agreed to work for the proposed rate.

Coyne expressed the opinion later that the secondary scale may be put into operation on home building by A. F. of L. unions throughout the country.

It is under consideration now, he said, in Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo.

Jews to Mark Feast of Lots Tomorrow

Capital Synagogues Hold Rites Heralding Approach of Purim

Services last night in Washington synagogues heralded the approach of Purim, Feast of the Lots, the celebration of which will begin tomorrow night.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, of Adas Israel Synagogue, and spiritual leaders of other congregations delivered messages recalling the feast—commemorating the deliverance of the Jews in Persia from destruction.

The feast falls on the thirteenth day of Adar in the Jewish calendar, at which time lots were said to have been cast to determine the day of the Jews' fate.

The scroll of Esther is read on Purim in many synagogues. Known as the Megillah, it will be used throughout the world tomorrow night.

The Washington Hebrew Congregation, led by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, has recently received one of a limited first edition of the Megillah. It contains the story of Queen Esther's heroic efforts to save the Jews from being destroyed at the hands of Haman, the courier, when Ahasuerus was Persian King.

An occasion for merrymaking and giving, the celebration of Purim always is linked with special foods, including Homontaschen, three-cornered cakes said to represent the hat of Haman.

'End Jobless' Rally Today

Three members of Congress will speak at a "National End Unemployment Day" railly at 2 p. m. today in Public Library Park, Seventh street and New York avenue. Twenty District unions will participate, according to the District Workers Alliance, which is sponsoring the meeting.

Speakers will be Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida; Depresentative Caroline O'Day (Democrat), of New York; Representative Geyer (Democrat), of California; David Lasser, national president, Workers Alliance; Eugene Davidson, administrator, New Negro Alliance.

Also speakers will be Jack Zucker, business agent, United Shoe Workers; John T. Rhines, president, Southwest Civic Association; Howard Ennis, chairman, Washington Youth Council; Robert Robinson, secretary-treasurer District Workers Alliance; Philip Bonosky, president, District Workers Alliance.

White House Ready to Be Host To 50,000 Egg-Rollers Monday

Flowers Are Fenced Off, Stands Erected for Bands; All Depends On Whether Weather Is Wet or Fair

Preparations had been made at the White House yesterday for the largest party President and Mrs. Roosevelt will throw this year—the annual Easter egg-rolling Monday at which a crowd of more than 50,000 is expected to appear, if the weather is good.

The White House grounds will be open at 9 a. m. for children and those accompanying them. Adults without children will be admitted at 3 p. m. The Marine Band will play from 3 until 5 p. m.

Under the direction of William Reeves, White House gardener, the flower beds on the lawn have been fenced in. A platform for the Marine Band and the boys' bands which will play before it comes on has been erected by the National Park Service.

An ambulance and an intern will be on duty. A place has been fenced off in the east garden for lost children.

Usually some get separated from their buddies, caretakers or guardians. Drinking fountains have been set up and a good suply of trash baskets.

By way of decoration, there will be a display of palms on the south portico.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who always takes great delight in the egg-rolling, is expected to appear among the crowd several times during the day. The President may make an appearance, although this is uncertain, since he has been suffering from a cold for several days.

Girl and Boy Scouts will be on hand to help take care of the big crowd of children. Every rolling hill in town and nearby will be used for the overflow.

Cold Forecast for Early Easter

Roosevelt, who is suffering from a cold, would leave the Executive Mansion tomorrow.

Because of the early Easter Sunday this year, holiday-bound throngs will not reach a peak here this week-end as last year, when Easter Sunday followed the cherry blossom festival. The Japanese trees are expected to bloom April 6 or 7 this year, unless the present cold weather continues.

Hotels yesterday reported that many of the Easter guests, mostly school children and college students, had already arrived, and these were visible at the White House, Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial and other Capital shrines. National Capital parks officials suggested that since few of the trees and flowers in the parks were in blossom, the memorials offered the best sights in the city.

Police arranged to place special details at the hotels, churches, and amusement centers, while extra traffic policemen will be sent to all church street crossings during the service hours. Special cruisers and scout cars will press the anticrime patrol recently inaugurated.

The Zoo was ready for some 50,000 fans tomorrow, with an equal number of egg-rollers scheduled to take over the White House grounds Monday morning for the traditional egg-chase started in the administration of Ulysses S. Grant.

While Christians glory in the resurrection of Jesus, Jews, too, will mark a joyous holiday. Tomorrow evening will begin the celebration of Purim, the Feast of Lots, commemorating the Jew's deliverance from destruction by Haman, the Persian, by Queen Esther. It is an occasion for merry-making and gift-exchanging. Special services will be held in the synagogues.

Christians Hold Palestine Rites In Calm Setting

Jerusalem, March 22 (AP).—Pealing church bells and sunny weather invited thousands of Holy Land natives and pilgrims to worship today on the day of Christ's Passion.

In the early hours of the morning Christians of many nationalities gathered at Pontius Pilate's Court for a devotional procession along the Via Dolorosa, "the saddest street in the world."

With the war's concentration of thousands of British troops, Holy Land disorders between Arabs and Jews have almost disappeared, and the air of dignity and orderliness here, where the Nazarene, burdened with the Cross, walked to Calvary, was typical of all Palestine.

The ancient shrine Church of the Holy Sepulchre was an animated scene of devotion, reflecting the abiding faith of Christianity in the permanence of the principles of Christ.

Morgenthau Sued For Debts Due On Pershing Hall

The American Legion Building Paris, Inc., of Paris, France, yesterday asked District Court to require Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to pay $62,852 indebtedness due for construction and maintenance of Pershing Hall, memorial building in Paris.

Formed to erect Pershing Hall, the plaintiff collected money for that purpose and transferred ownership to the United States Government. It declared it is without funds.

Secretary Morgenthau has declined to pay out the money, although he has been requested to do so in accordance with the Congressional Act of June 28, 1935, the suit asserts.

Muddy Waterloo Overtakes Phillips In Fight on Dam

Disney, Okla., March 22 (AP).—Gov. Leon C. Phillips' "States' rights war" arrived at a Waterloo today—the massive gates on the Grand River dam clanged shut and muddy waters began rising in the 52,000-acre reservoir.

Closing of the gates under cover of darkness early this morning—at whose order, the Phillips-appointed dam authority professed not to know—climaxed the chief executive's fight through court order and National Guardsmen to obtain $889,275 damages from the Government for roads and bridges which would be flooded.

"I'm just sitting tight and waiting for the next move," was Phillips' only comment.

Arita 'Certain' Who Will Win European War

Foreign Minister Declines to Elaborate Reply to Japan's Diet

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Staff Writer

Tokyo, March 22—Members of Japan's Diet, posing the question as to whether Japan should not take some positive role in support of "Germany and Italy," were informed tonight by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita that Japan already was "certain" of the way the European war would come out.

The matter, he added, is too delicate to talk about further. However, he did say that "Japan will not put any obstacles in Germany's way by joining hands with Britain or America" during the European conflict, although Japan's entry into the Western affair is inadvisable since she is concerned solely with the construction of a "new order" in Asia.

Allied Defeat Foreseen

Some of the questions asked the government follow:

"Don't you think Japan should discard her policy of uninvolvement and openly side with Germany and Italy?"

"Why, while mouthing phrases about uninvolvement, has Japan promised Britain not to transport German nationals or armament to Germany?"

"Were not the expansion of the United States Navy and the recent tour of Europe by United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles predicated on the assumption that the Allies would be defeated?"

"Our Eyes Wide Open"

To Arita's somewhat evasive replies, Admiral Zenog Yoshida, the navy minister, added this:

"We are going to dispose of the China incident with our eyes wide open to the world situation."

Earlier, War Minister General Shunroku Hata had assured the budget committee of the lower chamber that Japan was going to continue its efforts to crush Chiang Kai-shek, who he said still had 2,000,000 Chinese soldiers in the field.

At the same session Arita acknowledged the United States' latest credit to China (of $20,000,000) was "disagreeable" to Japan, but said there would be no countermeasures. The American Congress, he predicted, would not embargo goods destined for Japan.

New Regime March 30

Copyright by New York Times

Nanking, March 22.—The third meeting of the central political conference for the formation of the new national government in China concluded today after establishing the machinery for the inauguration of the government on March 30.

Resolutions passed included one that the "liquidation of the Chungking regime be unanimously accepted." Another resolution was that orders be "issued to the men in the field to cease hostilities immediately."

'Good Neighbor' Japan

Japan seeks to follow "the good-neighbor principle" in its relations with China, according to announcement yesterday by the Japanese Embassy here.

The embassy statement was called a "tentative translation of recent remarks by Premier Mitsumasa Yonai in regard to the "new Chinese Central Government to be set up under Wang Ching-wei.

Japan's goal, the premier asserts, is to see the two countries work out a reciprocal economic system, "present a unified front against the menace of communism and respect one another's national and racial endowments."

"There's not an iota of doubt as to Japan's willingness to respect China's political independence," the statement continues.

London Reports Rumor Molotoff Will Visit Berlin

London (Saturday), March 23 (AP).—Reuters, the British news agency, early today distributed a report credited to the Rome radio to the effect that Premier V. Molotoff, of Soviet Russia, would arrive in Berlin today.

This report, as quoted by Reuters, said Molotoff would be accompanied by numerous diplomatic and military advisers and would stay in Berlin for two days.

Berlin (Saturday), March 23(AP).—The propaganda ministry said early tonday it had no information regarding reports, credited to the Rome radio, to the effect that Russion Premier-Foreign Minister Vyaceslaff Molotoff is scheduled to arrive in Berlin during the day.

Salem, Ohio, March 22 (AP).—Still in "serious" condition from injuries suffered in an automobile accident, Representative Paul W. Shafer, 46, of Battle Creek, Mich., was under the care of a brain specialist tonight.

While reporting no improvement in the last few hours, hospital attendants said a "definite change" is expected by tomorrow.

British Submarine Torpedoes German Ship Off Denmark

Captain of Nazi Freighter Plays Dead, So English Take Chief Engineer; Action Said to Have Occurred Near Baltic

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, March 22.—The first German merchantman to be sunk by a British submarine since the start of the war was added proudly today to Allied sea conquests while British sources accused Germany of "torpedoing without warning" one Norwegian and six Danish vessels in the last 48 hours.

Amiralty announcement that the 4,947-ton Nazi freighter Heddernheim had been torpedoed 8 miles off the Danish coast was regarded in some quarters as indicative of a British campaign to cut off Scandinavian ore shipments to Germany, one leaky place in the Allied blockade.

The admiralty merely gave the location of the sinking as 8 miles off the Danish coast, but unofficial reports said it occurred in the Kattegat, entrance to the Baltic Sea, shortly before last midnight.

Danes Rescue 35 of Crew

In Denmark 35 members of the German merchantman's crew, rescued from small boats by a Danish coast guard cutter, said they had been given 15 minutes to leave the ship before the British torpedo was launched.

The captain slipped into one of the boats and the crewmen told the British he was dead; thereupon, the crewmen said, the British took the Heddernheim's first engineer aboard the submarine.

Despite this quickened tempo of the war, even British munitions workers took a Good Friday holiday. Hundreds of thousands of Britons thronged to the country and seaside for Easter vacations.

Current intensification of the German "strafe and starve England" drive increased to 13 the neutral or British ships sunk or damaged within three days.

The heaviest neutral loser in this burst of warfare at sea is Denmark, from which Britain normally imports large quantities of food. Danish exports to Britain in 1938, consisting mostly of barley, bacon, beef, butter, ham and eggs, amounted to the equivalent of $154,468,800.

Denmark's losses in the last two days, all attributed to German torpedoes, amount to approximately 15,161 tons of shipping and upward of 50 lives.

Drive on Danish Trade Seen

New York, March 22 (AP).—The destruction of six Danish freighters within 48 hours led New York shippers to express belief tonight that Germany had entered a new phase of sea warfare—an attempt to divert rich Danish food shipments from England to Germany.

The 3,270-ton Christiansborg was sunk by a torpedo while carrying a heavy load of American grain from Philadelphia to Denmark. The ship had been requisitioned by the Danish government after it purchased the grain.

American shippers pointed out that the other five ships had been taking bacon, beef, butter, ham and eggs to England—a business that nets Denmark over $150,000,000 a year.

The sinkings sent Denmark's losses to 28 ships of 59,309 gross tons or about 4 per cent of her merchant fleet. Denmark's fatality list showed 116 dead and 123 reported missing and probably dead.

British Photos Fail to Show Sylt Damage

Clouds Covered Isle; Success Confirmed, However, by Observers

London, March 22.—Photographs taken by two British reconnaissance planes Wednesday morning over Sylt, a few hours after 30 bombers unloaded 1,000 bombs upon the German seaplane base, do not show the extent of damage done because the observers could not get near enough and atmospheric conditions were unsuitable.

After repeated requests from newspapers for the pictures as an answer to the German denial that any serious damage was done, the air ministry tonight issued the following announcement;

"Royal Air Force aircraft carried out a reconnaissance over the island of Sylt Wednesday morning with the view of confirming the results of the previous night's attack.

"Our aircraft were able by observation to confirm the success of the operation. Photographs were also taken but owing to opposition by antiaircraft guns, and fighters, it was not possible for the aircraft to approach close enough to the objective to enable satisfactory photographs to be obtained in the atmospheric conditions prevailing.

"The photographs taken proved to be of no value in indicating the extent of the material damage inflicted in the course of this heavy attack."

Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood told the Commons Wednesday that weather conditions over the target, clear in the moonlight during the early part of the raid, gradually became overcast toward morning.

[Three American newspaper correspondents, flown to Sylt by the German government Thursday, reported no great damage visible.]

Navy Construction Board to Meet Here

A board of six captains of the Navy Construction Corps will meet here April 1 to select officers of that corps for promotion to lieutenant commander and lieutenant.

Capt. Roy W. Ryden heads the group, which consists of Capts. Herbert S. Howard, James O. Gawne, Lew M. Atkins, Ralph T. Hanson and Harold E. Saunders. Lieut. Leslie E. Richardson was named recorder.

British Import Ban on Tobacco May Be Lifted

Government Weighs Other Concessions To Pacify America

By Frederick Kuh.
United Press Staff Writer.

London, March 22.—The British government was understood today to be planning to earmark a specified amount of dollars for resumption of tobacco, pork and apple purchases in the United States.

It also was reported that the government is considering favorably the establishment of a contraband control base at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and plans to meet some United States objections on inspection of transatlantic mails.

These moves, it was understood, were discussed with the American Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles, on his recent visit here and were believed designed to prevent Anglo-American relations from becoming an issue in the United States Presidential elections, in which President Roosevelt might conceivably be a target for criticism on grounds of failure to defend United States interests adequately.

Partial resumption of purchases of American tobacco, pork and apples would help relieve the blow struck against an important section of United States opinion by the British Government decision to conserve dollars as much as possible for the purchase of planes.

Establishment of a contraband control base at Halifax would be intended to overcome United States objections to being obliged to violate the neutrality act by the present compulsion that American vessels enter the combat zone for examination.

Britons hoped that in return for such concessions the United States would show greater willingness to use the navicert system and facilitate the supplying of latest improvements in war material, particularly the last word in airplanes.

Britain also would like to obtain from the United States the best quality of unbreakable glass and a plastic material which immediately seals bullet-riddled airplane fuselages.

Mrs. Woodson Named To Sponsor Submarine

Secretary Charles Edison yesterday designated Mrs. Walter B. Woodson, 3222 Woodley road nw., as sponsor of the submarine Trout, scheduled to be launched at the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard May 21.

Mrs. Woodson is the wife of Rear Admiral W. B. Woodson, judge advocate of the Navy and formerly naval aid to President Roosevelt.

Nazi Pressure Sends Magyar Chief to Rome

Hungarian Premier Going Today; Believed Seeking Italy's Aid

By Herbert L. Matthews.
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, March 22.—Count Paul Teleki, Hungarian premier, will arrive in Rome tomorrow and before he leaves, he, like Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister and Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, will have seen the Duce, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, Pope Pius XII and King Victor Emmanuel.

Hungary is a worried and fearful country these days, and whenever the Hungarians get into that state of mind, either the premier or the foreign minister comes to Rome. It almost always, in the last year or so, has meant an appeal for help against Germany, and this time does not appear to be an exception. Hungary is under renewed pressure and there are alarming indications and rumors involving the Balkans.

The proposed plan to guarantee Rumania's frontiers is one of them. Count Stephen Csaky, Hungarian foreign minister, agreed at the Venice meeting with Count Ciano in January to shelve the Hungarian claims against Rumania for the time being, but he did not abandon Hungary's claims.

Another thing which is alarming Hungary is the move toward a closer Italo-German-Russian understanding. If, in order to keep the status quo in the Balkans, Italy agrees to some collaboration with Moscow and Berlin, Hungary would have to follow suit. Budapest is, if anything, more rapidly anti-Bolshevik than Rome, and it is less inclined to shelve its sentiments and acts "realistically."

Still another source of anxiety is the German propagated report that they are going to make a great offensive. If that happens, the neutral states are going to be in a delicate situation, to say the least, and, Premier Teleki doubtless wants to know what part Hungary and Italy would then play. It is interesting to note, however, that Virginio Gayda in the Giornale d'Italia, goes out of his way today to write that there does not seem to be any preparations for spreading the conflict.

Nazi Offers 'Guide' In Rumanian Talks

tural production.

Of these four points, the heaviest stress was laid on the latter. Clodius, who arrived Monday, had a long conference with the minister of agriculture this afternoon.

Old Treaty Is Cited

The announced purpose of the Nazi economist's visit to Bucharest is to put into effect the far-reaching Wohlthat agreement, signed by the two countries a year ago. Extensive application of its provisions has been delayed by the series of European crises and the war.

The agreement gave Germany the right to have a large part in Rumanian agriculture, industry and transportation, which were to be streamlined under the direction of German experts in order vastly to increase Rumanian exports to the Reich.

Clodius is accompanied by a large staff. The German mission occupies 19 suites in the swank hotel directly across from King Carol's palace.

Carol Speeds Defense

In a speech today King Carol said:

"All Rumanian activity at present should be dominated by meeting the needs of the armed forces and all efforts and sacrifices should be made for national defense. All individual and collective aspirations of all the inhabitants of Rumania living within our natural frontiers should be devoted to the consolidation of Rumania without relaxation. Today there exists only one word of command and one purpose, that of conserving united the integrity of Rumania."

He concluded by expressing the desire to live on friendly terms with all neighbors.

Reynaud Cabinet Wins Confidence Test by Majority of One and that of Daladier, which resigned Wednesday, are concerned, the French already are saying that this is merely a "Reynaud - Daladier" cabinet.

The energetic former finance minister had a bitter day today, even if he did win. He was attacked in the Chamber and faced many frosty benches. His ministerial declaration was not largely applauded, and in general his commentary was termed uninteresting.

Until the last moment the betting odds were that he would lose. Even now, if today's abstainers became active oppositionists, he might be overthrown.

Conversely, he may win these votes, or most of them, over to his support, and may win some or all of yesterday's absentees.

This communique was issued by the cabinet when it concluded its meeting at 9:30 p. m. (3:30 p. m. Eastern standard time):

"The council of ministers met at the finance ministry, M. Reynaud presiding. It examined the situation resulting from the Chamber vote. All the ministers assured the president of the council of their loyal cooperation. Under these conditions, the head of the government decided that in the present grave situation it was the duty of the cabinet which obtained the absolute majority in the Chamber vote to remain at its post. The war committee will meet tomorrow morning."

It was apparent that in the cabinet session Daladier, who holds the ministry of defense, and the other six Radical Socialists, did not feel they could take the responsibility of wrecking the new regime.

The full text of the Reynaud brief and formal statement to the Chamber follows:

"France is engaged in a complete war.

"A powerful enemy is transforming and concentrating all its human activity into warfare in order to triumph.

"Aided by the treachery of the Soviets it is carrying the fight into all quarters and working out all the blows which it is giving with a sort of genius for destruction that we certainly do not fail to recognize as not only awe-inspiring but at the same time hateful.

"By this fact alone the state of this war to the end is the whole stake.

"To win is to save everything. To lose is to lose all.

"Gentlemen, Parliament, exhibiting the national sentiment, has measured the terrible realities from every angle.

"Thus the government which presents itself before you has no other reason for existence and wants no other than this: to raise and direct all French energies to fight and win and to crush treason from whatever angle it comes.

"Thanks to your confidence and your help we will accomplish this task."

Pacifist Policy Abandoned, Norse to Rearm

Premier Nygaardsvold Proposes 50% Hike In Budget for Guns

By Harold Callender.
Copyright by New York Times

Oslo, Norway, March 22.—Norway's Laborite prime minister, Johan Nygaardsvold, former sawmill worker, in an interview today showed that he was aware of those dangers facing Norway. Nygaardsvold admitted that the pacifist policy of his party was not suitable to the world of today and must be abandoned.

"We believed and still believe that disarmament throughout the world would be best for humanity," the prime minister said, "but when we had disarmament in our program, the labor parties in all countries were free to work for the same idea. Now the situation is different. We accept the new situation and acknowledge the need of greater armaments for our own country."

Reserved on Part

The Labor Party, which governs Norway, remains pacifist in its ideals but is now ready to rearm as rapidly as materials are available. There has been proposed, for this purpose, a supplementary budget of about half the regular budget and an income increased by 50 per cent.

The Labor Party press has advocated the proposed defense pact among Norway-Sweden and Finland, but the prime minister spoke of it with reserve:

"I speak for Norway only, but we always have considered this freedom from alliances as an advantage for a small country having little military power.

300 Seamen Lost

"But we have agreed to consider the pact. The situation has changed swiftly and we know we must watch the new developments closely.

"The situation being what it is, it is vitally necessary for us to have our neutrality respected. It had been the aim of our policy to see that none of the belligerents shall have a pretext for violating our neutrality. We have tried and shall continue to try to maintain our normal trade with all countries. It is of the greatest importance to us that our ships shall continue sailing normally."

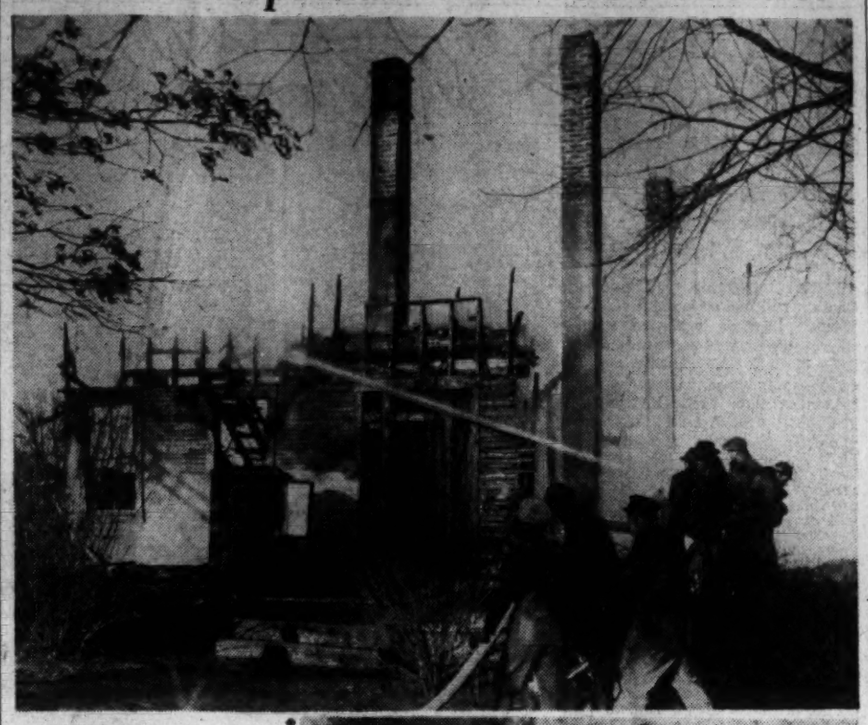
Fires Destroy Two Homes in Nearby Maryland As Wind Sweeps Blaze Over 200 Forest Acres



$7,500 Damage Is Done as Flames Demolish Houses

Fanned by high winds, fires destroyed two homes in nearby Maryland yesterday and swept over acres of grass and wooded land.

Number 19 Engine from the District was summoned to assist Prince Georges County volunteer firemen in a vain effort to save the home of Ernest R. Pyles, at Jenkin's Corner near Clinton. The flames destroyed the house and all the furnishings.

E. C. Randall, forest warden, estimated the loss was $6,000 to the home and $1,500 to contents.

The Forestville fire department was in charge. Then came Upper Marlboro, Oxon Hill, and Clinton.

A $2,500 fire at Quince Orchard, on the Darnestown road near Rockville, destroyed the two-story frame home of Mosby Butt. His wife and several children were in the house when the blaze started upstairs. Most of the furnishings were saved.

Ten Prince Georges County volunteer fire company and 85 CCC enrollees from the Beltsville camp battled for three hours a timber fire that swept over 200 acres between West Lanham and Ardwick.

Firemen resorted to a counter-fire to stop the blaze before it reached a group of five homes at Ardwick. Forty acres were burned out, according to the office of the forest warden.

Most of the companies in Prince Georges County were kept busy throughout the day fighting smaller brush fires caused by persons burning trash. The Bladensburg company responded to three fires in Cheverly, one in Beaver Heights and one in Tuxedo. The Hyattsville company was called to extinguish three field fires in that community.

Meantime the high wind fanned 27 brush fires in various sections of the District between 1 p. m. and 7 p. m.

British Plane Crashes in Holland After Dog-Fight

The Hague, March 22 (U.P.).—A British plane crashed in flames near the Dutch frontier town of Lobith this afternoon after a dog-fight with four German planes 18,000 feet above Nazi soil.

The flaming plane buried itself in an almost inaccessible flooded meadow, and it was not known immediately if the occupants were killed. It was believed they were killed.

[The German high command in Berlin said that "of the two occupants, who left the plane by parachute, one was killed when his parachute failed to open and the other landed safely in Netherlands territory.]

Pope Attends Sad Good Friday Rite

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, March 22.—The Pope this morning attended the Good Friday office—the saddest of all the Holy Week days—in the Sistine Chapel, which was stripped bare of all its draperies, carpets and the like. The lay dignitaries wore no decorations. The noble guards bore the sword with the point downward in sign of mourning.

The Pope was accompanied by only two cardinal deacons and by his court. He wore no ring and did not bless the faithful who had gathered inside the chapel and in the halls leading to it.

400 I.R.A. Members Wearing Pistols Parade in Belfast

Belfast, Northern Ireland, March 22 (U.P.).—Four hundred armed men of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, defying the Ulster government's ban on demonstrations in commemoration of the Easter week rebellion of 1916, paraded through Belfast today. The leaders wore military belts and revolvers strapped to their legs.

The government gave no official explanation of why it did not intervene and uphold the ban against demonstrations.

Outside the home of the late Lieut. Gen. Joe McKelvey, I. R. A. leader executed in Dublin in 1922 for his part in the civil war, a statement was read, from "general headquarters of the I. R. A.," saying that the I. R. A. campaign in England would be pursued until every British soldier had been withdrawn from Ireland, and England had recognized the "government of the republic" as the only government of Ireland. It warned that, perhaps in the near future, the Republican Army would take up arms in Ireland against enemies in the republic.

Sen. Taft Accuses New Deal of Drift Toward Fascism

Louisville, Ky., March 22 (AP).—Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, accused the New Deal tonight of having "a planned economy without any semblance of a plan," based on a "philosophy of regimentation closely akin to those of Germany, of Italy and of Russia."

Taft, the first 1940 Presidential candidate to carry his campaign into Kentucky, declared "we were willing to countenance" the emergency measures at the start of the New Deal—but "as emergency measures only."

"These were humanitarian measures, designed to help the unfortunate with housing projects, with old age pensions, with unemployment insurance, with cash and work relief," he said.

"But . . . we came into the planned economy era, into an administration of government which exalted into an ideal of prosperity the principle of Federal regulation. Russia and Germany and Italy have this ideal. I do not need to tell you America doesn't want it, won't have it."

Miss Clephane To Help Tenant Court Judge

Legal Aid Director To Sit on Bench To Assist Indigents

An effort to give more effective help to thousands of indigent defendants will be launched in landlord and tenant branch of Municipal Court this morning when the director of the Legal Aid Bureau sits on the bench beside Judge George C. Aukam.

Miss Beatrice Clephane, who heads the bureau, last night said she had accepted the invitation of Court officials to cooperate with the court.

Cayton Made Suggestion

"I am glad to cooperate," said Miss Clephane, "and hope we are able to work out something that will help solve the problems of the people who come before the court."

Judge Nathan Cayton, following a meeting of social and civic leaders called by the Washington Housing Association, previously recommended a Community Chest case worker be assigned to the court. At that time J. Bernard Wyckoff, president of the association board, suggested a caseworker from a suitable Community Chest agency would aid both the landlord and tenant.

At the same time Judge Ellen Raedy sent a note to the Legal Aid Bureau asking if that organization would be interested in making a trial survey of the problems of indigent persons in the court to see if a full-time lawyer is needed to advise the defendants.

Memorandum Issued

In a memorandum to other judges Judge Cayton said:

"I recommend that we take prompt action to invite the Community Chest to assign a case worker to serve in our landlord and tenant branch.

"This matter has been under discussion for some time, and it has become increasingly apparent that something should be done to meet the very pressing problems of the 50,000 tenants a year whose cases pass through our court. Their problems have been and are social, rather than legal, and have indicated a need for some means whereby the social aspects of the cases can be investigated and reported to the court.

"It seems to me that the natural answer is to provide for the services of an experienced case worker who will serve as an 'arm of the court,' sitting at each session of the court, obtaining first-hand knowledge of worthy cases, investigating and reporting to the judge as to the full circumstances, contacting Chest agencies, relief and other Government organizations, and generally implementing the work of the court, and providing further assurance that no tenant shall be permitted to suffer, when the means to prevent it are at hand."

Finland Begs Aid, Says Plight Is Desperate

Kallio's Appeal Relayed to American Red Cross Officials

Finland cannot survive without relief from the outside world, President Kallio yesterday notified the American Red Cross.

The Finnish leader told Dr. H. A. Spencer, United States Public Health officer representing the American Red Cross in Finland, that his country today needs aid even more urgently than during the war with Russia. Dr. Spencer cabled an account of his interview to Red Cross headquarters here.

President Kallio stated that 470,000 refugees from territory ceded to the Soviet Union must be housed and fed by the battered republic, Dr. Spencer reported. He also pointed out that Finland must continue to maintain its army, care for 40,000 wounded soldiers and rebuild houses all over the country.

Chairman Norman Davis, of the American Red Cross, reported that the organization has spent $333,000 for supplies shipped to Finland and is working through all its chapters for continuation of aid to the war victims.

A pressing appeal for assistance also has been received from China, Chairman Davis announced yesterday.

The Red Cross has authorized an emergency appropriation of $50,000 for Chinese relief, he said, and is now investigating the possibility of obtaining cracked wheat through the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Davis announced that British blockade authorities have agreed to pass American Red Cross supplies en route to Poland, while the German government is demonstrating "complete cooperation" in distribution of supplies. The Red Cross so far has spent $408,710 for Polish relief, he said.

'Bomb' Within 'Bomb' Attains Record-Shattering Pressure

Dr. Goranson Tells Physicists' Parley How He Applied 3,000,000 Pounds To Table Salt in Laboratory Here

The greatest intensity of pressure ever produced by man—3,000,000 pounds per square inch—was reported yesterday to a group of physicians assembled in Washington, less than 24 hours after the feat.

Using an ingeniously contrived "bomb" within a "bomb," Dr. Roy W. Goranson, of the Carnegie Institution, applied the terrific squeeze to a few grams of ordinary table salt. The experiment took place Thursday night at the institution's geophysical laboratory on Upton street.

Assisting Dr. Gorman was Ellis Johnson, of the Carnegie's department of terrestrial magnetism.

Dr. Goranson Explains.

The sixth Washington Conference on Theoretical Physics, which concludes a three-day meeting today, heard Dr. Goranson explain yesterday at its afternoon session in the Carnegie Institution's headquarters building.

The salt was placed inside a cascade bomb, which is a small steel cylinder and piston, and this in turn placed inside another bomb of the same general design. This steel "envelope" was subjected to 300,000 pounds of pressure and the internal bomb squeezed the salt with 300,000 more pounds.

The gauge indicating the pressure on the salt registered its limit—200,000 atmospheres, or the equivalent of 3,000,000 pounds.

Dr. Goranson reported that the volume of the salt was reduced by about one-fifth when the squeeze was at its height. Thus, while molecular motion within the salt grains was not halted, the component atoms virtually rubbed shoulders with one another.

The achievement marks the climax of a year's work in developing the apparatus and conducting preliminary experiments.

Incidentally, the record-breaking pressure is about one-fifteenth of that which obtains at the center of the earth, according to physicists' estimates.

Justin L. Edgerton, attorney with offices in the Metropolitan Bank Building, has been appointed local director of the Public Information Program for Washington, the Junior Bar Conference of the American Bar Association announced yesterday.

The program's purpose is to stimulate discussion of current civic and legal questions. Topics connected with American citizenship, civil rights, the administration of justice and juvenile crime prevention are being stressed.

Church of the Week

Eldbrooke Methodist to Begin 100th Anniversary Celebration

By Robert Tate Allan

Historic Eldbrooke Methodist Church, 4100 River road northwest, will launch its 100th anniversary celebration Sunday, March 31, with distinguished men speaking then and during the week.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident prelate of the Methodist Church, and former Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will speak on March 31 at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., respectively, and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York City, on April 1 at 8 p. m.

"Organized Bible Class Night" will be observed on Wednesday, April 3, at 8 p. m., with Dr. Raymond J. Seegar, member of the George Washington University faculty, addressing a program sponsored by the Men's Bible Class, whose president is Alden W. Hoage, and teacher, E. A. Swingle.

Traditional Easter rites will be held tomorrow, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, preaching at 9 and 11 a. m., and the junior choir presenting a special program at 7 p. m. Dr. Walter M. Michael, pastor, will preside.

New Windows Installed

"Former Pastors' Night" is scheduled to be celebrated on Thursday, April 4, for which a gala banquet has been arranged. Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent of the West Washington District of the Methodist Church, will preach on Sunday, April 7.

Among Washington's oldest and most rapidly growing congregations, and a member of the old Methodist Episcopal denomination before the Methodist unification last April, Eldbrooke recently installed nine memorial windows in the church auditorium, and expects to place 11 others in time for dedication of the entire group on "Mother's Day," the second Sunday in May. Especially striking is the Gethsemane window in the rear of the balcony. It is visible from River road and Wisconsin avenue.

Dr. Michael, genial spiritual leader of the congregation, said yesterday the congregation is spending about $1,000 on general church renovations and repairs, expected to be completed after Easter. The project is under the supervision of John B. Harry, chairman of the property committee.

Eldbrooke's thriving church school, reputed to be among the best organized units of its kind in the Nation's Capital, operating under three divisions—children's, adults' and youths'. They are further subdivided to enable better social and spiritual development of various age groups. Alfred T. Stamp is general superintendent of the school, the enrollment of which is 581.

38-Voiced Junior Choir

Self-supporting, the school handles its own finances, purchases literature and supplies, contributes to local and foreign missions, and meets its apportionments to various Methodist conference organizations. Two mission projects are sponsored—the leper and tuberculosis work in Puerto Rico, by the junior department, and the Raewind Christian Institute, Raewind, India, the primary group.

The school sponsors the junior choir, composed of boys and girls from 9 to 15 years of age, its present membership being 38. It participates in the regular worship services, and often joins with the senior choir in special programs.

DR. WALTER MICHAEL,
Eldbrooke Methodist Pastor

Mrs. Herbert Thompson directs the jdnior choir, for which Miss Ruth Wilhide is pianist, and Mrs. Clara Young Brown is director of music for the church choirs, and J. Reynolds, organist.

The church school adult division includes the Men's Bible Class and the Women's Class, the latter being led by Mrs. J. H. Linscott and Philip Henderson, president and teacher, respectively. Departmental supervisors are Mrs. George W. Bicking, nursery; Mrs. William H. Rodda, beginners; Mrs. William R. Burgess, primary; William H. Rodda, seniors, and Miss Carrie Williams, intermediates. Vincent E. Heaton is secretary-treasurer of the school.

Boasts of Scout Troop

The clergyman is convinced that his congregation has a "very remarkable" Ladies' Guild, of which Mrs. Richard Bedford is president. Divided into five circles, it raised $2,530 last year, much of it used toward church debt reduction and parsonage maintenance.

Youth work at Eldbrooke is represented by the Youth Fellowship, consisting of the junior high, intermediates and senior groups. Counselors of the juniors and intermediates are Mahlon Peck and Miss Annie Bidgood, with Greeley Dawson as president. Miss Ellen Anderson is president of the seniors, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Riley and the Rev. F. Hughes Evans, counselors. Evans is pastor of the Dodge Park (Md.) Methodist Church and vice principal of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

The congregation boasts one of the most active Boy Scout troops in the city, No. 19, with George Aichele as scoutmaster, and J. H. Linscott and Paul H. Smith as assistants. Chairman and secretary, respectively of the church scout committee are Dr. E. E. Thompson and V. E. Heaton.

The lads center much of their activity in the church's gymnasium, which contains showers and other facilities. Dr. Michael said yesterday he hopes to have steps taken in the near future to have the gym used more frequently.

This favorite Easter hymn, with its swelling Alleluias and spontaneity of joy, is no doubt a translation of a 14th Century Latin hymn. The melody is now one of the most famous of all Easter carols

What Is Your Income?

People employed continuously at fixed wages will have no difficulty answering the census question on income. But it is highly probable that a large proportion of wage-earners not subject to income taxation do not know precisely how much they earned last year. And there are many valid reasons why an unskilled laborer or a factory worker may be unable to state the figure offhand.

For example, workers may not be employed continuously. Or they may work on part-time schedules, or be paid for overtime. Furthermore, rates of pay may be on a piece-work basis. As a result, the census enumerator is likely to be furnished with more guesses than facts about income, unless people prepare themselves in advance to answer the question.

A correspondent of The Post whose letter is published today emphasizes the danger of inaccurate reporting by low-income groups not required to make out income tax declarations. As he states, the great majority of heads of families fall within the tax-exempt classes and have had no experience in compiling returns on earnings. And census enumerators cannot be of much help to those called upon to furnish this information.

The heated debate over the propriety of including income inquiries in the census may have caused some to ignore the vital importance of having the returns comprehensive and accurate. Otherwise, instead of obtaining data that would throw much needed light on economic problems, there will be a tendency to put governmental policies on an untrustworthy basis.

Incidentally, it will aid heads of families to plan better and to spend more intelligently if they take time to compute the amount of their earnings instead of being content with unreliable estimates.

A Community Project

This municipality is generating an intense interest in the selection of a successor to Commissioner George E. Allen, whose resignation will become effective April 15. Only a few of the District's many organizations devoted to the welfare of the community have met since Mr. Allen's resignation was announced on Wednesday. Yet the demand for appointment of a genuine Washingtonian to this position is already strongly vocal.

By suggesting that Sefton Darr be given the assignment, Francis W. Hill, president of the District Bar Association, is accurately reflecting the community's hope for an energetic Commissioner actively identified with local civic movements. Mr. Darr is a former president of the Bar Association but is even better known as an ardent worker for better government in the District. The fact that a man of this caliber is already sponsored indicates a salutary public awareness of the importance of a discriminating appointment.

It is, however, the principle of selecting the most dynamic and competent local citizen available, rather than the indorsement of a single individual, around which the community may be expected to rally. In this connection the plan of having Washington's outstanding civic organizations indorse a small slate of desirable nominees is gaining favor. That plan was impressively discussed at a dinner of the Federation of Business Men's Associations at the Continental Hotel on Thursday night.

The welfare of the entire community is involved in this appointment. And community welfare alone should govern the selection of the new Commissioner. With the District facing more grave problems than it has confronted for many years, a city-wide effort to lay Washington's case before the President is clearly in order.

Incidentally, members of Congress who are weighing the District's appeal for home rule will undoubtedly be impressed by any organized effort that may be made to bring about the appointment of a highly qualified Commissioner. Nor is it unlikely that some votes on that issue will be influenced by the spirit and energy which the community displays in trying to improve the local government through means already at its disposal.

M. Reynaud's Problems

Political passions, restrained in France under the strong leadership of M. Daladier, are breaking through the surface with the change of administration there. The position of Premier Reynaud, who yesterday barely obtained a reluctant vote of confidence from the Chamber of Deputies, is obviously anything but stable.

Ironically enough, M. Reynaud has weakened his position by trying to broaden the basis of his government. The new and enlarged cabinet which he announced on Thursday includes three Socialists and several men of a more conservative tendency than were found in the Daladier administration. But neither the Right nor the Left has been pacified by this step. On the contrary, both extremes are breaking forth into criticisms which M. Daladier, with a more restricted cabinet, did not have to face.

This political crisis, recalling all too clearly the serious prewar difficulties in France, will give comfort only to the enemies of that country. As M. Reynaud told the chamber yesterday, Germany "is transforming and concentrating all its human activity into warfare in order to triumph." A similar unity of purpose is demanded from the French people if they are to emerge victorious.

A change of government in France means little or no dislocation of the national life. It signifies primarily a shifting of personalities, a movement in this or that direction on the part of those directing highly-professionalized and smooth-running administrative services. But these shifts have always provided the occasion for letting off political steam and giving the French people opportunity to say what they think about the character of their political leadership.

It is, in a sense, a healthy sign to have this well-established practice continuing in the midst of a life-and-death struggle. It is definite proof that French democracy continues to be a vivid and vital force in the lives of the people. But it would be something else if this independent outlook should degenerate into destructive partisanship. M. Reynaud, for all his great abilities, cannot govern successfully unless all groups are willing to subordinate their prejudices to patriotism.

Hull Points The Moral

The rebuke administered by Secretary Hull to James H. R. Cromwell, our Minister to Canada, is fundamentally a criticism of the system of appointing amateurs to important diplomatic posts.

Mr. Hull made this obvious when he observed that the Minister's recent speech in Ottawa "contravened standing instructions to American diplomatic officers." The implication is that only an amateur could be so wholly ignorant of professional standards as to act in defiance of permanent departmental regulations.

The Secretary of State, of course, was not responsible for the Cromwell appointment. But, as in the case of others named to diplomatic posts by the President for political reasons, it is the Secretary of State who must assume the responsibility for any blunders. This unreasonable and undesirable situation alone should hasten the day when every official representative of the United States in foreign capitals will be chosen from the career service.

What makes the present flurry the more unfortunate is the fact that Mr. Cromwell's Toronto speech, saying that the United States is profoundly concerned as to the outcome of the war, obviously voiced a simple truth which needs more rather than less emphasis. None can effectively deny the validity of what Mr. Cromwell said. But it was not his job to say it.

The result is that the Minister to Canada has been publicly, and no doubt reluctantly, reprimanded by the Secretary of State for making a pro-Ally speech in his official capacity. If the net effect gives comfort to anybody it will be to those who regard the possibility of a German victory with equanimity.

On January 6, in criticizing the appointment of Mr. Cromwell because of his amateur status, The Post said that: "The necessity of having a trained diplomat in charge at Ottawa has seemed the more imperative since Canada, alone of the American nations, became a belligerent."

An unhappy outcome is not less unpleasant when it is possible to anticipate it. But the moral of the Cromwell incident is so clear that it may at least serve to put an end to playing politics with our diplomatic service, by this and all future Presidents.

No Financial Trickery

Secretary Morgenthau has announced decisively that he does not intend to use the stabilization fund or resort to any other "trick" method to avoid overstepping the statutory debt limit. The Secretary of the Treasury is of course well aware that proposals of this sort, as well as suggestions to raid the Treasury's cash working balance, are being urged by certain members of Congress who are far from enthusiastic about economy proposals.

Obviously, they would like to spend more without being compelled to advertise their prodigality to the world by raising the present debt limit. But Mr. Morgenthau courageously refuses to become a party to plans for camouflaging the true budgetary situation by using stabilization funds that might be needed in an emergency, or by permitting cash balances to be reduced to the danger point.

It is impossible, however, to share Mr. Morgenthau's belief that the $45,000,000,000 debt limit is "not very important," and that there would be no ground for worry even if the debt were to reach $50,000,000,000. A debt of this size is, of course, not too large for the country to carry. But the rapidity with which the debt is growing is cause for very definite alarm. Within 7 years it has increased by more than $20,000,000,000, and is still rising.

The question that calls insistently for answer is how much longer the Government can continue to pile up deficits by spending more than it collects from taxes. It is the long-continued unbalance of the budget that tends to destroy public confidence in the financial stability of the Government. Even if Congress should find means of recapturing enough cash from Treasury funds or from Federal lending agencies to avoid the necessity of raising the debt limit, it will merely postpone the day of reckoning unless the basic issue is frankly faced.

A Shred Of Comfort

An extraordinarily swift rise to fame, even for this day and age, was thrust on Mrs. Emory Callahan, of Miami, on the basis of the X-ray which seemed to indicate that she might soon become the mother of quintuplets. But if fame came overnight, it left the next day when another X-ray revealed that the Callahans were more likely to become the not-so-proud parents of but a single child.

The most remarkable part of the story, however, is found in the report that the Callahans took the announcement of the lone child "philosophically." Most people would have more need of philosophy to confront the prospect of five babies arriving in a single package, C. O. D. But then most people might not happily envisage as large a family as Mrs. Callahan, who says: "I'd like a family of about 10, all boys. I'd want all boys, even if there were 20 of them."

Of course having quintuplets has proved a very profitable venture for the Dionne family. At the price of separation, the future of both parents and children is assured on a handsome scale. And Mrs. Callahan was undoubtedly logical if she figured that the first post-Dionne quints should all, by the law of averages, be of the sex she favors.

Nevertheless, to most parents, there would seem to be a silver lining in the cloud which has contracted the expansive hopes of the Callahan family.

Flying Higher

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Pan American Airways soon will be trying out its first plane designed for substratosphere passenger flying. This machine, built by Boeing, will cruise at approximately 250 miles an hour in altitudes between 20,000 and 30,000 feet. By rising to these heights it is estimated that the ship will be able to make a jump from Brownsville, Tex., to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, for instance, in 20 hours—a trip that takes weeks by steamship or several days by present air schedules.

Two great advantages exist, it is understood, about substratosphere flying. One is that the resistance of the air is less because it is much thinner. Another is that these higher air masses are quite untroubled by the disturbances, cross-currents, swirling storms, and ordinary winds that constitute the weather of the earth's surface. If manmade wings are able to make so much more rapid headway by rising to great heights, does it not suggest that men themselves will make more rapid progress by rising higher in their thinking above the resistance and disturbances of earth?

Envoy To The Vatican

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Loyalty to the Constitution of the United States and to the American flag, to most people, means one and the same thing. To violate one or to insult the other is treason. Hence one of the essential features of our Government is complete separation of church and state. The maintenance of this principle, both in letter and spirit, is paramount to almost every consideration in the permanence of our free institutions.

For this reason, the action of President Roosevelt in appointing a representative to the Vatican, in the person of Myron C. Taylor, is deeply deplored, regardless of political or religious affiliation. No better test of an American's loyalty to the free institutions of his country can be made than the one of holding to the principle of complete separation of church and state.

The question of a third term for the present occupant of the White House and the appointment of Taylor to the Vatican appear to be closely allied, and if allowed to continue is bound to become an issue in the approaching political campaign. And well may this be. That issue may as well be settled now as at a later time.

If our free Government and its sacred institutions are to be preserved and transmitted to future generations, there must be no compromise on this question of separation of church and state. On the contrary, there must be constant vigilance in maintaining complete separation. Therefore, if for no other reason, the Taylor appointment should be withdrawn forthwith.

Save The Allies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Those who insist Europe has always been at war and that Europe's wars are not our business conveniently forget that without help of French and Polish sympathizers our Nation might not have been established.

Our Godless scientific age and luxurious way of life have destroyed national character. Unless there is a rebirth of character which makes us recognize our moral obligation to place our weight on the side of civilization in this struggle this Nation will perish from the earth and will eminently deserve to. We must save the Allies to save ourselves. Only blindness induced by cowardice prevents our acknowledging this fact.

Lindley And Roosevelt

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For columnist Lindley to say that Mr. Roosevelt said what Lindley says he said but that Mr. Roosevelt, who said that what he said has no molecule of religious prejudice, is more than astonishing. Won't he tell us what kind of prejudice there is besides religion, not including political nor behind-the-back prejudice? It is only open prejudice that has molecules or didn't Mr. Roosevelt say what he says he didn't say? We want Lindley's head!

Defends Cromwell's Speech

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations on your sane, forceful editorial of March 21, entitled "To the Point," defending James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, against the charge of "running amuck" because he dared express an honest opinion on our relation to the Allies.

I heartily agree with you that when Secretary of State Cordell Hull gets the original copy of the Toronto speech of Minister Cromwell he will find it "a readable and impressive piece of writing." I agree also with Senator Pepper, who expressed pleasure that our Canadian Minister had the wit and the grit to express "what everybody knows."

I find myself old-fashioned enough to wonder what a foreign diplomat is for if he is not expected really to represent the country he represents, and how can he represent his country at a foreign court if he does not rightly interpret the ideals and the sentiments of his own Nation? None of Mr. Cromwell's critics, who have made a tempest in a teapot, would be apt to pitch their campaign for reelection, I imagine, on an analytical disagreement with what he actually said.

We don't want an Ambassador to be a naught with the rim rubbed out. We want him really to represent us. As a citizen of the United States of America I would have been ashamed of our Canadian Ambassador if he had not taken sharp issue with the current utterances "that there is in actual fact little to choose between one belligerent and another." The man in this country who does not know the difference between the unselfish ideals of the Allies and the cruel selfishness animating the Hitler program, has missed the full-orbed meaning of American freedom. Do any of James Cromwell's critics indorse Hitler's mad fanaticism in persecuting devout Jews, Catholics and all Protestant Christians who refuse to bow the knee to his barbarous demands?

I believe President Roosevelt was right when he told that wild Youth Congress that 98 per cent of American citizens sympathized with heroic Finland when the white virtue of that glorious little country was being outraged by Russian atheism. Hitler could have stopped the rape of Finland if he had wanted to and the only reason he did not was because his own devilish hands were red with the blood of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

Surely Mr. Cromwell's hasty critics do not indorse Hitler's diabolical attitude on these things, and if Minister Cromwell had not condemned such barbarism he should have been recalled indeed. Verily Mr. Cromwell's critics have been far more hasty and reckless in their attack on him than he was inconsiderate in defending our well-known humanitarian ideals.

Finally, Mr. Editor, it is such a reckless sort of pastime for some political leaders to attack a "playboy millionaire." It sounds well out on the hustings. The thing that I like about James Cromwell (though I never saw him in my life) is the fact that he, a son of fabulous wealth, has refused to be only a "golden playboy." He is an author, a patriot and, like our own great President, the friend of "the forgotten man."

I stand uncovered before two types of the American boy—a poor man's son who is bigger than his father's poverty—like Abraham Lincoln—and the rich man's son who is bigger than his father's money—like Franklin D. Roosevelt and James Cromwell, if you please—bigger than the money of their wealthy parents! We need both kinds in this country, and my hat is off to James H. R. Cromwell, well born and well married, who was brilliant enough and spunky enough rightly to represent our national ideals before our Canadian neighbors.

WILLIAM D. UPSHAW.

Census Preparation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is an important angle to all the to-do over census questions that seems to have been overlooked by the press, as well as by census officials. That is the inability of the average person to answer off-hand the questions as to his income and extent of employment during 1939, unless he made a Federal income tax return. And it is to be remembered that the overwhelming majority of Americans did not make such returns.

It will be necessary, therefore, for this great group to prepare themselves to be able to answer the census questions. Most of them will have no books or other records from which to copy the figures, and they must take the time and trouble to sit down and make a painstaking compilation of employment and income from week to week and month to month throughout 1939. They cannot rely upon the census enumerators to aid them in working this out. It is a job they must do themselves, if the information they furnish is to be complete and accurate, which it must be if it is to be of value in working out solutions of unemployment and other economic problems.

Hence it is suggested that newspapers and radio stations can render a distinct public service by reminding citizens of their need of advance preparation to enable them to answer census questions on income and employment, and by repeating the reminder from day to day until April 2. Citizens generally, and especially those in the low income brackets, will thus be impressed with the importance of the information they must supply, and it may then be possible for the new census returns to give us a complete and accurate picture of the national economic situation with respect to essential fundamental data. Defends The Klan

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: One sees many newspaper articles condeming the Ku Klux Klan. I refer to the letter in The Post March 11 by one Jane Edens.

The Klan does not dignify such slanderous articles by answering them. As a member of this organization for many years, I know whereof I speak, and may I point out the fallacy or ignorance of Jane's remarks.

It is a well known fact that the Klan paraded twice in Washington and filled Pennsylvania avenue solidly from the Peace Monument to the Treasury with Klansmen in regalia. More than 4,000 of these were residents of Washington, D. C., and not one had his face covered with his visor. Yet one hears "They are afraid to show their faces." Surely the fallacy of these remarks are obvious.

Referring to the fact that the Klan is rapidly rebuilding its membership at present, Jane asks: "Does this new outbreak mean that civilization in America has reached such a low level that respectable citizens are willing to have men of questionable character and motives masquerade under the guise of Americanism?

No, Jane, it means that real Americans, of unquestionable character, see the approaching peril of un-American influence in their country, and are keeping faith with their forefathers in uniting in this great American organization to fulfill their sacred duty of preserving the heritage of this great democracy that their forefathers gave their lives to establish for them.

Regarding her reference to reading the Bible and Christ's teachings, the Bible is read and is always sacredly in use at every Klan meeting and Klansmen are taught to accept Christ as their criterion of character. Hate is not taught by the Klan, but the love and protection of home and family and fellow Klansmen.

At the Creek's Mouth

There is always a reason, at any season of the year, for going to the creek's mouth, and if what is found is not always what is sought it is, at least, always something worth while.

Just to see the creek's mouth is worth while; deep pool with the bottom clearly defined; on one side of the bridge a mirror lake dotted with little islands, on the other side a winding stream toward the wide river. That's a light pencil sketch of one of Artist Nature's smaller canvases. Because she is never satisfied with her work she is always making changes.

To the daily visitor these are almost imperceptible, but they have a general seasonal pattern. Thus in succession she paints the little islands a dull brown with sere vegetation, white with snow, drab with slush, green with grass and yellow with ripened broom sage.

Every year she makes the marsh gorgeous with mallows. Her sky and water effects are ever marvelous. But I sometimes think her greatest joy is in the lining and painting of deciduous trees. Not that she neglects the evergreens. She is tender with the pine cones, loving with the little berries on the cedars, and positively exuberant when she paints the holly berries. But most of her loving care (it seems to me) is with the oak, the locust, the gum and their kindred. Strength and beauty of line is hers, and she revels in color from the first green of a timid shoot to the riot of Jack Frost's box of paints.

Now among those who go to the creek's mouth are men, women and children, dogs, cats and cattle, coons, 'possums, foxes and rabbits, ducks, herons and gulls, kingfishers, oyster catchers and kildeers, perch, eels and minnows and crabs and darning needles and mosquitoes, just to mention a few. (If there were no mosquitoes it would be hard on the minnows which would be a blow to the bluefish which might dismay the friends of Bill Ackerman.)

Those who see least of the creek's mouth are the regular residents, the maninoses or long-necked clams (locally "mannoes"). They see as little of it as do the oysters, just outside the creek's mouth in the river, or just inside the creek's mouth in the creek. Residents are notoriously nonsightseeing.

In chill weather at low tide the mannoe diggers arrive, each man equipped with a pail and a long-handled shovel. He goes out on the flats and digs deep and rapidly. Speed is necessary, for the holes quickly fill with water. But first he locates the hole in the sand through which the maninose breathes. Then he puts the back of the shovel to the hole and digs away from it. He'll tell you, with a whimsical touch, that this is to fool the clam. It is really to prevent the edge of the shovel from breaking the shell. From the sides of the cut the long necks of the clams will presently be seen protruding. A pail will be filled in jig time.

The maninoses make a rich stew but the favorite dish is a kind of fritter, tasty as can be. It is something at which no epicure would turn up his nose; but, just the same, it is calculated to make a dyspeptic turn up his toes.

When the mannoe diggers get through their work the flats look like a shell-shocked battlefield; a little disturbance which the tide will presently smooth over.

In summer the crab catchers arrive with nets at the ends of long poles. These are mostly summer visitors. They wade in the water and chase the crabs moving in or out with the tide. Those of them who are expert watermen do their catching from the bow of a boat. The elderly and the lazy catch their crabs with a line from the wall of the bridge. And from the bridge, too, may be caught perch and other small fish.

Where there are men and boys you will find dogs. Dogs have lots of fun at the creek's mouth. Take Bing. Bing is a merger. When you successfully merge a Chesapeake Bay, an English setter, a Scotch collie and a Finnish husky, retaining the best features of each, you have a pretty good dog.

Bing is a close student of natural history. One day at the creek's mouth he frightened a kingfisher. The bird did not fly away. It just sat on a bush on the opposite bank and shrilled at the animal. Perhaps there were baby kingfishers near by.

Bing just stood and watched, his tail moving slowly on the surface of the water. This was unfortunate for Bing. There were crabs in the creek and one of them thought Bing's tail was something good to eat and grabbed it. Crabs are quick to grab things and slow to let them go.

Bing howled and jumped for the bank and started to run. He wanted to put his tail between his legs but every time it moved in that direction he thought better of it. So it went up and down like a pump handle as he traveled. I don't think Bing ever moved faster in his life. I'm quite sure the crab never did.

When the crab decided things had gone far enough it dropped off, but Bing kept going.

What I would like to know is: Which of 'em was the more surprised, the dog or the crab? I don't know the answer. I'm asking you. All I'm saying, as I said at the beginning, is that there is always something to be found at the creek's mouth; and that what you carry away may be something more than a memory.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Stagestruck

SINCLAIR LEWIS has fallen in love—that's what his fifteenth novel, "Bethel Merriday" (Doubleday, $2.50), seems to be saying. He has fallen in love with the theater—summer, stock, road company—and "Bethel Merriday," if far from his most important book, is his happiest.

This is the story of a girl apprentice in the great fraternity of the stage—"the sincerest democracy in the world," Mr. Lewis calls it, "united to create in a troubled world an illusion of strength and beauty and hope and honor and noble wrath that were more real than reality."

Bethel Merriday is no star, and may never be. She is just a stage-struck girl, 21 years old, playing Nora in a college production of "The Doll's House" on May 19, 1938, on page 33; and at the end of the book, on page 389, it is only February 16, 1939—but Bethel is already a trouper. And by that time you know that Mr. Lewis, who has looked with a jaundiced, if basically affectionate eye, upon the world of business, medicine and the church, upon the reform racket and the hotel business and the sons and daughters of Babbitt-Cornplows—that Mr. Lewis loves the world of the theater with a whole-souled devotion that he has never given to any of the various other worlds that he has explored and mapped in that long row of novels which has become so intrinsic a part of our American geography.

Incidentally, following Bethel through the college cities and tank towns of "the road," he has also let himself go in a continental lyricism which you can hardly match in any of his other novels. Consider, for instance, Bethel's awakening to sunsets: "In Connecticut sunsets were usually frail, tranquil, pretty affairs that economically afforded you a couple of strips of pretty crimson and one of old gold, with a good effort in the way of apple-green sky beneath. They were the crisp bacons of sunsets. But these displays in Iowa and Nebraska were Ninth Symphonies, battlepieces, insanities of flame and gold. She discovered a curious rule: A truly great sunset will always be in this form: it portrays a seabound land of burning lava, through which winds a golden river to the bright bays and inlets of a glowing sea."

In the real West, Bethel met a land that, "with its myths and true memories of cowpunchers and John Brown and the Santa Fe Trail and the gold rush and Indian braves, of frontier saloons and railroad builders and two-gun sheriffs, of mountains and ranches and deserts, is one of the five or six romantic districts of the whole world." She returned, "not a Yankee but an American."

THERE IS ROSCOE VALENTINE, who makes his summer theater a racket, charging the bright college boys and girls a minimum of $475 a summer for the privilege of running errands for him; Iris Pentire and Mahala Vale are a pair of cryptic, clinging little gold diggers; Mrs. Boyle is "one of those highly competent English actors who, after working up a hatred for everything British, including fish and chips and the royal family, had come over to America chiefly because they could hate everything in these gangster-infested jungles even more;" Andy Deacon, the society boy turned actor-manager of the road company presenting "Romeo and Juliet," is neither saint nor great actor; and Zed Wintergeist, with whom Bethel Merriday unaccountably falls in love, though an honest actor, is one of the most bumptious and conceited young men who has ever gallumphed through the pages of a Sinclair Lewis novel.

You may never quite believe in the love story of Zed and Bethel, you never have any doubt of Bethel's—and Mr. Lewis'—passionate love for the theater. That is the heart of the book; that gives it its richness and its warmth.

In a foreword, Sinclair Lewis makes, in unusually explicit form, the usual denial that any character in his novel is the portrait of an actual person, that the Nutmeg Players of Point Grampion are drawn from any of his summer experiences, or that the tour of a "Romeo and Juliet" company here chronicled is drawn from the history of his "Angelo Is Twenty-two." Yet one cannot escape the feeling that "Bethel Merriday" is the story of an experience that Mr. Lewis himself has lived. In a sense, he is himself Bethel Merriday. That may explain why her femininity is not wholly convincing, why her role as the good trouper, who gets on so much better with honest guttersnipes than with phoney esthetics, is so triumphant.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Horses, Horses, Horses!"

RACE TRACKS in America will soon be as easy to find as corner cigar stores. New Jersey and New York are the latest States to go for mutuels and "To the Races" signs are getting as common on the highways of this country as cigarette ads.

There are so many tracks operating along the Eastern and Northeastern seaboard from now on that it will be a day's work to analyze the charts and go over the entries.

The man who doesn't think his luck is good in New York can grab a bus to New Jersey, and vice versa. And if he finds himself jinxed there, too, it's a short train or plane trip to tracks in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maryland.

For the past five years there has been so many tracks in America that there have not been enough race horses to fill 'em. The situation will now reach a point at which duplicate mirrors may be necessary to fill the racing card.

Shuttle trains between Jersey and New York, making it possible for a horse to appear in Long Island in the first race and Jersey in the last, are a possibility.

And there will be so many tip sheets, code sheets, "little green cards," "feed box specials" and form sheets flying around this summer that it will look like a blizzard.

For the uninitiated some definitions may be helpful:

Mutuel Machine—A machine which performs the duties of a bookmaker, but which cannot talk back to the customer.

Window—An opening at which the customer presents his money and gets back a check, as at a Chinese laundry. The difference is that at a laundry he gets his shirt back.

Mutuel Ticket—A bingo card with only one number instead of two dozen.

How It Operates—If the horse wins you look through all your pockets for the ticket. You probably won't find it. If you do you present it and collect. The charm of collection under this system is that the man who pays you does not snarl, snap, bite or argue with you in a foreign accent.

Totalizer—A machine which combines the duties of a cash register, a hamburger grinder, a washing machine and an electric sign.

Tote Board—The board which shows you what you get if the horse is willing, if the jockey hasn't been up all night and if the owner isn't betting on something else in the same race.

You'll know all about everything soon. (Note to wives in New Jersey and New York: You'd better get the money for that hat now. Note to installment collectors: It's going to be almost impossible. Note to businessmen: If it isn't one thing it's another.)

Sign observed on the rear of a flivver doing about 60 miles an hour: "Pass Quietly. Driver Asleep."

Russia is said to be about to place 100 military chiefs on trial for what happened in Finland. This means writing "Finish" over their army careers.

Hamlin Garland

By Mary Zirkle

The Man and His Works

IT IS INTERESTING to speculate on the difference it might have made in American letters if young Richard Garland had decided to remain in Boston back in the 1850's instead of following the Erie Canal and the Great Lakes into the wilderness of the Wisconsin coulees. Then Hamlin Garland, his son, might have grown up undivided in his cultural allegiance, and America have lost an historian of those fleeting days in the last third of the century when the middle border was moving constantly westward; when—as he wrote in the slightly oratorical vein he could never entirely shed—"beneath the sunset lay the enchanted land of opportunity."

It is better so, for New England has been rich in historians who have extolled her culture, while all too few of those who lived in that vast region where the fresh sod was being rolled back in long black furrows, and where culture was an individual thing with each family, only hesitatingly pooled and wrought into general customs, have written of it with distinction. The heroics of Minnesota, Iowa, and the Dakota country, being less spectacular than those of the Far West, were long neglected and might have sunk into forgetfulness if Hamlin Garland, striving as a young man to establish himself in the East, had not found that he could never leave his boyhood experiences behind; that for better or for worse the country he had thought to escape followed him and demanded to speak through him to the world.

THE STORY that he had to tell was great enough to test the powers of any writer. His histories of actual people who pushed from one frontier cabin to another, never backtrailing but always faced toward widening horizons, strikes a more responsive chord than any neatly plotted action could in those of us who are at least grandchildren of the middle border; who remember the Chicago Inter-Ocean and have found in our mothers' trunks dog-eared copies of McGuffey's readers and Ray's arithmetic.

A GREAT DEAL of the value of Hamlin Garland's work lies in his ability to be both accurate and fair. He could speak quite without idealization of the mud in the milking yard, of the too-early rising in icy rooms, and the never-ending toil of pioneering, and at the same time remember the golden mists of summer, the wild fowl that delighted him with their beauty, the beckoning of tall grasses on untouched miles of sod, and write: "All the charm and mystery of that prairie world comes back to me."

There were men of small merit on the frontier, but there were also many of Homeric stature and great understanding, and there were the unfailing patience and goodness and generosity of his mother and her friends.

IT IS UPON his middle border books that his fame rests, because in writing of that life he was telling of something that was his own bone and sinew, although he fled from certain of its aspects again and again, only to be drawn back by some haunting promise and find to his disappointment that "Western landmarks are impermanent as fallen leaves. Nothing endures but the sky and the silent waves of the plains." New York and New England were not the prairie, and the prairie was not the East. He could not quite forgive or be reconciled to either. This is a feeling common to many of us who have back-trailed from the border.

There was his cry for social reform, his deep sense of pity and indignation that so much of the pioneer's toil went for nothing, but over all this was his ultimate recognition that much of the difficulty rose from the very urge to move on, to leave what was good for a possible betterment—in the West. The movement was half economic, half mystic, as Garland saw when his father, grown old in pioneering, looked upon the Colorado ranges and cried, "I wish I could have been here before the railroad!"

And that was not all loss, for did not the old folk who had seen it all—the loneliness, the monotony, the drudgery and the disappointments—did they not recall wistfully the "bright and beautiful days when they were young and all the West a land of hope?" When they sang, as the soldiers came marching home in '65:

Then o'er the hills in legions, boys,
Fair freedom's star
Points to the sunset regions, boys,
Ha, ha, ha-ha!

MR. GARNER

Does the introduction of Mr. Farley's hat into the Presidential ring increase or diminish Mr. Garner's opportunity? See Mark Sullivan's analysis of the situation

Farley's Candidacy

By Mark Sullivan

Its Implications For The Democrats

THE FORMAL entry of Mr. James A. Farley makes a definite change in the Democratic Presidential situation. The first thing to be clear about is that Mr. Farley does this "on his own." Suggestions that he might be doing it in understanding with President Roosevelt are quite wrong. Anyone familiar with the conditions of present Washington politics, and especially its personalities and its human relations, will reject utterly any motion that Mr. Farley is doing this in connivance with Mr. Roosevelt, for some purpose or strategy held by both, but not disclosed. There is nothing of that.

Mr. Farley is a man of simple, direct mind. Finesse is foreign to him. His politics is the politics of organization. The politics of subtle maneuver, of contrived appearances, is alien to his nature. His present action is just what it seems to be. So far as he has any inner thought not completely on the surface, it would merely be that if he does not land the Presidential nomination, he would be glad to get the Vice Presidential one. That thought is frequent with practically all candidates in both parties at all times. Quite a number of good judges think Mr. Farley may entertain this notion.

WITH MR. FARLEY in, the field as a whole lies thus:

Mr. Roosevelt is whatever you call it—running, or quietly maneuvering, or subtly inviting, or holding himself open, or being receptive—whatever is the word that describes his equivocal position, his indeed multivocal position.

Vice President Garner is an unqualified candidate. He is running whether Mr. Roosevelt is running or not. And now Mr. Farley is also an unqualified candidate. That makes two of them. That is all the unqualified candidates there are. All the remainder that are candidates at all are "if" candidates. There is only one other of much importance, Mr. Paul McNutt. He is a candidate, provided Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate.

Everybody else that is mentioned is mentioned only. Nobody else is seeking delegates. No one else is saying he is a candidate, except, perhaps, some favorite sons or other persons not formidable at this stage. At a later stage other avowed and formidable candidates may come forward, though with the primaries well under way this does not seem likely.

It should be remembered, however, that when the convention comes, it is quite possible for the nomination to go to someone who has not been in the primaries, and not been an avowed candidate. For example, many good judges think the nominee may be Secretary of State Hull, who declines to encourage any one to put him forward, and who is not in any primary, except that his State, Tennessee, may instruct its delegation for him. Also if Mr. Roosevelt dominates the convention and does not want the nomination himself, he may try to throw it to someone not in the primaries.

MR. FARLEY will be a highly important figure. This will be true regardless of how many States he enters, or how many instructed delegates he gets. So far he has entered only Massachusetts. Whether he enters other States, and what others, will depend upon his own political judgment, than which there is none better. Mr. Farley, we can be sure, knows exactly what he is doing. Much of his strength will lie in his personal relation to the delegates, and to the local Democratic organizations in the States and counties. Mr. Farley knows the personnel of the party leadership, and of the force of party workers throughout the country, as he knows his own subordinates in the Postoffice Department, almost as he knows his own family. They all like and respect him. Most of the local and State party chiefs, looking for a guide to their own course, would rather find what Mr. Farley wishes, and do it, than follow any other leadership.

This does not deny that Mr. Roosevelt, if he continues his present apparent receptiveness, will accumulate a very large number of delegates, perhaps a majority, willing to give him the nomination if he wants it. They cannot well help themselves. The convention must indorse and praise and point with pride to Mr. Roosevelt's record the past eight years. Not to do that would be unthinkable—every party always does it, even when the record was not much to brag about. And once the convention has indorsed Mr. Roosevelt's record, and is then faced by a demand that they renominate him—in that situation it would be awkward for them to refuse. Probably if Mr. Roosevelt demands the nomination, he can get it.

But if Mr. Roosevelt tries to swing the nomination to someone else, some 100 per cent New Dealer, such as, for example, Attorney General Jackson—in that situation Mr. Roosevelt would learn an ancient truth of politics, that the man never lived who, thus situated, could throw all his personal strength to another. Once Mr. Roosevelt tries to name the candidate (other than himself), he will have to deal with Mr. Farley, deal with him as an equal. Mr. Farley, combined with Mr. Garner, could probably command half the convention. Undoubtedly they would not consent to the nomination of a 100 per cent New Dealer. They would, however, with great pleasure, agree to a compromise.

THE COMPROMISE most often mentioned is Mr. Hull. Mr. Hull would be a tribute to Mr. Roosevelt's pride, because he has been head of his Cabinet. He would be a tribute to the extremely important foreign policy which both shared. At the same time Mr. Hull would be satisfactory to the regular Democrats. He has not been a blatant New Dealer, in any sense that offends the Democratic regulars.

And if it should turn out, as a detail of the compromise, that Mr. Farley would get the Vice Presidential nomination, that would be no surprise.

to new activity and stimulated third-term advocates to search for a political offset.

Garner managers planned to launch a national radio campaign, placing Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, ardent New Dealer and Roosevelt supporter, on a national network tonight with a plea for Garner's nomination.

Draft movement sponsors turned their attention to Roosevelt slates entered in key primary States, convinced they must roll up huge majorities April 2 in Wisconsin and elsewhere to give life to the movement.

Van Nuys Praises Farley

Van Nuys, in suggesting that Farley relinquish his national committee chairmanship, praised the Postmaster General and declared that "if nominated and elected he would make a very acceptable President, carrying into the White House a lot of good common sense and stability.

"I am very fond of Jim Farley and I could support him as a nominee very gladly," said Van Nuys. "But I do not think it is fair to the other candidates that he retain his position as national chairman, capitalizing on the prestige which that office entails.

"In my opinion, it would be a very bad precedent and it is not in keeping with the spirit of the legislation (Hatch law) recently passed by Congress. I believe this position will be adopted by Mr. Farley himself. He would make a world of friends if he would step down as chairman."

Friends Doubt He'll Quit

Friends of Farley have said privately they thought he had no intention of leaving the national committee and they saw no reason why he should. Backers of other candidates at the Capitol have said they thought the question should be raised in view of the traditionally neutral position of the national committee in advance of actual nomination of candidates.

Asked the question at a Thursday press conference, Secretary of Interior Ickes, leading draft movement sponsor, replied that "Jim can be depended on to do the right thing."

With April's round of State primaries only ten days away, Republican candidates intensified vote bushbeating tours or turned, like Garner campaigners, to the radio.

Having declined to stump Wisconsin against New York District Attorney Dewey, because of Senate duties, Senator Vandenberg scheduled a network address from Washington on Monday night.

Dewey Schedules Speeches

Dewey scheduled speeches in St. Louis Wednesday and in Chicago Thursday. Then he will invade Wisconsin for a last-minute stump-speaking week-end before testing his strength in that State's primary polls against Vandenberg.

Busiest campaigner in the Senate's Republican contingent, Senator Taft, of Ohio, was in Louisville Ky., last night; and will speak in Danville, Ky., today; in Philadelphia Monday, and in Newport News, Va., next Saturday.

Encouraged by his strong primary showing in New Hampshire primaries, Senator Bridges, of New Hampshire, only recently returned from a long Western tour, was hardly less active. He will speak in Cleveland today; in Chapel Hill, N. C., tomorrow, and in Hackensack, N. J., on April 4.

Walsh to Manage Edison

Other developments:

Secretary of the Navy Edison, who Wednesday announced he would run for New Jersey's Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said that Arthur Walsh, executive vice president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., would manage his campaign. Edison previously received the indorsement of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City.

Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, withdrew as a candidate for delegate-at-large from Kansas to the Republican National Convention because of his membership on the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee. At the same time he criticized what he termed "the outrageous or coercive patronage practices that have been carried on by the Landon-Ratner organization."

Chairman Gillette, of the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee, said agents of the committee were now in Kansas investigating complaints that State patronage was being used to influence choice of delegates to the Republican convention.

Allen said, will be withdraw his resignation.

An early appointment was predicted meanwhile at the District Building because of the probability that Commissioner Hazen, who is at Doctors Hospital, may be required to rest for several weeks.

Allen to Leave April 15

As Allen is planning to leave his office on April 15, the District may be left with only one active Commissioner, Col. David McCoach, jr., if a new Commissioner is not appointed.

Sefton Darr, past president of the District Bar Association; Corporation Counsel Seal, Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, and Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, have been mentioned most frequently by members of Congress since the announcement of Allen's resignation.

Arthur D. Gray, president of the Washington Council of National Negro Congress, yesterday sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking that a Negro be appointed to succeed Allen.

U. S. Reports Sharp Drop in Citizens Living in Europe

Slight gain in the number of American citizens residing in Canada, Central and South America, and a sharp decline of the American population in Europe, were disclosed yesterday in the first State Department enumeration since the European war's outbreak.

The following figures show the relative changes in European neutral and belligerent countries on January 1, 1940, the first figure, and a year earlier:

Great Britain, 7,524 and 10,522; Czechoslovakia, 485 and 3,793; France, 5,927 and 12,964; Germany, 5,274 and 5,787; Ireland, 1,960 and 2,555; Italy, 19,561 and 23,330; Portugal, 5,891 and 5,127; Soviet Russia, 2,093 and 5,127.

For all Europe, the decline was from 84,603 to 63,235. Canada increased from 175,686 to 181,172; Mexico and Central America, from 21,515 to 23,881; South America, from 15,772 to 16,502.

hours while an intense debate raged around proposals affecting the sugar industry.

Senator Byrd made two unsuccessful efforts to limit the size of benefit payments made to sugar producers for restricting their production. Pointing out that at least one large-scale sugar grower received more than $500,000 in benefits, Byrd asked the Senate to limit the payments to $5,000, but before a vote was taken he raised the maximum to $10,000.

He was defeated, 46 to 23, and when he tried again with a $50,000 limitation, he was turned down, 37 to 27.

Denouncing the "excessive benefits" paid under the sugar program, Byrd shouted that "the most powerful lobby in Washington is the sugar lobby."

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, tried vainly to persuade the Senate to act on a proposal that would protect sugar producers who exceeded their acreage allotments last fall from losing all their crop-reduction benefits. The Senate refused to consider the measure by a vote of 38 to 28.

Illinois Suit Charges Politics In State Jobs

Springfield, Ill., March 22 (AP).—A Republican candidate in the Illinois primary campaign filed today an injunction suit to tie up $74,000,000 of highway funds, charging that "thousands" of political workers have been given State jobs.

Representative Arnold L. Lund, running for lieutenant governor, named Gov. Horner and two other Democratic officials in the legal action.

"The present Democratic administration has been hiring thousands of unnecessary employes during the last few weeks," Lund said in a statement. "These employes are obviously politicians who will do no work except . . . in the interest of certain Democratic candidates."

Va. Road League To Continue Work, Board Decides

Richmond, Va., March 22 (AP).—Lee Long, of Dante, president of the Citizens Road League of Virginia, announced after a directors' meeting here today the board "definitely determined" to carry on its activities for improvement of Virginia highways.

He did not refer specifically to the proposal which went before the past two sessions of the General Assembly for a constitutional amendment to prohibit road fund diversions, but his statement was taken to mean continued support for the plan. It met defeat both times in the House of Delegates after passing the Senate.

The league's sources of revenue were investigated recently by the General Assembly.

Public Defender Bill Hearings Open Thursday

Hearings will open before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee next Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock on the Capper bill to set up the office of a public defender in the United States District Court.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, is chairman of the subcommittee, which also will consider a companion bill to establish public defenders in all United States District Courts outside Washington.

The Capper bill was revived after the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia had criticized the defense of a defendant in a murder case by inexperienced counsel assigned to him.

Wedge Shoes, Throwback to Slippers Of Gaby Deslys, Fashion's Favorite

'Lifties' Comfortable Also Makes Foot Look Shorter

The Post Fashion Editor

"As comfortable as an old shoe," "solid comfort" and "feeling footloose and fancy free" are terms of endearment being applied to this season's wedge shoe, which looks as if it were really here to stay. Not only are the Nation's canniest shoe buyers and designers glowingly enthusiastic about the "Liftie" shoe, but women customers have taken wholeheartedly to the clumsy looking but easy fitting wedge.

It was almost four years ago when the first platformed shoe appeared in this country, rather heavily designed by an Italian boot craftsman who was responsible for shoeing the smartest feet of the Riviera that season. Worn by only intrepid crusaders at first, the wedge has been maligned because it too closely resembled a "cloven hoof," a "club foot," etc., but the worst enemies of the 1940 wedge can scarcely call it an uncomfortable shoe. The Liftie is, according to those who have sampled it, the most comfortable shoe ever made, lighter on the foot than a bedroom slipper, but far more flattering since it optically foreshortens size 6-B to 5-quad.

The wedge isn't really a 4-year-old because Gaby Deslys, famous 20 years ago for her light step across Europe's music halls, visited Washington even then with the request that she be given "3-inch soled shoes with web-footed dimensions." As far as that goes, the Chinese got onto the duck and geese webbed-foot idea centuries ago, but it wasn't until the cork-soled beach shoes were "created" three or four years ago that this origin was recalled. Lifties now have platforms from an inch to 3 inches in height and are in every conceivable fabric, leather, skin and combination, with accessories and bags of identical material and color.

POLKA DOT PLAUDITS—These buoyant "Lifties" speak for themselves with gayety and verve. In red or blue and white dotted crepe and snowy kid straps. Fetching with all white this summer. There are handsome polka dotted handbags to match.

PATENT PRAISE—Never smarter than at present, patent shoes of every description are stealing the footlights. They are bright and shining successes, especially when stitched all over in black with white or Blue Jacket blue with lighter stitching.

SUMATRA SNAKE—Sinuous snakeskin in the most beautiful stained glass colors imaginable, clear and translucent. These Lifties are in red and bottle green in patchwork pattern, just as smart in beige and brown or in two tones of blue.

Dismayed by Husband's Lies, Evasions and Habit Of 'Playing Sick,' Bride Asks What to Do

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young married woman, employed by a local firm at a meager salary. My husband also has a minor job with a local establishment. We were married about five months ago, after having been engaged for 13 months. Our marriage climaxed a romance that began more than two years ago.

Now, I find myself concerned with three "behavior problems" presented by my husband. First, he has "fibbed" to me several times concerning money matter, personal indebtedness, etc. Secondly, he "plays sick" with a "stomach disorder," (to use his words), in order to excuse himself from going to certain social functions with me, and also in order to stay home from work, occasionally. (I fear this neglect of his work may cost him his job, eventually, if he continues to "lay off" when badly needed during certain hours of the day.)

Thirdly, he has broken several promises to me—the principal one being his promise to go to church with me. Once, he invited company for Sunday dinner to get out of going to church, and other times he has "played sick," or won his way with honeyed words or other such "finesse." (Sometimes, too, he pretends that his feelings are hurt if I become too insistent.)

Please tell me, Miss Haworth, am I too "easy" with him? Do I love him too much? Or am I just "chicken hearted?" Whatever advice you may give will be followed, of that you may be sure. For I realize I need instruction from a neutral source.

DISAPPOINTED BRIDE.

Stop Pussyfooting; Demand Cooperation

DEAR D. B.: It would be unfair to hold you to blame for your husband's poor sportsmanship. Since you married him, it is natural to assume that you love him greatly. It is equally logical to suppose you would have expected him to be a candidly cooperative partner in the marriage relationship. It is understandable that you would have wrangled affectionately with him about his baffling shortcomings, at first, and that you would have hoped against hope—until finally convinced to the contrary—that indulgence and cajolery might gradually win him over to a better performance that could really be called "team work."

So let's dismiss your tentatively entertained self-accusations, that you may have been, up to now, "too easy" with him; or that you "love him too much;" or that you are "just chicken-hearted." You have behaved in the manner of any fondly deluded bride, who clings (in the face of mounting disappointment) to the notion that her husband is capable of being an honorable, dependable and congenial mate. But the time has come to cast aside the veils of roseate illusion, and unflinchingly confront your husband with the facts as you see them.

In lying about money matters, he is making it impossible for you to budget your joint income to mutual advantage. In lying at all, he is betraying piecemeal that reciprocal confidence and respect on which the marriage undoubtedly was founded, and which must be honorably perpetuated if the marriage is to thrive. In piling up inconvenient, unnecessary and excessive "sick leave" from his job, he is falling down on man's prime responsibility of promoting economic security for his family.

In evading social engagements to the extent that you are obliged to go out alone socially, he is gradually destroying whatever bond of comradeship you two possessed as sweethearts; and, too, he is wantonly sacrificing your happiness and the good will of others (an invaluable asset in emergency), merely to indulge his indolence. His behavior in regard to church attendance is unmanly to the point of being despicable. Either he should go, because hep romised, or because it would add to your happiness; or he should retract the promise altogether. I consider it shameful that he should keep you in constant uncertainty, while he resorts to one white-livered subterfuge after another.

My advice to you is to present your bill of complaints to your husband, without apology or pussyfooting. I think you would be justified in requiring of him (1) complete honesty regarding finances; (2) regular application to his work, which means no more absentee "bellyaching" just because he's "so tired of it all;" (3) some definite agreement concerning joint social engagements, so that you will know how many such engagements to make, on a weekly basis—and with what groups, persons or couples (that are mutually acceptable) to make them, and (4) a deliberately reconsidered, binding, "Yes" or "No," in regard to church going.

If he refuses to treat your proposition with the sincerity it deserves; if, for instance, he poohpoohs your indictment or requirements, or seeks to evade the issue with "honeyed words," or tries to intimidate you with a display of temper—then I think you might as well pack your belongings and pull up stakes. That will convince him, as nothing else could, that you mean business by your ultimatum. If he sees his marriage falling to pieces around his head, and still cannot rise to the emergency by developing enough character to save it—you may know that he just isn't "partnership" material, and the sooner you have done with him, the better for you.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Diosa Costello Eats Raw Eggs For Energy

By Ida Jean Kain

THANK goodness for friends who get around! One of them tipped us off about Diosa Costello, the fiery Puerto Rican, whose energetic dancing is the eighth wonder of Manhattan. Said he, logically: "Anyone who can keep up that pace is bound to have a schedule for healthful living that should make the average woman open her eyes."

Our acquaintance with Miss Costello made us open our eyes! She has enough vivacity and personality for three women! It would be understatement to say that she radiates vitality.

Eight Appearances Weekly

She scintillates with it! And apparently she does not know the meaning of "tired." She makes eight appearances a week in a Broadway show—and after the night performance she hurries over to the supper club where she has another dancing engagement.

She looks so fresh and beautiful that nobody would ever suspect she had just finished a hard day's work.

And she puts so much energy into her dancing that every now and then some hopeful manufacturer of vitamin products is struck by the idea that she must have been taking them by the carton, and sends a scout around to inquire into her food habits.

DIOSA COSTELLO

Her platform on calories is perfectly clear. Says she "We Latins like three big meals a day, with a little something about 4 o'clock, after the siesta, and again in the evening after dinner. Most Latin meals are fattening.

"No matter what else we have to eat, the meal is incomplete without beans and rice. We have both at the same meal and eat them like the North Americans eat meat."

Three Eggs for Breakfast

For breakfast, our exponent of energy usually orders three raw eggs. Sometimes four. She admits that "I don't really like raw eggs, but they supply energy—and I need it."

She doesn't like vegetables, either, but she eats them in large quantities "because they are full of vitamins and minerals and those things are very good for one." That shows the lengths to which a career girl will go when serious about her career.

Does Exercises Daily to Rumba Or Congo Music

Sleep she does like and regularly gets 10 hours at night and often more. She says she loves to sleep, but that "at the same time I hate to do it! I'm always afraid I might be missing something!"

Her figure is beautiful: Height, 5 feet 2 inches; weight, 110 pounds; bust, 34 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 36 inches. She considers herself too thin. "We Latins like women plump," she says, "You like women thin—even to have thin legs! We think it is very nice to have fat legs."

Solution Offered

But in spite of her own inclination to discourage American women from getting any thinner, Miss Costello offers a solution to weight problems:

"If they would make a habit of doing exercises, every day, to rumba or conga music, they would find themselves exercising furiously! The rhythm does that! They would soon be what you call streamlined! Dancing is even better—anyone who dances every day never has to diet."

There may be something in her theory. Certainly, what the average woman needs is more exercise—much more!

Baked Ham

A Traditional Easter Food

Love's labor is not lost in the baking of present day hams. The packers have so perfectly processed them and given instructions for baking that it takes little effort and time. The following are directions for baking the hams that come in the blue and white wrapper.

Wrap ham loosely in the inner wrapper or in clean wrapping paper. Place fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Use no water. Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees F. For a half ham, allow about 22 minutes per pound. For a whole ham, see schedule of cooking times attached to each ham. If the ham is taken from refrigerator and is cold, increase the cooking time about 5 minutes per pound. If a meat thermometer is used, bake to 150 degrees F., internal temperature. Remove paper and skin and score fat. Glaze with a syrup made of 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup honey and ½ cup orange juice. (Honey may be omitted.) Brown in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for about 15 minutes (to 162 degrees F., internal temperature).

To prepare the type of ham that has been processed for a quick serve, place the fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Heat in a slow oven, 325 degrees, about 10 minutes per pound for a 10 to 14 pound ham; 8 minutes per pound for a ham 16 pounds or over, and 14 minutes per pound for a half a ham. Remove shank skin. Glaze and brown in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., about 15 minutes. (See glaze recipe above.) If ham is taken directly from refrigerator and is well chilled, increase the heating time about 5 minutes per pound.

Copy Writing Self-Taught

Writing advertising copy is one of the most interesting professions which girls share with men today. It is one of the best paid, too, with many opportunities in advertising agencies, department stores and numerous other business enterprises.

If you have a fondness for words, a spark of imagination, there is no reason why you can't succeed in advertising when you know methods used by successful writers. And these methods you can become acquainted with in our simple home course.

Suppose you are asked by your department store to write about a dress. You ask yourself these questions, jot down the answers.

Its use? It's a dress for daytime wear. It's made of—? Rayon crepe in beige or bluebell—with square neck, full skirt. Who uses it? Girls in business, women when shopping, lunching. Why buy it now? Its present low price.

These points you arrange in logical order and—letting your enthusiasm bubble—you write: "A smarter dress we've never seen at this price! Of rayon crepe, with a becoming square neck, a full flaring skirt—to make you look your prettiest when lunching, shopping—at business. $11.95—made to sell at $14.95."

Other kinds of copy you approach in much the same way.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How To Write Advertising," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

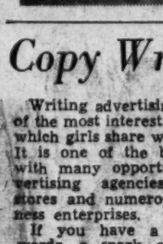
A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Loma Williams, Texas Socialite, Weds Band Leader

New York, March 22.

ONE of the strangest phenomena in New York life is the attraction which so-called "society girls" find in the leaders of dance bands. Two years ago the good-looking Mimi Baker was reported to have an enormous crush on the blond Bobby Parks, then waving his baton over the orchestra at the Stork Club. Whether this was true or not, Miss Baker was dragged off on a round-the-world cruise by her mamma and that was that. The beautiful Baker later married one of the rich Topping boys.



ALICE HUGHES

The beautiful Martha Stephenson is hitched legally to the popular Hal Kemp, and Bernice Smith was properly married to Eddie Le Baron. Both these girls belonged to the so-called social gang, and up to now their marriages have been very pleasant. Now, all of a sudden, comes the marriage of Loma Williams, a great girl in the State of Texas, to Everett Hoagland, who at the moment is conducting the band at the Empire Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Miss Williams was a headliner in the Lone Star State, and one of her sisters is Mrs. Amon Carter, wife of the Fort Worth publisher. But did this marriage to Hoagy cause a family tragedy? Not a bit of it. Everyone seemed pleased.

Loma, at the moment, is extremely happy. She likes the boys in the band and is friendly with their wives. She calls her husband "Pappy," and now follows his band wherever it is booked. Loma says "I have always liked to go places. The only difference now is that I used to pick where I was going, but now I merely go where Pappy goes. That makes life easy." Looking over the gang of band leaders' wives, I now find they are a happy lot. So what?

glamour girl of the local cafe society, has somewhat retired from the picture here, resting with her grandma in the Bahamas. Meanwhile, her first boy friend, Billy Livingstone, made a dash at the movies so far unsuccessful, but is now in line for a new West Indian club scheduled to open here April 1, under the auspices of George Raft, the current swain of Norma Shearer. This merely goes to show what happens to the quondam boy friends of quondam glamour girls.

Our flower show has run to its usual success. Darling Helen Hayes, the actress, took a prize with her coral sweet pea with a brown edge, and Osa Johnson, the African explorer, did very well with the same bloom which is dubbed clear flame. My old neighbor J. P. Morgan, whose specialty on his Long Island estate is roses, usually takes about 20 blue ribbons with that sort of flower.

Blue-Green Hats Popular for Men

Colors are making real news in men's hats this spring, and chief among the newcomers is blue-green. This color harmonizes with the blue-green clothing so much in demand, and equally well with gray or soft brown materials. Then, too, we have the blue-gray and the green-gray, both of which are already proving extremely popular. Covert color, khaki and olive, which might be called "tan-gray-green," are gaining steadily.

Joyous Easter to Open A Busy 'Little Season'

Mrs. George Thorpe to Give Luncheon Honoring Robert Skinners; 200 Expected To Attend Party at Mrs. Edward McLean's

Easter promises to be one of the gayest days, socially speaking, in several weeks. Many luncheons tomorrow will launch the post-Lenten "little season," which should be an unusually busy one this year.

Entertaining at luncheon tomorrow for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Skinner is Mrs. George Thorpe. Mr. Skinner at one time was United States Ambassador to Turkey. Previously he had served as Minister to Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, and Minister to Greece. He was commissioned by the United States Government under President Theodore Roosevelt to negotiate a preferential trade treaty with Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia.

Incidentally, the late Col. Thorpe, husband of the hostess, commanded the Marine escort across Africa for the expedition in connection with the Abyssinian trade treaty.

Among the guests at the luncheon will be Ralph Totten, former United States Minister to South Africa, who headed a special mission to Abyssinia in 1926. There will be 14 in the company tomorrow.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Thorpe will be hostess at tea in honor of Mrs. Herbert Sparrow, whose engagement to Paul Gripon recently was announced. M. Gripon was formerly attached to the office of the Naval Attache in the French Embassy here, but is now in France. No exact date has been set for the wedding. M. Gripon is a retired officer in the French naval reserve.

200 to Attend McLean Fete

THE Easter luncheon every year is Mrs. Edward Beale McLean's, who will entertain again today at Friendship. About 200 are expected to attend, among them many out-of-towners. Among the latter are Miss Evalyn McLean, daughter of the hostess, who will come down from New York for the party. With a chaperone, she has been making her home in Manhattan while studying designing, in which she is particularly talented.

Mrs. McLean's elder son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Mclean, will also be on hand. They recently returned on the liner Santa Paula from a stay in Bermuda, where they had a house for the season. Though Mr. and Mrs. McLean make their home in New York, they visit the Capital frequently and are always widely entertained during their stays here.

Friendship has been the scene of many a famous party, though this is the first large one to be held there for almost a year. Mrs. McLean did not give her famous New Year's ball this season, which has always been the most lavish event of the Christmas season. However, local society is delighted that she went ahead with her Easter luncheon, which is a tradition here. The guests always include leading Cabinet members, Senators, Representatives and diplomats.

Next Sunday Mrs. McLean will be hostess at a large dinner for more than a hundred women of the press.

Vandenbergs Entertain Family

Several members of the Congressional set are having family reunions over Easter. Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg have been joined by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bailey, jr., and arriving today are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pfeiffer. Mrs. Bailey formerly was Mrs. Barbara Vandenberg Knight, and Mrs. Pfeiffer formerly - as Betty Vandenberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, who were married in Washington during the winter, flew here as a surprise to the Senator on his fifty-ninth birthday, which was yesterday. Mrs. Vandenberg entertained at a dinner for him last evening. This also was a surprise. The party took place in their apartment at the Wardman Park.

Hosts at dinner tonight will be Representative and Mrs. William Brown, of Maryland, who are entertaining in honor of the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Horinouchi. The party will be a small, informal one.

With Representative Byron for Easter week-end are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Winebrenner, of Philadelphia, who will join them in a family dinner tomorrow.

Mrs. Trentham And Daughter Arrive in U. S.

Husband Is Former Financial Counselor Of British Embassy

After one of the roughest crossings of the season, Mrs. E. Noel R. Trentham and her 1-year-old daughter arrived in New York on the liner Lancastria on Thursday. They were met at the pier by Mr. Trentham, former financial counselor of the British Embassy here and now acting deputy comptroller of the British War Purchasing Commission in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Trentham made many friends in Washington before Mr. Trentham was called to Berlin to serve as financial counselor of the British Embassy there. He sailed for Canada shortly after war broke out, and Mrs. Trentham went to stay with friends in the English countryside. Her baby daughter, incidentally, was named after Miss Dudley Harmon, of Washington.

Another passenger on the Lancastria was Simon Elwes, the famous British portrait painter who has frequently been in Washington. He is on six months' leave from military service in England.

Beatrice Smith, E.P. Hinkel Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Philip Hinkel, jr., who were married Wednesday, March 6, will make their home in Washington after a honeymoon in the West Indies.

The bride, the former Miss Beatrice Evelyn Smith, of Washington and Memphis, Tenn., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowers Smith, of Memphis. Mr. Hinkel is the son of Mrs. Edwin Philip Hinkel, of Washington.

They were married in the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Baltimore. The Rev. Thomas L. Farrell, a former classmate of the bridegroom at Gonzaga High, officiated. Miss Dorothy Hare, of Washington, was maid of honor, and Dr. Alfred E. Brigulio, of this city, was best man.

The bride, a graduate of Tennessee State Teachers College, was at one time secretary to former Senator George Berry, of Tennessee, and later served in the office of Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War.

Ruth O'Day Boyd And Alan Lerner To Wed in June

Miss Ruth O'Day Boyd, niece of Representative Caroline O'Day, will be married in June to Alan Jay Lerner, now a senior at Harvard. Announcement of their engagement was made yesterday by Miss Boyd's mother, Mrs. Victor Ridder, of New York, and Mr. Ridder. Mr. Lerner is the son of Mrs. Edith A. Lerner, of New York, and J. J. Lerner, of the Waldorf-Astoria.

The prospective bride is a daughter of the late William B. Boyd, former publisher of the Daily Home News in New Brunswick, N. J. She is a granddaughter of the late Daniel O'Day, former vice president of the Standard Oil Co., and was graduated from Todhunter School in New York.

Mr. Lerner prepared for college at Bedale's School, in Petersfield, Hampshire, England, and at the Choate School in Connecticut. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding Club at Harvard.

Mrs. Smith Fetes Mrs. W. O. Douglas At Luncheon

Mrs. William O. Douglas was ranking guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Bruce Smith at the 1925 F Street Club. Covers were laid for eight.

The company included Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Mrs. Samuel O. Clark, Mrs. Wesley Sturges, Mrs. Bulkley Griffen, Mrs. Raymond Clapper and Mrs. David Cushman Coyle.

Mrs. Smith will give another luncheon today at the F street club. The ranking guest will be Mrs. James M. Slattery, wife of the Senator from Illinois.

Crowded Calendar Bars First Lady's South Dakota Trip

In answer to an invitation from Representative Francis Case, of South Dakota, and W. F. Thomas, director of the Black Hills Roundup at Belle Fourche, S. Dak., Mrs. Roosevelt said she hoped some day to visit that State, the only one in the Union where she has not spent any extensive time. She was once there for a few hours when her plane made a forced landing, but that was all.

Representative Case and Mr. Thomas had written Mrs. Roosevelt, inviting her to attend the roundup July 4. She replied yesterday that she would be unable to go to Belle Fourche then because her schedule called for spending that day at the Roosevelt estate in Hyde Park.

"I hope," she added, "that some day I will have an opportunity to make a real visit in South Dakota."

Parties Center About Carnival Of Skaters

Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor To Be Among Those Entertaining Tonight

Several parties center about the carnival of the Washington Figure Skating Club, which opens this afternoon at Riverside Stadium and runs through Monday, to benefit the Washington Society for the Blind.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Grosvenor will entertain a party of friends tonight at the performance, and afterward there will be a "Dutch treat" supper dance at the Congressional Country Club for the skaters and their friends.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor's young daughter, Miss Helen Rowland Grosvenor, who is home from St. Margaret's School in Waterbury, Conn., for the Easter holidays, will give a supper for some of her friends before the performance. Among her guests will be Miss Polly Blodgett, of Boston, the clever young skater who is among the "added attractions" at the show. Miss Blodgett was presented to society two years ago in Boston and is considered one of the most outstanding young skaters in the country.

Hazel Franklin, 18-year-old English star, was guest of Lord Lothian at tea on Thursday afternoon at the British Embassy. Another skater is Miss Maddy Horn, of Beaver Dam, Wis., the only woman member of the United States Olympic skating team which would compete if the Olympics were held in Finland this year.

George Snell is serving as chairman of the ice carnival. Mrs. Melville Grosvenor is vice president of the Washington Figure Skating Club and has been very active in drilling the amateurs in rehearsals. Dr. Christopher Meyer is president of the club.

Among residents of Washington who will be busy behind the scenes making up the performers in the carnival are Miss Peggy Loeffler and Mrs. Evatt Barnum.

Mrs. Beard Says Women Share in Education

Noted Historian Addresses Dinner of Delta Kappa Gamma

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Women teachers have too little knowledge of what they have actually contributed to education and democracy, Mrs. Beard, noted historian and head of the World Center for Women's Archives, told members of Delta Kappa Gamma Society last night.

Here from New York to address the banquet following the first day's sessions of their eleventh annual convention, Mrs. Beard emphasized the importance of preserving records which reveal the valuable contributions of women in all fields of endeavor.

"In our New World, we are so separated by the wide Atlantic from our deeper past that we lightly assume that our America gave women their first approach to learning. This is because we are prone to think of education only in terms of public schools. In truth, women have always shared in the education deemed the highest education in all places and times, and have always contributed to the theory and practices of education in all times and places," declared Mrs. Beard.

Representatives From Each State Talk

The banquet was held at Wardman Park Hotel, headquarters of the convention.

Miss Margaret Patterson, principal of Fillmore School and president of Alpha Chapter, presided, and Dr. Margaret Stroh, of Wilson Teachers College, general chairman of the convention, was toastmistress. She called on the presidents from each State, or their representatives, for brief greetings. Those who responded were Mrs. Edward E. Clack, of Texas; Miss Ottie Huff, Alabama; Miss Ethel A. Justin, representing Mrs. Julia Black, of Oklahoma; Mrs. Ella Moore Detherage, Missouri; Dr. May A. Allen, Louisiana; Miss Alice C. Dempster, Mississippi; Miss Ruth Fitzgerald, North Carolina; Mrs. Marianne Geyer, New Mexico; Miss Marnetta Souder, Virginia; Miss Mattie Bryant, representing Dr. Flora M. Gillentine, Arkansas; Miss Rose Parker, representing Dr. Emma Reinhardt, Illinois; Mrs. Nancye Rickard, Florida; Dr. Stroh, District of Columbia; Miss Tommie Reynolds, Tennessee; Mrs. John R. Murdock, representing Dr. Vera E. Gibson, Arizona; Miss Elsa Brookfield, New York.

Others were Miss Ella Blunk, Nebraska; Miss Bessie May Allen, Wisconsin; Miss Edna Murphy, Minnesota; Mrs. Nina M. Goltry, Iowa; Miss Maude Gorham, representing Miss Helen E. Elcock, Kansas; Dr. M. Madilene Veverka, California; Miss Melville Doughty, Georgia; Mrs. Hildegard Sweet, Colorado; Miss Vesta Watson, Pennsylvania; Dr. Louise R. Heath, Maryland; Miss Lillian Logan, Kentucky; Miss Margaret L. White, Ohio; Mrs. Alma L. Koza, representing Miss Flora Drake, Indiana; Miss Martha Thomas, South Carolina; Miss Ruth A. Barber, representing Miss Effie Downer, Michigan; Dr. Vera Butler, Connecticut; Dr. Sara M. Holbrook, representing Miss Mary Jean Simpson, Vermont.

Yesterday's convention sessions were devoted to reports of State and national officers. A feature of this morning's meeting will be a ceremony honoring pioneers in education. This is an annual ceremony in which little figurines (dolls), dressed to represent outstanding women educators from the 35 States, are presented, with achievements recounted. There are among them women who have founded colleges, established mountain or prairie schools or made other contributions to education. Each year a new name is added by each State chapter. This year, the District society is presenting Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, with Miss Hazel Nielson reviewing her accomplishments.

Tonight Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, who will be guest speaker at the closing banquet of the convention, also will be initiated as an honorary member of Delta Kappa Gamma. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle will be initiated as an honorary State member.

Scouts to Fix Up Rockville Room For Children

Troop 75 Finds Project More Exciting Than Easter Egg-Rolling

More exciting than an egg-rolling to the members of Girl Scout Troop 75 is their own program for this Easter Monday. They will furnish a children's room for the Montgomery County Social Service League at its headquarters in Rockville, Md.

The girls who meet at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, under the leadership of Mrs. Carl I. Aslakson, this season have been devoting themselves to a project called "My Community." They have endeavored to learn how many services the community provides and how they can help to make them run more smoothly.

With a study of the history of Washington and of Chevy Chase, as a background, they have made visits to a public library, where one of the librarians talked to them, and to a newspaper. At their meetings they have had as guest speakers a policeman, a social service worker and a historian. They have learned about health protection through the street cleaning, Pure Food and Drug Act, garbage collection and the water and milk supplies. The privilege of freedom of worship has been stressed and the obligation to aid the less fortunate.

In connection with the last phase of their study, they decided to make a practical demonstration of helpfulness. Learning that children often spend several hours at the headquarters of the Social Service League while aid is being secured for their parents or while they are awaiting placement in foster homes, the girls decided to furnish a room for them.

They collected chairs, small tables, a blackboard, bookcase, lamp, rug, pictures, books and toys, and have been busy for several weeks, repairing and painting the furniture and framing the pictures. The tables and chairs are a cheerful Chinese lacquer red. The furnishings will all combine to provide a pleasant place for the boys and girls to wait while efforts are under way to work out a happier future for them.

The formal presentation will be made by the Girl Scouts at Rockville on Monday morning at 10:30.

Mrs. Aslakson, the former Marian Corbin, is their leader and a charter member of the first Girl Scout troop in America, started March 12, 1912, by Juliette Lowe, in Savannah, Ga. The lieutenants of the troop are Mrs. Paul Lindsey and Mrs. Robert Farrington.

The troop members include Anne Belser, Anne Brooks, Barbara Carpenter, Natalie Dann, Dorothy Earle, June Farrington, Peggy Garner, Almiria Head, Betty Horgan, Barbara, Nancy and Dorothy Jacobson; Helen Kime, Elizabeth Knox, Charlotte Leedy, Priscilla, Prudence and Susanna Lindseu; Marion Maddox, Home and Lydia McAllister, Carter Prescott, Marguerite Savage, Carolyn Tolan and Helen Wills.

These are the topics pictured for you in The Washington Post's "Our Town in Pictures" section this Sunday. This is the first of three sections on Washington churches.

Following the pattern of the school sections, which proved to be so popular, each of these church sections will consist of eight pages of pictures and explanatory reading matter.

The first section, to appear in tomorrow's Post, will include these subjects, among others:

Services—The religious services of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths will be shown in this picture section.

Sunday School—Pictures of activities in a modern Sunday School and a personality sketch of Dr. Charles Ressner, president of the Sunday School Association. Also a Men's Bible Class, to show adult religious education.

Architecture—Striking photographs reveal the beauty of many of Washington's churches.

Other topics pictured in this section are the church as a social center, the work of women's church groups, and the spring styles worn by Washington women on Palm Sunday.

You'll enjoy this picture story of the churches!

Levy Would Start On 2-Cent Sales, Officials Discover; Amendment Sought

A "joker" in the Nichols sales tax bill, introduced in the House of Representatives Thursday, was discovered yesterday as the final revised copy was made available.

Although Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, had told newspapermen that the sales tax carried a 5-cent base, a study of the bill shows it does not. District officials figured that the tax actually would start on purchases of 2 cents.

Corporation Counsel Seal said he recalled that the 5-cent base had been discussed and said that apparently the failure to write it into the measure was an oversight. He said he would take the matter up with Nichols early Monday and that an amendment probably will be offered from the floor.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, said he will appoint a subcommittee to consider the bill as soon as it pleases the House, where it is scheduled to be called up Monday.

Although the Nichols sales-income tax bill has only cleared its first legislative hurdle, the Capital Transit Co. yesterday asked Roland Brennan, District purchasing agent, to avoid buying tax tokens that would resemble streetcar and bus tokens.

Transit officials explained that other cities have had trouble when the tokens were similar as patrons of the trolleys have sought to save money by using the tax tokens for transportation.

Opposition Organizing

Meanwhile, all organizations and individuals who last year joined in the successful effort to prevent passage of sales tax legislation for the District were invited to a general meeting at 2 p. m. today in the Y. W. C. A., to consider immediate action to prevent repeal of the present income tax law by the House on Monday.

Herbert S. Wood, specialist in taxation for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will address the meeting, and will lead the discussion. The meeting is being called by the consumers' conference on high prices and profiteering, which is acting as a coordinating body to unite the various citizen, civic, church, labor, consumer and other groups interested in preventing the imposition of a sales tax.

The meeting will be asked to consider indorsement of a recommendation that Congress accept a slight amendment to the present income tax law, in lieu of the proposed repeal, which would make it applicable to all persons maintaining a place of abode in the District, whether their legal residence is here or elsewhere.

Wilson High on Air Workshop Today In Easter Theme

The Easter theme will be used by Woodrow Wilson High School students in the Radio Workshop, sponsored by The Washington Post and the public schools, broadcast over WJSV at 5 p. m. today.

The script is prepared around five incidents which occurred between the time of the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem and the Resurrection. The story will be told by means of recitation and music.

The Woodrow Wilson Choral Group, the Choral Speech Group and the 35-piece orchestra will participate. Manuel Geaneros will be the soloist. Ellen Hodges will be at the Hammond organ.

The five Biblical topics are the entrance into Jerusalem, Garden of Gethsemane, the Crucifixion, Joseph of Arimethea, and the Resurrection. The program is under supervision of a faculty committee headed by Mrs. F. M. Lumsden.

Capital News In Brief

Wings at Soldiers' Home

A tiny plane landed on an alfalfa field at Soldiers Home yesterday and A. S. Wikstrom, contractor, stopped out of the plane. To Chief of Police L. A. Grubb, he explained that he was flying from Bound Brook, N. J., to Richmond, Va., and had had to make a forced landing because of engine trouble.

By coincidence the alfalfa had been raked in the day before. By even more extraordinary coincidence Wikstrom happened to be the constructor building the 15,000,000 gallon reservoir for the District on Soldier's Home hill. So, since he was nearby, Wikstrom toured the reservoir and inspected the work, fixed his engine and flew off to Richmond.

Truck Driver Cleared In Death of Helper

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated George W. Hollin, colored, 47, of 83 P street northwest, in the traffic death of Jeff Smith, colored, 38, of 634 N street northwest, who was crushed Tuesday under a spool of telephone cable at Connecticut avenue and Military road northwest.

Smith, a driver's helper, was riding on the back of a truck driven by Hollin when the vehicle swerved to avoid striking another machine. The heavy spool shifted, causing the truck to overturn, pinning Smith beneath it. The jury decided the death was accidental.

Montgomery Taxpayers Organize Drive to Cut $1.50 Rate and Reduce County's Debt Load

Interest Charges Held Responsible For Heavy Budget

The Montgomery County Taxpayers Association set out last night to arm the whole county for a militant fight against its public debt and the $1.50 tax rate.

At a special meeting of Montgomery leaders in the Kenwood Country Club Washington I. Cleveland was named chairman of a large committee that will represent every citizens' association and all special taxing areas in the county. The committee was charged with the job of organizing public sentiment against (1) more bonds, and (2) the present high tax level.

A resolution demanding a public hearing on the 1940 budget before it receives final action from the county commissioners was adopted. Cleveland, and an executive group of nine from the large committee, were given authority to appear before the commissioners and speak for the entire organization.

In an attempt to analyze the Montgomery County tax rate, 30 heads of civic and business organizations in the county attended last night's meeting.

William J. Duiker, Washington attorney, pointed out that the current budget for Montgomery was $2,800,000, as against $1,036,000 for Prince Georges, and $1,518,000 for Arlington County. He observed that the Arlington budget provided for certain services, amounting to $580,000, which are not included in the Montgomery appropriations, and which are paid out of a special assessment of 62 cents on $100 of property.

This special 62-cent assessment, Duiker said, must be added to the regular $1.50 levy in order to get the true tax rate for Montgomery County. Arlington, he added, paid a tax rate of $2.70 on 40 per cent of valuation, which in effect gives a true rate of $1.08, whereas the current Montgomery rate was increased through raising the assessment 20 per cent.

In attempting to reveal the cause of Montgomery's high rate of tax, Duiker compared the county's indebtedness of $1,132,000 as against $191,000 for Prince Georges and $103,000 for Arlington.

John L. Hougardy, of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey of New York, who was a guest of Curtis Ireland, president of the Taxpayers Association, told the county leaders how his organization had forced the Westchester County board to economize to the extent of $5,000,000.

Civic Group Receives Gavel Of Bankhead

Federation Adopts Report Commending Blue Plains Work

A gift of Speaker William B. Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, the gavel used in the past session and past special session of the House was presented last night to the Federation of Civic Associations, a colored organization, at its meeting in the District Building.

Presentation was made by Horace Sprague, a delegate from the Eastland Gardens Civic Association. Resolutions in appreciation were directed to be sent to the Speaker.

A resolution was adopted deploring that no provision has been made in the new National Guard Armory for housing of Company A of the 372nd Regiment and the expansion of that unit into a battalion, in accordance with the 1917 law. Copies were ordered sent to both houses of Congress.

Work of the Industrial Home School at Blue Plains, under W. P. Tucker, was the subject of commendation through adoption of a report submitted by Mrs. Edna Payton, chairman of the social service committee. The report recommended one additional academic instructor, addition of courses in printing and tailoring, an additional appropriation for maintenance, and the addition of a combination auditorium and gymnasium.

A bill pending in Congress for establishment of a Board of Morticians also was favored. It was recommended that the proposed membership of 9 be reduced to 5, all of whom shall be morticans; that the board should be completely autonomous, and that such board be compensated for service rendered.

A committee was named to study zoning laws, with especial reference to establishment of liquor stores in the neighborhood of public schools.

Alumni Group Asks Probe of G. W. Affairs

Committee Request Outgrowth of Gibbon Resignation Fight

A George Washington University alumni group yesterday called on the American Association of University Professors to investigate the regime of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university.

Ralph E. Himstead, executive secretary, replied that the association's committee on academic freedom and tenure would consider the request for an inquiry, outgrowth of a controversy over the resignation on March 7 of Martha Gibbon, assistant professor.

The request was made by nine members of the alumni body who organized an alumni committee for investigation of conditions at George Washington University, according to its chairman, Charles Coltman, 2025 I street northwest.

Coltman said the committee did not represent the alumni association, but was comprised of graduates interested in the development of the university.

Explanation Called "Evasion"

Miss Gibbon resigned, she said, because she had been refused the promotion to associate professor, a promotion bringing with it security of tenure. Dr. Marvin explained that Miss Gibbon lacked certain "requirements" for promotion. Miss Gibbon appealed to the Association of University Professors to investigate.

The alumni investigating committee labeled Dr. Marvin's explanation as an "evasion," and stated in its letter to the association:

"We are firmly convinced that a grave injustice has been done to an extraordinarily excellent teacher . . . We respectfully urge you, further, not to confine any investigation you may undertake to Miss Gibbon's case alone. Ever since Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin became president at George Washington University, there have been recurring cases of one type or another." The committee urged a "full, open, and free investigation."

Commenting on the request for the inquiry, Himstead said: "If we do decide on such an investigation, it will be the direct outgrowth of a number of other similar charges against President Marvin over the past several years, and not alone because of the publicity stirred by Miss Gibbon's case."

Members of Committee

Dr. Marvin could not be reached last night for comment.

Bill Drafted To Settle Va. Boundary

Planners' Proposal Would End Rows And Eliminate 'No-Man's Land'

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission adjourned its March meeting yesterday after drafting a proposed bill intended to end the ancient District-Virginia boundary dispute, expressing satisfaction with the Thomas Circle underpass and acting on miscellaneous other items.

Seeking to solve the present "no man's land" puzzle along the southern approaches to Highway Bridge, the planners' proposed bill would fix the District of Columbia boundary along the existing high water line on the Virginia shore.

Supreme Court decisions in recent years have held consistently that the Potomac's high water mark of the year 1791 was the legal boundary but they did not end the controversy as to where Washington ends and Virginia begins.

Bill Would Settle Disputes

Thomas S. Settle, commission secretary, pointed out yesterday that numerous fills have been made along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in the last decade—the Washington National Airport site being the most conspicuous—and determination of the present high water line is the logical solution to a vexing problem.

Enactment of the bill, according to Settle, would end the current disputes over police jurisdiction and settle for all time an issue which a special commission created by Congress, tried in vain to dispose of several years ago.

Settle said he expects the bill to be introduced at the present session of Congress, but it is still uncertain whom the sponsor would be.

Plaza Plans Returned

The planners made a motor car inspection of the Thomas Circle underpass, the new K street overpass and the "slow down" intersections at Eleventh street and Vermont avenue and Sherman avenue and Park road, voicing their satisfaction with all of the innovations.

Plans submitted by the Public Buildings Administration for the proposed "Great Plaza" to be built directly south of the District Building, on a site now occupied by a parking lot, were returned with the suggestion that they be revised to provide for surface parking facilities on the plaza's fringe.

In other business, the commission approved development plans for the Rose Park and Turkey Thicket playgrounds, disapproved a pending bill which would make marble facing mandatory for the new War and Navy buildings and recommended that buildings at the new National Airport be placed under jurisdiction of the Public Buildings Administration.

Lack of Vote Blamed for Ills Of the District

Sharply condemning Congress for failure to push through District suffrage, Harry S. Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, last night reiterated before a gathering at the Bookshop, 1916 Seventeenth street northwest, the ills that have befallen the city due to lack of representation.

"Many of Washington's agencies are a national disgrace," he declared. "Investigations of real conditions are pigeonholed, corruption is whitewashed and real issues evaded."

Wender, who is also vice president of the District Suffrage Association, rapped critics who have argued that the District is indifferent to national representation. He said the people of the city had been deprived of representation through "an unholy bargain." Once, he said, the Federal Government promised to contribute 50 per cent to the District budget, whereas now it contributes only 11 per cent.

Miss Susan B. Anthony, granddaughter of the woman suffragist whose name she bears, presided.

Once again Dr. Samuel Whittemore Boggs, State Department geographer, is busy changing frontiers on official maps—this time the Finnish borders to conform to the recent Russo-Finnish peace treaty

State Department's Geographer Has An Uncertain Life as Europe's Frontiers Become a Matter of Whim

Dr. Samuel Whittemore Boggs is making over again!

The geographer of the State Department is once more changing frontier maps, this time the Russo-Finnish borders.

It's an uncertain life that the official geographer leads these years. Every few months, bang! Something goes off and boundaries shift.

It started five years ago when France ceded Italy territory in north and east Africa. The same year Mussolini drove into Ethiopia and the maps had to be made over again. Also the Saar region voted itself to Germany.

A couple of years later Adolf Hitler began to attract Dr. Boggs' attention. There was the little matter of Austria. And the Sudetenland.

Mr. Hitler again. This time Bohemia and Moravia. Slovakia became "independent."

And Mr. Mussolini gathered Albania into the Italian fold.

The European war. Hitler took part of Poland. Russia got the rest. Danzig became German. Russia gave Vilna and territory to Lithuania.

Then Russia acquired naval bases in Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia.

Finally Russia got the Karelian Isthmus and a slice of northern Finland.

Meantime in the Far East Japan has bitten off a huge chunk of China.

And Admiral Byrd in the Antarctic may give the map-makers something to do too.

Dr. Boggs has had to keep track of a fast-shifting world.

The importance of rapid map making may be seen from what happened when Hitler and Stalin shared Poland between them.

Hundreds of frantic calls were coming to the State Department from Americans to locate their relatives in conquered Poland. Officials handling the requests had to consult Dr. Boggs' detailed frontier map to determine whether to send their dispatch in each case to Berlin or to Moscow. A mistake in locating a town might have meant a delay of may days.

2,000 Here Watch Portrayal Of Jesus' Funeral Procession

Devout and Curious of Many Races Gather at Franciscan Monastery And All Stay to Pray in Silence

The devout and the curious, folk of many races, gathered last night at the Franciscan Monastery for the annual portrayal of the funeral procession of Jesus Christ, performed by the Franciscan Community. The curious remained to worship, and all were joined in the common bond of sorrow at man's sin and hope for a better life.

They came, two thousand of them, on foot and in auto, to the monastery lying white under a cold, star-studded sky. White and colored, a scattering of Orientals, their voices grew hushed as they followed the flagstone paths to the silent edifice.

In the incense-filled building they overflowed the seats, sat on the balcony steps, stood on tip-toe in far corners to see the monks slowly circle the auditorium.

Kneel as Procession Passes

Four knights of Mount Saint Sepulcher marched in the center of the procession, bearing the waxen image of Christ, his hands, feet and side blood-stained. Implements of the crucifixion, nails, spears and the crown of thorns were borne by acolytes.

As the procession passed, many knelt in prayer. All looked grave.

Seals to Be Broken Tomorrow

Every eye was raised to Father Herbert Gallagher, standing erect and silent at the farther end of the auditorium. He spoke then of the significance of a man who gave his life that others might live. He spoke of man's sin, of lust and hatred and war, and held out the hope of eternal life that lies in every man.

The figure was carried into the sepulcher, symbolizing the burial place of Christ. Seals were applied which will be removed tomorrow morning.

The 2,000 left then, more silently than they had entered.

HumanSkullFound At Indian Spring

A human skull was uncovered yesterday by workmen excavating on a real estate project on grounds of the Indian Spring Country Club, Colesville road.

It was believed to have been turned up from an old slave burying ground. The property formerly belonged to the Henry Clark estate, settled in 1749. Six generations of Clarks lived there. The last owner was Oliver H. P. Clark.

$10,000 Ring Disappears From Store

One Valued at $2,000 Is Gone, Police Told; Robbers Take $75 In Liquor Store

Two diamond rings, one with an 8-karat stone and valued at $10,000, were stolen from the jewelry firm of Card & Osborne, Inc., 1309 Connecticut avenue northwest, some time March 8, The Post learned last night.

Despite the denial of Mrs. Claribel S. Card, joint owner of the company, and of a clerk at the store yesterday police have a "quiet" report of the robbery. Together the rings were valued at almost $12,000.

It was learned that the loss was reported by Mrs. Card and Charles M. Osborne, the other proprietor. Both rings are fully covered by insurance, it was said.

According to information obtained from a confidential source last night, the rings were on display at the store in a tray March 8. They were placed in a safe that night and returned to a show case the next day. When they were to be returned to the safe March 9, they were missing.

The largest ring was said to have an eight and sixty-eight one-hundredths karat stone of emerald cut and two baguette diamonds. The second was made up of a three-and-a-half karat stone and two smaller ones. Both were mounted in platinum.

Liquor Store Robbed

A liquor store proprietar and his wife were robbed of $75 last night by two gunmen in their store at 647 H street northeast. They were Mr. and Mrs. Meyer H. Landay and were alone in their place except for George Belk, colored delivery boy.

Isabel Lyons, 51, of 1549 Thirty-fifth street northwest, was hurled to the pavement near her home last night by two boys who unsuccessfully attempted to snatch her pocketbook. She suffered bruises.

Kidnaping a Fake

A $10,000 kidnaping turned out to be $19 theft last night when the abduction "victim" confessed to police he had manufactured the story.

Police of the Eleventh Precinct station received a phone call yesterday from a 17-year-old youth who said he had just been released on the District line by three kidnapers, who had taken him and $19 from his home in the 300 block H street northwest last Tuesday. Under questioning, the youth broke down and admitted he had taken the money.

Cherry Blossom Song, Operetta Picked for Fete

An official song "Pale Potomac Moon" and the popular operetta "Blossom Time" will furnish principal musical background for Washington's 1940 Cherry Blossom Festival, it was announced last night.

The Cherry Blossom song, just selected, is by Arthur Godfrey, the radio announcer, Edgar Morris, festival chairman, said. It will be the official theme song of the celebration.

The operetta, based on the life of the immortal Franz Schubert, will be presented by the Columbia Light Opera Company, under the direction of Ethyl Manning.

A musical-dance feature will bring the Evelyn Davis dancers before the festival spectators. Miss Davis and her eight dancers will present two waltz ballets.

Board Grants Parole To Joseph E. O'Brien

The parole board yesterday granted freedom to Joseph Edward O'Brien, convicted of perjury when he "forgot to remember" the identity of his assailants in a shooting here in 1936.

'Virginia City' Has New Angle For Civil War

Flynn and Hopkins Starred at Earle; Hay-Ride on Stage

Fast riding, rough riding and hay riding all figure in this week's doings at the Earle. The Roxyettes go for a hay-ride and while their nags gallop hardily, the wagon never gets off stage. Man's friend, the horse, is also constantly in evidence in "Virginia City" with Randolph Scott chaperoning a wagon train of gold over the desert, suffering equally from onslaughts of cavalry and banditti.

In "Virginia City," the field of the Civil War is transferred to the far West. War is fought with gold as well as men, you know, and Southern sympathizers do their best to smuggle five million dollars' worth of gold from the Comstock Lode to Richmond. They'd have done it, too, if it hadn't been for Union Intelligence Officer Errol Flynn and his pals, "Big Boy" Williams and Alan Hale.

The story of "Virginia City," is said to be based on an authentic incident of the War Between the States. Certainly it gives a new angle on that conflict which has been fought over so frequently in the movies that it seemed there were no new angles. The result is a lively composite of war drama and horse opera.

Miriam Hopkins, cast as a F. F. V. girl who has become a Western saloon entertainer in order to act as a Confederate spy, has full opportunity to display both her sprightly and serious moods. As a can-can dancer, Miss Hopkins is one of the gayest and cutest ever. You'll be all for keeping her in roles with a touch of naughtiness after you see her prancing in the Sazerac Saloon.

Errol Flynn and Randolph Scott are the other points of the picture's triangle. The North wins the war of love as well as the military one, with Flynn breaking down and giving the South its gold though it means a court-martial. Through it all you can't help feeling that Flynn is a typical Southerner in spite of his blue uniform, while Randolph Scott looks the hard-bitten Yankee.

Rollicking fun is supplied by Alan Hale and "Big Boy" Williams, both quick on the trigger and constantly thirsty. Humphrey Bogart sports both a tiny mustache and a Mexican accent, seems a bit out of his metier. President Lincoln is seen briefly as a shadow profile.

The Roxyettes are prettier than ever this week in a bustle and parasol number, later appear in crinolines and huge hats covered with ostrich. The Diamond Brothers, a trio of "night club knights," serve knockabout comedy in the mood of 1940. Lester Cole and his singing Debutantes offer all the sweetheart songs you've ever heard. Park and Clifford trick out their acrobatic act with their idea of a pair of acrobats of the 90's, then go on to straight stunts that win enthusiastic paddywhacking. A beautiful violin solo enriches the Earle orchestra's Easter overture.

MARY HARRIS.

Howard

A potent entertainment cocktail, liberally seasoned with peppy hoofing, comedy, plus plenty of Erskine Hawkins swing syncopation, is served as an Easter treat to the Howard Theater patrons, this week. Rated possibly as one of the best shows of this 1940 season at the T street showshop, one of its main factors is its effective staging and its compact and speedy continuity.

Hawkins leads his boys through a warm session comprising "Swinging on Lenox Avenue," "You Can't Escape From Me" and reaching a climax in his original arrangement of "Tuxedo Junction," and his now sensational record "Cherry." Deloros Brown, song vendor, pleases well with "Indian Summer" and "Wubba Dolly."

Vieing for the leading honors are the Peters Sisters, mighty in voice and avoirdupois, who stop the show with their group of numbers including "South American Way." Other acts of note are Otis Blair, a scat songster and tapster; the exotic Flash and Sundra; sunny soubrette, Edna Yack Taylor; those seasoned comedy favorites, Mason and Vigel, and the Howard chorines, whose precision stepping reaches a new high in their jungle production number.

'Pinocchio's' Wit Enraptures Keith's Audiences; Film Stars on Stage, 'Blue Bird' on Capitol Screen

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

Quite the most enchanting film that master of enchantment, Walt Disney, ever has made, "Pinocchio," opened yesterday at RKO-Keith's Theater.

Weary superlatives would be ridiculously ineffectual in describing this successor to "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Just as that first feature-length color cartoon was head and shoulders above other such pieces, so "Pinocchio" is in a class by itself, a "must" on any man's film list.

Beside the little puppet whose nose got longer every time he told a lie, Disney has arrayed his own characters, quite as unique in their own personalities as Disney figures eternally are. Of them all, we love most a puckish creature, Figaro, in form a frisky kitten, but in Disney's drawings even more. This saucy scamp, eternally rolling his eyes, bouncing with enthusiasm, is enough to make the most confirmed feline-hater confess that the ball of fluff has something.

The inventive artist has contrived several novel approaches, notably a bumping motion of the camera as the teller of the tale, one Jiminy Cricket, advances to the home of puppet-maker Geppetto. Then there is the bleary view in which Cleo the Goldfish looks at her friendly world. There is a deliriously fantastic scene when visitor Jiminy Cricket lays him down to sleep, only to hear numberless clocks (such clocks as only Disney can evolve!) and encroaching snores.

But about a Disney film there is that element of surprise which it is not the reviewer's place to dispel. The surprises are in "Pinocchio" aplenty, but we leave them to you to discover.

Fantasy again, then, meets his cinematic master in the resourceful Disney. His coloring, thanks to a superb treatment of Technicolor, is never flashy, never on the trite side as so many film fantasies are inclined to force it. Things are suggested by a line or two, not thrown at one in all the detailed realism of a green building 250 feet tall.

In this fantasy, too, we are cheered to say there is none of l'amour. No little puppetess flounces along to tie up the plot which Conscience Jiminy Cricket and his charge are pursuing. Such restraint is simply colossal.

While the music does not have the catchy charm of "Snow White's," the speaking voices have more. Dickie Jones, Cliff Edwards, Walter Catlett, Christian Rub and Evelyn Venable as the voices of Pinocchio, Jiminy Cricket, J. Worthington Foulfellow, Geppetto and the Blue Fairy are all in gentle accord with the drawings of Disney and his invaluable staff.

Walt Disney's "Pinocchio." Need one say more?

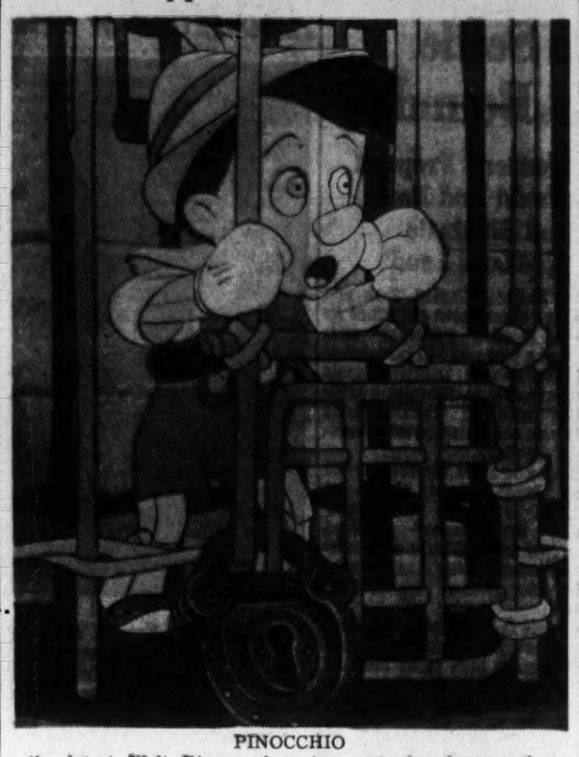
Trapped at Keith's, Too



PINOCCHIO

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 22.

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: At the Saturday night performance of "Two On An Island," the lights suddenly went out for five minutes in the second act. A flashlight was brought onstage, and the play proceeded without interruption. After the final curtain, Luther Adler thanked the audience for having cooperated and assured them that the cast was grateful . . . This, however, was no balm for Harriet MacGibbon, who, in her spare time, is a drama instructor. Thirty of her Hunter College students were in the audience to see her—and Harriet's big scene was during those five minutes of darkness.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: Jack Doyle, the Broadway betting commissioner, and arbiter in all gambling disputes, was standing in the lobby of the Park Central Hotel where he discussed the question of United States currency . . . Someone suggested that one way of unearthing money hidden by prohibition-mobsters and tax-evaders would be to make an official change in currency. Another informed that United States coins cannot be changed, in design, more often than once in 25 years . . . "Oh, what's the difference," said Gambler Doyle, "as long as they're made with a head and a tail."

BOOK DEPARTMENT: Jimmy Walker, whose Opportunity Hour is attracting much attention, was asked whether he plans to write a book . . . "No, because every publisher wants me to spill the beans," Walker explained, "—and there are no beans to spill."

RESORT DEPARTMENT: One of the settlements at Boca Grande, in Florida, is owned by the duPont family—a settlement whose opposition to the New Deal is so great that its movie theater runs no newsreels, to avoid the necessity of having Roosevelt's picture appear on the screen . . . Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., went there to visit some of his relatives. At the barber-shop, he was told: "Your father isn't very popular with the people here" . . . "Shhhh," whispered young Franklin, "but the people here aren't very popular with my father."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: When Leonard Liebling's Mozart playlet, "Lacrymosa," was performed, Horace Braham portrayed the Mozart role, and Fritz Loewe was the harpsichord pupil . . . Loewe's period-trousers failed to arrive from the costumer—but The Show Went On . . . Braham sat in Mozart's invalid-chair, wearing Mozart's wig and long dressing-gown . . . Underneath, he wore no pants . . . He had given them to Loewe.

THEATER DEPARTMENT: Sinclair Lewis has been receiving a number of newspaper clippings, concerning his New Orleans appearance as Canon Skerritt, in "Shadow and Substance" . . . He told Marc Connelly that some of the drama-reviews are being mailed to him. . . . "What?" asked Connelly. "Can you send such things through the mails?"

Jimmy Fidler's Group Scores, While Shirley Temple Stars in Fantasy

Zanuck's Tot, Mistress Shirley Temple, and Jimmy Fidler's "Hollywood Parade" of film starlets yesterday took over the Capitol Theater, with the growing wee one playing in "The Blue Bird" on the screen and with the youthful menage of M. Fidler captivating in a thoroughly entertaining stage revue.

The Hollywood columnist has brought with him an exceptionally capable sextet of young people, players who are pleasant to watch, neither afraid nor reluctant to work.

The screen's adaptation of Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" is Fantasy with a capital F. Twentieth Century-Fox has apparently figured that the best way to treat fantasy is to do it up literally as one would John Steinbeck. Consequently, things are on the heavy side with a dog coming to life in the slobbery person of Eddie Collins, whos humor is more adapted to Minsky's than the Frenchman's wan fantasy.

But "The Blue Bird" is an optimistic piece which sets out to please the children. Whether it does or not we have, frankly, no way of knowing. Shirley is a trifle more worried than winning this time and Johnny Russell is pleasing as her young brother.

The stage revue, however, is elegant vaudeville. Peter Lind Hayes, whose mother, Grace Hayes, walked off with vaudeville shows herself, is the surprise actor of this gathering. His imitations are brief, but pointed and, on occasion, bitter, viz., his "The Street Singer." Young Hayes makes other imitators seem like long-winded losers on amateur night.

Another particular winner in a revue packed with clever folk is 16-year-old Edith Fellows, who, thanks to the District child labor law, appears at only the first three shows. Aside from the voice which she employs so delightfully in "Punchinello" and her dramatic prowess that is so well controlled in a brief sketch, this little lady has outstanding stage presence, a rare, valuable inheritance.

All the others are mighty fine, too, as we have delicately hinted. Helen Mack's sparkling manner, Mary Healy's lovely looks and her "Night and Day," Michael Whalen's geniality and Miss Bradna's dark beauty are well expressed. Producer-Columnist Fidler closes things with a flash of last-minute gossip and advice.

Still on hand, we are glad to add, is the organ's elegant Art Brown, whom we are beginning to think is invaluable to the Capitol. This time his closing song is "Easter Parade," in which Sam Jack Kaufman and the orchestra also give their all. R. L. C.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Joe Schenck was right when he testified in New York that "monetary consideration is only a minor point in loan-out of stars. The important thing is the reputation of the borrowing studio and the set-up for the picture." In the early days of Twentieth Century when their list of stars was meager, it was different. They had to borrow stars to sell their pictures. And what more natural than they should borrow them from Metro since Joe's brother Nick was head of it? But that's where a lot of trouble started. I know. I went through it. Irving Thalberg developed more people than any other man during his short lifetime. So when the habit of borrowing his stars got into swingtime he sent out an edict that nobody could be loaned off the lot to anyone.

HOPPER

Well, I'd been under contract there five years, and most of my pictures were made elsewhere. I was delighted that the studio got extra money for my services. Because being under contract to Metro at that time was the greatest boost you could have in Hollywood. Why one year they made nearly $12,000 off me.

But, when the edict went out that nobody could be borrowed, that held good for me, too. So at the end of the year, my contract was canceled. Because for the first time I showed a loss instead of profit.

Hedy Lamarr was loaned to Walter Wanger who made her a star and Metro gets the benefit of it. I don't think Jimmy Stewart's career was helped by doing "Destry Rides Again" after he'd done "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." But in exchange for "Destry" I understand Metro got "Showboat."

Columbia has helped Roz Russell by giving her "My Girl Friday." And practically all of Gary Cooper's good pictures have been made on loan-out from Sam Goldwyn. So it's a practice that works both ways. But for a while it worked overtime to the advantage of Joe Schenck and Twentieth-Century. Oh, well, it's just one happy family!

Abem Kandel, writer of "City for Conquest" in which Bette Davis and Jimmy Cagney will co-star, told this yarn. Last summer he and Albert Bein went out on the gambling ship and had themselves a time—but lost plenty. On the way home, Bein was lamenting his losses—he couldn't afford it, etc. Said Kandel: "Stop worrying. Tell you what—we'll write a story together, and get your money back."

So they set to work, in three day had it finished, and sold the original "City Without Men" within a week to Sam Goldwyn for $10,000.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Hollywood, March 22 (INS). Warners and Paramount have been doing some story swapping with the result that Jimmy Cagney will star in "One Sunday Afternoon." Several years ago Gary Cooper made this for Para. and if you ask me it will seem strange to see bad-boy Cagney in the light, sentimental comedy about a bumpkin dentist. Jimmy, however, needs a change of pace. He's a good actor but there's no reason why he should be forever limited to smart aleck gangsters. This former Broadway stage hit is a welcome change.

In exchange for "One Sunday Afternoon" Warners have handed Paramount "Shepherd of the Hills," by Harold Bell Wright. So far the "Shepherd" hasn't been cast, but Robert Preston will be the hero. There's one boy who seems to veer from heaviest to heroes with the greatest of ease and while I can't seem him as Paramount's Clark Gable (as advertised), he's an interesting young actor. Henry Hathaway directs the Wright yarn and it will mark Stuart Walker's debut as a producer.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Shirley Temple is down with flu; the Jock Whitneys at Ciro's in different parties indicate that the story of their separation is true. Jock danced with pretty Frances Robinson, Letitia Fairbanks, and all the other Hollywood beauties at his table, including Marlene Dietrich, who was with Tim Durant. Olivia de Havilland, once Durant's favorite dance partner, was escorted by Jimmie Stewart, who you may remember paid court, not so long ago, to Marlene. No mother-in-law trouble in the Brian Aherne household. He sat next to Mrs. Fontaine and danced with her several times. Olivia, Jimmie, Lee and Herbert Marshall were in the Aherne party; Marjorie King and her millionaire bridegroom, Phil Plant, in the Myron Selznick party. Plant was formerly wed to Constance Bennett.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

'A Chump at Oxford' Stars Laurel and Hardy at 'Met'

"A Chump at Oxford," which opened yesterday at the Metropolitan, brings Messrs. Laurel and Hardy back to their adoring public, true to their own inimitable type, presenting the sad-faced little comedian and his roly-poly sidekick against a background of ridiculous and not so ridiculous situations, harking back to the halcyon days of custard pies and pantomime.

Be it stated, though it goes without saying, that the picture is suitable only for the most avid Laurel and Hardy fans. A parody on an early Robert Taylor film, "A Chump at Oxford" is rather dreary, hit-or-miss comedy or attempted comedy.

However, in some spots the picture is truly funny, and two sequences in particular are worth noting: A deft bit of slap-stick with Laurel disguised as a maid and Hardy as a butler at an upper-strata dinner party, and an hilarious interlude with a "ghost" in a boxwood maze.

On the whole, the latest Laurel-Hardy epic is fairly good entertainment. It should appeal particularly to the younger moviegoers and to the dyed-in-the-wool fans of these comics. On seeing it one realizes that the absence of Laurel and Hardy from the silver screen has been felt, and that there is definitely a place and a need for such comedians as these.

Rounding out the bill this week are a Buster Keaton short which is not amusing at all, a Max Fleisher "Stone Age" cartoon that is equally unfunny, the latest Universal Newsreel and a Technicolor biography of Theodore Roosevelt that is interesting and educational.

*X WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, MARCH 23, 1940 17

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 22.—Stanley Raymond Harris speaking: "I'll be a ring-tailed monkey if I don't actually believe young Sid Hudson is going to be a swell pitcher for us. Not next year, or in the distant future, but this season. Class D leaguer, or not, I think he's ready. I wouldn't have dreamed it could happen, but I think it will.

POVICH

"I'm high on him. I'm not going to restrain him just because he's fresh out of the Florida State League. If Dutch Leonard wasn't around, I wouldn't feel any qualms about pitching Hudson tomorrow, if it was the opening game of the season. That's what I think of the fellow.

"Why shouldn't I? He's got a fast ball that's quicker than the fast ones of a lot of good pitchers in the American League. Hudson's no ordinary rookie. I think he's the kind that comes along once in a moon's age. I never saw a kid come out of class D and show such poise on the mound in my life. He acts as if he has been around the majors for years.

"The first tip-off he gave me was his control. He showed me he could come down in there with a pitch whenever he felt like it. I had the pitchers out there on the mound today letting them try to pick base runners off the bag, and who did it best but kid Hudson. Better even than Dutch Leonard whom everybody knows is a great one at keeping the runners close to the bases.

"I can understand why the kid should be a good pitcher. He has the natural stuff on the ball, and apparently plenty of courage. But he's all ball-player. I wasn't surprised that he played a pretty good game at third base and was better than a fair first baseman before he started pitching. He looks as if he might have been, the way he fields his position. If there is a better fielding pitcher on the club, it's Leonard.

"I'm so happy about Hudson, I must be smiling in my sleep. Whenever I think its absurd to suppose that a kid could come out of class D ball and be ready for the majors over the winter, I dismiss that idea by reminding myself that Hudson's no ordinary rookie. Shucks, Bob Feller was a horrible green pea compared to this boy. Hudson knows more about pitching right now than Feller knew after three years in the majors. Don't mistake me, Hudson's no Feller and never will be, but there are other types of good pitchers besides the Feller type.

"I want to take a long look at this boy Jim Dean, too. I haven't seen him cut loose with a pitch yet, but he's going to get plenty of chance. He wasn't far behind Hudson in that Florida league, and the way we're situated I can't pass up anybody who can pitch better than a little bit. We were going to send Dean to Charlotte in a couple of weeks, but there'll be no Charlotte for Dean if he shows me something like Hudson has been showing.

"There's another boy who deserves a chance to show what he has before we let him loose. He's Walter Masterson. Until the other day I was ready to give up on Masterson. He was ticketed to Charlotte. Last year at this time I was high on Masterson, but he proved a miserable disappointment. When he got his chance to pitch some big league ball he flopped.

"But the other day against Cleveland Masterson pitched three innings of beautiful ball. All of a sudden he began to look like the fastball I liked so much down here last season. His ball was alive and he was getting it over the plate. More important, he was following through all the way with his delivery. That's what I didn't like about him last summer. He was pitching and pulling up short as if he was afraid of getting hit by a batted ball. I soured on him. But he doesn't look timid this year. I've got to give him another chance.

"There's nothing—absolutely—to the Zeke Bonura business. We don't need him. Jimmy Wasdell will do well enough for us at first base. This is the kind of a ball club that can't afford to carry a slow-footed fellow like Bonura, and I'll tell you why.

"I know the limits of this 1940 Washington ball club. The pitching must be put down as a question mark. It certainly doesn't figure to be brilliant—we don't have enough good pitchers. And we aren't going to be a power club. We don't have any home run brutes to break up ball games. In pitching and power hitting, we figured to look awfully bad.

"We've got to win games by other methods. One of them, I hope, will be our speed. This team hits for a good average and gets as many runners on base as the Yankees. We've got to be sprightly on those bases to get around. Wasdell's speed will, be a big help. The rest of the club I'd say is extra-fast. We've got to run bases and run them smartly to give ourselves a chance to win ball games.

"And we'll take an awful licking if we aren't a good defensive club. We don't have the power and the pitching to offset boots like other clubs can do. That's why I'm happy about young Jimmy Pofahl. He improves our infield and so does Cecil Travis at third base. With Travis, Pofahl, Bloodworth and Wasdell we'll have a tight infield that can be brilliant. Our outfield isn't a great one, but it will be fast. I'm building this club on the theory that any time we get a decently-pitched ball game we'll always have a fair chance to win it."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Joe DiMaggio is going to hit .400 this coming season. Ty Cobb says so.

"That's right," Joe the jolter was telling us today, as he combed his jet black hair in the Yankee locker room, after his shower. "I see a lot of Ty in the off season. He comes in my joint and I just sit there and listen to him. What a man he is. I just keep my trap shut and listen.

"Anyway," Joe said, finding his "part" and slicking the hair back, "Ty thinks I'll hit .400 this year. He lost a bet on me last year. He figured that last year would be the year I'd hit it, but I let him down at the end of the season. He gave me a talking-to about it, but he said that this would be the year."

CONSIDINE

The relationship between the greatest player of old and the greatest player of the present has been exceptionally close. It started when Joe was somewhat less than terrific, and it has blossomed with the years. And never was a young man more grateful to an old one, for advice, than Joe is grateful to Cobb.

"Ty's made it possible for me to take a lot of short cuts," DiMaggio attested, in his quietly sincere way. "Every time I see him I pick up something—something I might never have thought about. For instance this past winter he told me the way he used to break his batting slumps, and I'm going to try it this year, if I get in one."

DiMaggio, using his comb as a bat, demonstrated the slump-breaking procedure.

"He told me to get myself a batting-practice pitcher and let him pitch to me from a distance of about 20 feet. Just stand and meet the ball, easy, like this. Then get the pitcher to move back 10 feet, hit some more from that distance. Then move back 10 feet more, and hit him from that distance—and so on until he's back there on the rubber. It must be the secret of how to break a slump. From the looks of those records, Ty never was in one.

"I'm doing more running this season than ever before, because Ty suggested it," Joe went on, sitting down on the edge of one of the big Yankee uniform trunks and lighting a cigaret.

"I'm cutting down on my practicing before games, too. Cobb told me he never used to work out much before a game, and that's how he saved his strength for those tough days in the middle of summer. Golly, when I first came up I used to run myself ragged, shagging flies before the game. I asked Joe McCarthy if it would be all right with him, if I did like Ty used to, and he said okay."

DiMaggio alibis less than any player in baseball, and not simply because he has less to alibi about. So it was with considerable reluctance that he spoke of an ailment which probably kept him out of the .400 class last year.

"I picked up a strange kind of sinus trouble the last month of the season," he said. "Got some bad headaches, real bad, and my eyes felt funny. They shot something in my head, around my eyebrows, and by golly the first day after that I got three for four. But after that I was just junk, and toward the end I felt so low I didn't give a dang."

At one stage there, DiMaggio got only one hit in 18 trips to the plate.

We asked him if he ever consciously thought of hitting .400. "Naw, a guy doesn't think about things like that," he deprecated. "I was trying to hit a thousand—not .400. I mean I was trying to hit every time I got up there. Everybody is. I've quit trying to play with a figure in mind."

Joe hasn't tried it yet, but he thinks that some day he might adopt one more of Ty's old stunts. Cobb used to do his spring training in baseball shoes that had lead weights built into the soles. All spring he'd drag those diver's boots around. Then on opening day, he'd switch to featherweight spikes and simply fly around the bases.

"I won't borrow that one until I'm a little older," Joe said. "But I know it's okay if Cobb says so. He did pretty well in this game, didn't he?"

2,500 Watch N. Y. Hockey Team Rally

Visitors' Victory Retains Their Slim Chance for Second Place League Tie

By Jack Munhall.

The New York Rovers last night retained their slim mathematical chance of tying the Washington Eagles for second place in the Eastern Amateur League by coming from behind with two third-period goals to defeat the locals, 3 to 2, before 2,500 fans in the season's finale at Riverside Stadium.

It was Washington's first setback in its last 13 games on the home ice, 10 of which resulted in victories. There was a pair of ties mixed in the streak.

Goals by Murdo McKay and Frank Parker, jr., at 10:53 and 14:40 of the final session, made it necessary for the Eagles to win one of their two remaining games to clinch the runner-up berth to the Baltimore Orioles. Washington plays at Atlantic City tonight and at Baltimore tomorrow night.

The game was fast throughout, but failed to produce much exciting action as the boys played good, clean hockey. The only untoward incident was a brief scuffle in the opening minutes of the third period between Washington's Les Ramsay and New York's Bud Foley, for which they drew two-minute roughing penalties.

Johnny McTeer, ever-improving Eagles' defenseman, played his best game of the season, showing more speed than ever before as he made several brilliant, though unsuccessful, one-man sallies on the Rovers' goal.

After hammering away at the Rovers' new goalie, young Len Dover, steadily throughout the first half of the opening period the Eagles finally crashed through at 16:01 as Kuntz slapped in a long one from the left-wing lane. The goal was another of the spectacular scoring plays the Kuntz-Covert-Dewey forward line has been clicking off of late.

The Rovers also had many a shot at the Washington net, but their best efforts were turned back by the stellar defense work of McTeer, Davies, Burrage and Knipfel, who lightened what otherwise would have been a difficult assignment for Goalie Colvin.

The Rovers tied the score at 1 to 1 at 1:45 of the second period on a shot by Collings, assisted by McKay and Rimstad. But Washington regained its lead shortly before the close of the session as Ramsay fired in one of the most spectacular goals of the entire season.

The shot was made at 18:37 as he lay face down on the ice almost on top of Goalie Dover, of the Rovers, who had fallen a moment before in checking a try by Courteau. The play started with Burrage feeding Courteau a pass just ahead of the New York defensemen. Courteau cut in toward the net and as Dover made a nice stop, Ramsay followed up quickly, but tripped just as he took a swipe at the puck. Then

N.Y. Americans Rally to Beat Red Wings, 5-4

By the Associated Press

New York, March 22.—Making an inspired comeback after being two goals behind in the third period, the New York Americans bumped the Detroit Red Wings 5-4 tonight to deadlock their preliminary Stanley Cup hockey playoff series at one victory apiece.

They will play the third and deciding contest at Detroit Sunday night.

For two periods and a good part of the third the Amerks were outplayed, but once they began finding holes in the Red Wing's defense they drove through for three straight tallies, the last made with less than a half a minute to play.

They looked like a thoroughly beaten team when Connie Brown rapped in Detroit's fourth goal at 14:16 of the final period. Two minutes later they got the break that sent them on to victory. Tommy Anderson stood in front of the Detroit goal, swung at a flying puck as Goalie Tiny Thompson juggled it and connected for a goal. In another minute Smith fought his way free of Detroit defensemen and scored the tying goal and at 19:39, veteran Art Chapman drove in the winning counter.

Only Battery Jobs of Nats Remain Open

Rest of Club Is Set, Harris Says; Likes Early for Catcher

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., March 22.—Competition for regular jobs on the Washington club has narrowed down to pitching and catching. The battles for every other position have subsided.

Manager Bucky Harris is prepared to stand pat on an infield comprised of Jimmy Wasdell, Jimmy Bloodworth, Jimmy Pofahl and Cecil Travis, and he anticipates no change in his current outfield of Gerald Walker, George Case and Buddy Lewis.

But the catching and pitching of the Nats is still very unsettled. Harris at this writing is unable to name his No. 1 catcher. He doesn't know whether it is Rick Ferrell or Rookie Jake Early. The other catchers in camp, Tony Giuliani and Al Evans, are out of it.

Harris is frank in his hope that Early will beat out the veteran Ferrell for the catching job. "We could use Early's hitting and his speed on the bases," says the Nats manager. "It's comforting to know that we'll always have Ferrell, but if Early continues to improve I'll give him the job."

Likes His Throwing Arm

Last season, Early's first with the Nats, the North Carolina boy proved none too steady behind the bat, but Harris believes that the year's experience has been a boon to him. He is intrigued also by Early's remarkable throwing arm. "And," says Harris, "he could be the best hitting catcher we've had since Cliff Bolton. He'll hit for extra bases, too."

With the start of the season only three weeks distant, Harris can point to only two pitchers who have proven their worth as far as starting jobs are concerned—Dutch Leonard

Ducky Medwick Still Balks at Card Terms

Beauty and Ability Will Mark Game in Post Tourney Monday

The combination of beauty and athletic ability is rather rare in sports circles. Helen Wills, Sonja Henie, Alice Marble and Washington's own Dorothy Snell are some exceptions.

When the Treasury Department and Sherwood A. C. girls take the Heurich floor on Monday night, the picking of a Tournament Queen could result in a 12-way tie. Seldom if ever have a dozen more beautiful girls been gathered in one spot this side of Hollywood. But they will not be out to look pretty. They will be in action with the District A. A. U. championship at stake, in the annual tournament being sponsored by The Washington Post.

As if the finals of the girls' class wasn't enough of a drawing card, two semifinal battles, that should be productive of some of the best basketball of the thrilling tournament, are scheduled.

The United Typewriters, defending unlimited class champions, will try to play their way into the finals against the up-and-coming Northeast Branch, Washington Boys Club. This game is booked at 9:30.

The Stewart Brothers Aces, winners of two brilliant battles, will tackle the 145-pound Northeast

Skin Infection Will Keep Conn From Fighting

Boils Must Be Cured 'Once and for All' Before a Title Bout

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, March 22.—Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn won't fight again until his siege of boils has been cured "once and for all" and that may take until summer, his manager, Johnny Ray, said tonight.

He handed down the edict after Mike Jacobs announced in Detroit that a recurrence of boils forced a second postponement of Conn's title defense against Gus Lesnevich. The bout was shifted to Detroit for April 5 when the ailment overtook Billy during his training at Miami, Fla., in February.

Returning to Mercy Hospital here for treatment today, Conn was advised by his physician not to go to Detroit.

"He's just got a mess of boils in him that have got to come out," Ray quoted the doctor as saying.

Indiana, Dukes In Cage Finals

Indianapolis, March 22 (AP).—Indiana and Duquesne Universities qualified tonight to compete tomorrow night for the right to enter the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual basketball tournament March 30 at Kansas City.

Duquesne had to battle all the way to subdue a giant Western Kentucky Teachers College team, 30 to 29, in the first game of the Eastern Division N. C. A. A. tourney before 5,500 fans, but Indiana, playing brilliantly, crushed Springfield (Mass.) College, 48 to 24.

In the last tilt it was a case of the team from the State which made basketball famous showing the team from the school where the sport originated how to play the game.

Clearwater, Fla., March 22.—A battle of home runs was fought by the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers today, and the Birds exploded five circuit clouts for a 10-6 victory.

Johnny Mize blasted three round-trippers, and Joe Orengo hit two. The Dodgers also had a pair of four-baggers, one by Dolph Camilli and the other by Pete Coscarart.

Mize hit his homers in his first three trips to the plate. One man was aboard on his first inning blow and another rode home on his third big clout in the sixth. Orengo's first circuit wallop came in the sixth with none on, but two were waiting on the base paths when his second came in the seventh. All of Mize's homers came off Pitcher Hugh Casey. Orengo got one off Casey and one off Vito Tamulis who pitched the last three frames for the Dodgers.

Indians Beaten

By the Associated Press

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 22. The Cleveland Indians could get only five hits today off two Rochester pitchers, Mike Ryba and Bill Seinfoth, and the Redbirds won, 5-1.

Bob Feller started for the Tribe, and fanned two men in each of the four innings he pitched. He allowed two hits, one a pop fly that fell safe in the pitcher's box.

The Red Wings had a field day in the eighth, with Earl Center, rookie up from New Orleans, doing the worrying on the mound. Center allowed only one real hit, but a pair of passes and two errors helped give Rochester three runs.

Russ Peters, who has been substituting for the injured Lou Boudreau at shortstop, was himself benched today—with a sore arm. Lou Rogino took his place. Beau Bell replaced First Baseman Hal Trosky, who is suffering with sore ankles.

'The Hardest Hole on the Course'

Next to '19th' Hole, 18th at Manor Club Is Most Pleasant

This is another of a series of stories on the toughest golf hole at each of the District and vicinity's 19 clubs. The opinions are those of the professionals, and the stories include notes on the course for the season. The final will be a consensus of opinion on the most difficult of the lot.

By Merrell V. Whittlesey

Regardless of how tired you are at the completion of a round or two at Manor Country Club it's always a pleasure to play the eighteenth hole, one of the city's three best finishing numbers and first choice of Pro Al Treder as the toughest to par on the entire 27 holes.

A distinct dog leg, measuring 406 yards, the sharp-breaking hole is an attractive sight from either tee or green and presents a real test as a par four for tournament playing amateurs and the pros.

Billy Bee Beats Out Favored Bright and Early at Tropical

Scores Neck Victory, Pays $7.20 Ticket

Dinner Jacket Wins Show Spoils; Jockey Donoso Scores A Double Victory

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 22.—Mrs. F. K. Hastings' veteran of the sprint wars, Bright and Early, once again failed to get out of the "second hole" here this afternoon when for the fifth time in a row he had to be satisfied with the place position in the featured 6-furlong fifth event. The 7-year-old gelding, an odds-on choice in the field of five $2,500 platers, was beaten a neck by W. F. Mannagh's Billy Bee. Dinner Jacket, reperesenting G. Toothaker, was third, a length and a half behind.

Billy Bee, which has developed the habit of winning every other start, returned $7.20 for $2 and finished in 1:12 2-5 over a track slightly deadened by overnight rains.

Bright and Early, in his last nine attempts, has been in the money. He won three races, finished third once, and was the runner-up in his last five efforts. His odds today were 65 cents on the dollar.

Ruperto Donoso, who has been riding in fine form ever since he won the Widener Cup on Many Stings, earned a double astride Billy Bee.

The small field got off to a splendid start. The leaders were well bunched almost to the final turn. Billy Bee was hustled into a narrow lead by Donoso. Bright and Early disposed of Foxy Maude and set sail for the eventual winner. Billy Bee held his ground tenactiously under the cool, capable handling of his Chilean rider. Dinner Jacket easily ran over Foxy Maude and Syracuse.

Coming from far behind with an improved performance over the dull track, Sun Kincsen gained a length and a half decision over Colonel Joe in the mile and a sixteenth seventh contest. Jacquella lost the place by a head. Wulfstan stole a long early lead, only to fizzle out after five furlongs. Colonel Joe then assumed command, but it remained for Sun Kincsen to run over the leaders and draw away at odds of $26.50 for $2.

BILLY BEE showed keen speed while being steadied in front and, continuing courageously, held BRIGHT AND EARLY safe. The latter, on the inside, made a game effort, but could not overhaul the winner. DINNER JACKET, also on the inside, was pinched back leaving the backstretch, but saved much ground turning into the stretch and easily disposed of the others. FOXY MAUDE quit.

TONY WEAVER displayed good speed and took a short lead, responded gamely when challenged and outlasted BUNNY RABBIT in the final drive. BUNNY RABBIT, on the inside and in tight quarters for a half mile, made a bold effort when clear, but could not overhaul the winner. NOPALOSA ROJO, crowded back in the opening quarter mile, closed strong when clear to outlast DEEP SUMMER. The latter faltered in the stretch run.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:59. Off 4:59½. Winner, Medway Stable's b. m. SUN KINCSEN began to better her position on the outside after entering the backstretch, and wore the leader down through the stretch to win in hand. COLONEL JOE took command on the stretch turn, but then faltered and just lasted to withstand JACQUELLA'S challenge. The latter, slightly restrained early, finished gamely. LADY BETHYL closed a big gap from a slow beginning.

——At the Post

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al: Friend Alan Clark has returned from a visit to Pennsylvania, where he saw the colt and filly by Mowlee, out of Beaten Biscuit, full sister of Seabiscuit. The colt is a particularly promising youngster. Mowlee, of course, stands at Clarke's Huntington Farm, in Howard County, Md. The report over the police broadcast of a "fire at Benning" sent chills up my spine. Fortunately, it turned out to be only a brush fire. Too many horses being burned to death these days. You fellows around the barns, please be careful. Talked to Dynamite Kerr the other day. He says he will breed his mare Nancy Mae to Mowlee. Don't be surprised if Kayak II and other horses owned by C. S. Howard are in action at Pimlico. Trainer Tom Smith is anxious to take Challedon into camp to avenge that beating Kayak II took from the Brann star last November. The "tote" people are busy installing their betting machines in the New York tracks. Takes 8,400 electric bulbs at each track. No, I didn't count them. Somebody wanted some facts on Jockey Georgie Woolf. He is short, stocky and rather quiet. Born 29 years ago at Babb, Mont. He is rated as a "money rider." He rides best when the purse is big and public interest is keen. He has been riding professionally for 11 years and rode his first winner at Tia Juana, in Mexico. His hobbies are rodeo riding, ice skating and bowling. He is an excellent judge of pace and somebody once said that Georgie Woolf "must have a clock in his head." I saw him ride Azucar to victory in the first $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. His performance in bringing the former jumper from tenth position to victory along the rail was one of the best saddle efforts I ever witnessed. Well, I have just about decided on the winner of the Wireless Windbag or Heckle Art Brown Contest. Feel certain that I can crown the champion in Monday's column. Sorry I can't give each and everyone of you a badge to Bowie. One reader certainly put me on the pan about Brown. He concluded by writing, "Rather than heckle one of the best guys alive; I'm going to Bowie and pay my buck sixty-five.

BILL.

First race—Noddles shapes up as the right one in the day's opener. Needs only some help from the saddle. J. Edgar H. has shown enough to warrant respect in this field. Presstime has speed and could make a money appearance.

Second race—Berwyn promises to do a lot of running in this company and I'm going to string along regardless of odds. Kaptime is capable of giving the top one a keen battle for the No. 1 money. Delius to take care of the others.

Third race—Zacatine is the speed of this party. With proper handling we should get this one home in good fashion. Belmar Arra will draw plenty of play and is dangerous. Chance Run should find a place in the money circle.

Fourth race—Rapid Way gets the call in this field and looms as the best thing of the day. Sassy Mate has been fairly consistent and will be right in there knocking. Little Bolo liked the other track and is a threat.

Fifth race—Sandy Boot appears to have found conditions that suit in this field. Deserves the top ranking. Royal Blue will turn on the heat and will take it all if the first one makes mistakes. Mar Le for the show.

Sixth race—Zelkova likes the route and will be a tough horse to beat in this event. I'm going to be there. Free Bid and Alca probably are best of the others and will fight it out if the top one falters.

Seventh race—Conrad Mann makes his way in this brand of company. Appears capable of holding Bow and Arrow and Midas safe in the stretch run.

Eighth race—Guitar, a recent winner, has a slight edge over these and I'm going to string along with him. Pradis and Topnotcher to fill out the cash department.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take Cruising, Deodo and Paul Lee.

Best bet—Rapid Way.

A.'s of Delaware and Maryland will be involved in the struggle. The third straight week of action will find the "Y" team in the D. C. A. A. U. Tournament to be staged on its home mat.

Know Your Dogs— No. 10 of a Series

By George Berner

THE GREAT DANE

His lineaage goes back to about 3,000 B. C., but for the past 400 years his home has been Germany, where he was developed because of the need for a super dog to fight ferocious wild boars. He was originally called the boarhound and is unexcelled as a companion, children's dog or watch dog. The Dane is often called "the Aristocrat of Dogdom" and certainly he is dignity itself. Mrs. Cecelia Coulon owns this one but several of them will be on exhibit at the dog show in Alexandria Saturday, April 27

Imperial Cup Race Feature At Aiken Today

13 Expected to Go Postward; Mellon's Frozen North Favored

Special Dispatch to The Post

Aiken, S. C., March 22.—The Imperial Cup, featured hurdle event on the four-race card which will take place here tomorrow, has drawn 13 entries to compete in the $1,000 classic.

The favorite with the racegoers, who have filled this lovely winter resort to capacity, is Paul Mellon's Frozen North. This 5-year-old son of Mr. Toots—Icicle brought back the bacon for the Middleburg, Va., sportsman when he galloped to a 20-length victory at Southern Pines last Saturday. His last victory was at a mile and a half. Tomorrow he will be asked to go a half-mile farther.

The competition is expected to come from F. Ambrose Clark's Bachelor Philip, winner of the inaugural running of the Imperial Cup in 1938, and G. H. (Pete) Bostwick's Masked Knight, winner of last year's renewal.

Others named for the feature are Louis Stoddard, jr.'s Danny Byre and Deserter; Golden Oak, Battle Ground II, Marc Aurele II, Little Hurd, Steve Brody, Button Button, Fencing Song and Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott's Treford.

The Fermata, a mile and a half event for maidens and winners of one, will open the card. This race has ten named to go postward. The Aiken Steeplechase, a 2-mile brush affair, the second race, has ten named to start. The F. Ambrose Clark entry of Horner Wood and Fay Cottage are the overnight favorites. The last named won and broke his maiden last Saturday.

The Imperial Cup is third, and the Sand River, a 7-furlong race on the flat, will close the day of sport. Between races, Greyhound, 1:55¼, king of trotters, will race against time for the enjoyment of the anticipated crowd of 15,000.

Terps Start Spring Sports With Baseball, Lacrosse Games

Stickmen Face Mounts Here Today

Diamonders Open Against N. Carolina, Then Play Duke on Foreign Soil Monday

University of Maryland's 1939 intercollegiate lacrosse champions make their season debut at College Park this afternoon, meeting Mount Washington, last year's national club champion, at 3 o'clock. Meanwhile the Terrapin baseball team will open a four-game invasion of the South with North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Monday the Maryland diamondmen move to Durham for a doubleheader with ever powerful Duke, which is reported to have its greatest team in many years, and on Tuesday they conclude their swing with Virginia at Charlottesville.

Maryland will start an experienced line-up against Mount Washington, Sophomore Goalie Markland Kelly being the only new comer. Kelly gets the call over Jack Grier, 1939 regular. The Terps, however, will take the field decided underdogs, mostly because bad weather and lack of coaching has retarded their conditioning.

With practice days scarce because of severe cold and rain, the Terp stickmen have been further handicapped because spring football drills have occupied much of the time Coach Jack Faber normally has spent with lacrosse teams of past years.

Seven of the Mount Washington starters are former Johns Hopkins stars, and three others—Fred Hewitt, Gary Todd and Fred Stieber—are former Maryland standouts. Hewitt, with 26 goals, led the Terps in scoring last year.

Pershing Mondorff, big right-hander, probably will hurl the opener of the twin bill with Duke. After that Coach Burton Hhipley will begin experimenting with sophomores on whose development rests much of Maryland's hopes for a successful season.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 22.—In seven innings of their exhibition game today the Boston Bees were held hitless and runless with a minimum of 21 men going to bat.

But they bested the New York Giants, 4 to 3, today with little effort. They scored on one hit in the first and in the fifth Rookie Bob Loane smacked a three-run homer after two were out.

San Antonio, Tex., March 22.—The St. Louis Browns split their squad in two today and won two exhibition games, the regulars going to New Braunfels, Tex., and defeating Toledo, of the American Association, 3 to 1, while the "B" team remained at training camp and overwhelmed Tulsa, of the Texas League, 12 to 3.

The Browns got six-hit pitching in both games, Howard Mills and Bob Muncrieff combining to hold Toledo in a pitchers' battle, while Jake Wade and Johnny Whitehead had easy sailing against Tulsa.

Slapping out a single and a double in addition to the three-bagger and scoring twice, Croucher was the big show in turning back the International Leaguers after they had rapped Lynn (Pine Drive) Nelson for a 4-to-0 lead early in play.

Lovely Hazel Franklin Features Ice Carnival Today at Riverside

Arlene Smith, skating professional at Riverside, is shown in a typical pose as she prepares for the Ice Carnival starting today. Arlene will pair with Robin Scott in three routines, as well as direct several other acts

Washington's Own Show Will Run 3 Days; Benefit for Society of Blind; Dorothy Snell, Maddy Horn and Many Other Stars in Event

Featuring lovely, 14-year-old Hazel Franklin, the Ice Carnival of 1940 will open a three-day engagement with a matinee performance at 2:30 this afternoon at Riverside Stadium. Today's will be the only matinee, other performances being listed for 8:30 tonight and Sunday and Monday nights. Tickets remain on sale at the Washington and Mayflower hotels, Keystone Automobile Club and at Riverside.

Staged for the benefit of the Washington Society for the Blind, the Ice Carnival of 1940 will feature an all-star cast of both amateurs and professionals. Miss Franklin, the blond English girl rated by many as Sonja Henie's peer, Norval Baptie and DeLories Ziegfeld, Eric Wait and McGowan and Mack, head the professional section.

Outstanding among the amateurs are Washington's own Dorothy Snell, twice runner-up in the National Junior Figure Skating Championships; Polly Blodgett and Ollie Haupt, pair skating team, the Philadelphia Four who are considered in some quarters as the greatest precision team on the ice, and Maddy Horn, world's fastest woman skater.

Baptie and Miss Ziegfeld, who is a first cousin of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, will team for some dance routines which should compare favorably with the best ever offered here. Although 61 years old, Baptie still retains most of the skill that once marked him as the greatest ice skater of all time. For 30 years he held the title as "fastest in the world" and with Gladys Lamb he comprised perhaps the most famous dance team.

Also listed for dance numbers are Riverside's professionals, Arlene Smith and Robin Scott, while Tommy Lee and Charley Slagle will present an act which they claim rivals that of Frick and Frack, stars of the Ice Follies.

Phils Swamped

Miami Beach, Fla., March 22 (AP).—Knocking Southpaw Clyde Smoll out of the box in the fifth with a nine-run splurge Columbus, of the American Association, battered out a 17-to-7 victory over the Phillies today.

Hugh Mulcahy held Columbus to one hit for four innings, but once Smoll entered the game the A. A. boys went to town. In the fifth, they combined seven hits—including two triples—with three bases on balls to win easily.

and Ken Chase. It will be a scramble for the other two starting jobs and the five places on the staff for relief and stop-gap pitchers.

If Harris were forced to name today the three pitchers with the best chance to break into the regular rotation of hurlers aside from Leonard and Chase, he'd undoubtedly name Joe Krakauskas, Joe Haynes and Sid Hudson.

Haynes, however, has not fortified himself in the esteem of Harris this year, to the great disappointment of the Nats' manager. Harris at the end of last season regarded the big right-hander as a tremendous lift to the Nats' 1940 staff, but Haynes is not completely over the effects of an infected left arm. It has retarded him considerably in training and there is doubt now that he will round into condition.

Kraky Still Wild

Since his in-and-out performance of last season, Joe Krakauskas is being regarded with misgivings by Harris. The Nats' manager admits that the big Canadian has the speed to be a winning pitcher, but he is deterred from regarding Krakky too highly until the latter displays an ability to control his fast ball.

Hudson, of course, is the fair-haired lad in the Nats' camp. And with reason, in two exhibition games he has displayed all the earmarks of a big-leaguer and Harris is counting on him despite his meager experience.

As for the other pitchers, Harris considers them as distinct gambles. He has soured on big Paul Gehrmann, whose supposedly fast ball hasn't puzzled anybody, and on Almon Williams, who is whining about a sore arm. Bucky Jacobs and Early Wynn strike Harris as minor leaguers. Walter Masterson and young Jim Dean will not have judgment passed until they have had a better chance to display their talents to Harris.

Redskins' 1940 Ticket Sale Hits New High

Advance Believed League Record For 6 Home Games

Swamped with a demand for season home tickets that is unprecedented in National Professional League history, Redskin officials yesterday announced that more than one-fifth of the available seats for the 1940 games have been sold.

Already the 1940 sale is 50 per cent increased over last year's, General Manager Jack Espey revealed, with about six months remaining before the start of the season. The total number of season tickets sold in 1939 was 4,726 as compared with 7,334 sold for 1940.

This represents a take of $67,996.80, which, Espey believed, is a new league record. The best previous advance sale he could recall was about $57,000, taken by Detroit in 1938.

Of the 7,334 tickets sold, 474 are $13.20 upper and field box seats and 6,860 are seats for the grandstands and lower boxes, priced at $9. Season seats in the centerfield bleachers have not yet been placed on sale.

The tickets will be printed about the middle of next month, Espey said, after the league meeting at New York April 13-14 decides the Redskins' home schedule of six games. This schedule will be printed on every season ticket.

Boys Club Cards, Celtics Victors

The Celtics won the 90-pound title with a 15-9 triumph over Grady Rovers, and the Cards defeated Central Branch Senators, 22-17, for the 105-pound crown. C. Coakley, of the Cards, was high scorer for the two games with 9 points.

Orlando, Fla., March 22.—After 15 years in the big leagues, Buddy Myer this week has adopted a new batting stance . . . In an effort to get more power into his wallops, he is no longer crowding the plate in typical Myer style, but is batting from the far corner of the box, a la Hornsby . . . Dutch Leonard will go to the mound for the Nats tomorrow for his first time this season when Washington plays Milwaukee at Ocala, 85 miles away . . . Navy's Sports Program Today Lists 4 Events

Baseball Team Will Meet Colby College In a Practice Game

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, March 22.—Navy sports fans will have lean fare over the week-end, with a practice baseball game and a two-squad lacrosse match topping the four-contest schedule.

The baseball varsity booked an informal practice game with the touring diamond dusters from Colby College. The game will give Coach Max Bishop a chance to get a line on his nine before the opening game with Vermont University a week hence.

It is expected Bishop will unveil a hot squad despite the loss of several regulars from the '39 varsity. He's got a balanced mound staff, and although there are holes rookies must plug, some of the graduates from the plebe team are better than some of the regulars of last year.

Bishop has strength through the center, from catcher to the middle garden, and the baseball-wise say that's where the games are won.

The Middies are solid behind the plate, with the veteran Ralph Anderson, former plebe Jack Wallace and Hal Wood in armor. Wallace is pushing Anderson for catching honors.

Little is known of the lacrosse prospects. The varsity lost all but three regulars. Capt. Ed Gillette, Al Bergner and Jerry Hedrick are the only tested men. Gillette and Bergner starred at close defense and the 6-foot 3-inch Hedrick led the attack.

They are the only squadmen not eligible to go as "B" squadders against Lehigh tomorrow. Coach Dinty Moore will probably run in everybody but the managers to get a line on his green squad under fire.

The varsity and plebe smallbore rifle teams will match targets with the University of Maryland varsity and frosh triggermen in the day's only other home contests.

The varsity gymnasium crew journeys to West Point for the national intercollegiate championships, rated as the favorites to win.

Brilliant Putting Gives Helen Siegel Augusta Victory

By the United Press

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—Helen Siegel's putter today gave her a one-up victory over Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, and the championship of the annual Augusta Invitational Golf Tournament for women.

Miss Siegel, of Philadelphia, was two down when she teed off on the seventeenth. She sank putts of more than 13 feet to win the seventeenth and eighteenth holes and square the match.

Miss Kirby, defending champion, was two up at the turn. Miss Siegel squared the match on the thirteenth, but lost the fifteenth and sixteenth holes.

Science Checks Lymphocytes, Hopes to End Athletes' Jitters

Costly Errors and Fumbles May Be Thing Of Past as Blood Proves Nervousness

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., March 22.—Errorless baseball and football without fumbles by keeping athletes with sub-conscious jitters on the bench is science's approach to the coaches' and spectators' millennium.

It's a doctor's idea, not yet fully developed but with much of the ground work already done.

The basis, says Dr. Edmond J. Farris, of Philadelphia, is a method of determining scientifically whether the halfback or pitcher about to be sent into the game is in such a mental state—though he may not know it—that he's a cinch to pull a Riegels or a Merkle.

Just Count Lymphocytes

Dr. Farris says the question of uncovering the subtle, unsuspected sort of jitters boils down to a simple (to him) business of counting lymphocytes.

Take it easy, now, because lymphocytes are just one of several kinds of things that make up the "white" part of blood.

Dr. Farris told the American Association of Anatomists today about trying out his system on the University of Pennsylvania football team last fall. Before games he took a drop of blood from each player and—using a microscope and some other things—tabulated the jitter signals by counting the lymphocytes.

It wouldn't be normal—watch out for this paradox—for football players, about to give their all for Gravel Switch, to register the general normal which is a count of 25 to 30 (in percentage). What happens, says Dr. Farris, is that the players, even those who seem calmest and feel "just right" emotionally, give counts that look like winter odds on a plow horse.

Had Ample Warning

The highest Dr. Farris got last fall was 75, and this, he says, shows that the player was ready to commit some sort of tactical mayhem, which is what happened.

After about five minutes of play, the count settles down somewhere in the neighborhood of 50. That, says the doctor, is about the level of greatest efficiency for football.

Dr. Farris has an idea that by perfecting a quick sort of round-up condition test—lymphocytes, blood pressure and a few other factors—many a potential athletic blunder could be choked off before it happened.

Pitchers could be yanked before the start of the inning in which they were destined to have a physical or mental blow-up.

Legion Jr. League Looks to Big Season

Chances of another successful American Legion Junior League baseball season were almost assured when two of the strongest posts in last season's play, Fort Stevens No. 32, and Sergenat Jasper, yesterday announced intentions of entering league action this season.

Fort Stevens will launch activity with an organization meeting at its club rooms, 5824 Georgia avenue, tomorrow at 1 p. m. All boys under 17 years of age were asked to attend the meeting to be presided over by Manager Joe Ashi.

Jasper Post, D. C. champion for the last two years, will start practice next week. All 1939 players were requested to contact Manager Daniel M. Goodacre at Woodley 8660 or District 7820.

Bill McDowell, Dorval Winner, Will Meet Furr

Monday's Arena Card Lists 5 Bouts; Furr Fight Set for April 1

Either Wild Bill McDowell or Jackie Dorval, principals in Monday's fight feature at Turner's Arena, will square off with the District's ace welterweight, Phil Furr, in an eight-rounder April 1, it was announced last night by Gabe Menendez, matchmaker.

Furr was signed for a bout with the winner of the McDowell-Dorval affair following an unsuccessful effort to obtain Steve Mamakos as an opponent for the veteran battler.

Ranked eighth in the country following his unanimous triumph over Kenny LaSalle a short time ago, Phil has had numerous lucrative offers, and arena heads considered themselves extremely lucky to get his name on a contract. In the event either McDowell or Dorval is unable to accept the bout, Mayon Padlo, of Philadelphia, will be inserted in the breach.

Manager Bill Daley, McDowell's guide, however, has assured the management his boy will take the fight if he is physically able.

Supporting bouts for Monday's show were completed yesterday when eight-rounders were arranged between Mat Perfetti and Johnny Marcelline, and between Tony Sarallo and Jimmy Fantini. Perfetti has had 48 fights and lost the nod only four times. Walter (Red) Johnson and Vic Finazzo will meet in a six, and two colored scrappers—Sammy Williams and Buddy Holmes—will start action in a four.

Averages 61 M.P.H. For 2⅝-Mile Course For American Crown

Sun Valley, Idaho, March 22.—Dick Durrance, of Sun Valley, outraced some of the world's finest skiers today to win the American Open downhill title in course record time.

Durrance sped down the 2⅝-mile slope of Baldy Mountain in 2 minutes 56.4 seconds, leading favored Friedl Pfeiffer, Toni Matt and 71 other contestants in his wake. He was timed at an average speed of 61 miles an hour.

Second in the event was Walter Prager, coach of the Dartmouth College Ski Club at Hanover, N. H. Prager took the course in easier style, finishing in 2:59.4.

Pfeifer, Sun Valley ski instructor and defending national slalom champion, placed third in 3:08.4. Fourth was Christopher Schwarzen, 3:04.9, and fifth, Matt, the North Conway, N. H., winner of the 1939 downhill title.

First in the women's race was Grace Carter Lindley, of Minneapolis, who ran the same course in 4:10.3. Fifteen-year-old Marilyn Shaw, of Stowe, Vt., only girl to cover the stretch without falling, placed second in 4:11.1, with Greda Paumgarten, New York City, third, in 4:28.2.

Layton Trounces Hall In 53-Inning Game; Rubin Also Scores

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 22.—Johnny Layton, former titleholder from Sedalia, Mo., defeated Allen Hall, Chicago, in the world three-cushion billiard tournament today, 50 to 28, in 50 innings.

The loss, Hall's second in a row, dropped him into fifth place, only a half game ahead of Layton and Welker Cochran, of San Francisco.

Layton was in fine form, having the game's high run of seven, another stretch of five and two runs of four each.

In the other afternoon game Arthur Rubin, of New York, defeated Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, 50 to 32, in 55 innings. The victory gave Rubin undisputed possession of ninth place ahead of Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, and Art Thurnblad, of Kenosha, Wisc. Both Rubin and Denton had high runs of six.

4 Star Milers Vie Tonight At Chicago

Cunningham, Fenske, Venzke, Romani Race; Record Endangered

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 22.—The field has the stuff from which track records are made—so if the track will cooperate there is a good chance that a new chapter in the story of mile racing may be written at the International Amphitheater tomorrow night.

The Bankers' Mile, feature event of the Chicago Relays, will bring together Charles (Chuck) Fenske, miler of the year; Glenn Cunningham, Gene Venzke and Archie San Romani, each of whom has proven his ability. This is a compact field which should reduce the possibility of crowding on the turns and give each runner a fair chance to step out and run.

Second Best Trace

The track is regarded among some experts in this sector as the second fastest in America, the No. 1 spot going to Dartmouth's indoor board layout on which Cunningham ran the fastest of all miles, 4:04.4. The Amphitheater track, one of 11 laps to the mile, is built of springy, kiln-dried spruce, is 2 years old, and if it has the bounce may produce a record comparable to Cunningham's great effort.

The betting is even now that this winter's best time, 4:07.4, will be bettered. Fenske, winner of seven straight mile races, twice attained that mark. San Romani, winner of the race in 1937, is credited with 4:07.2, while the stylish Venzke has a 4:08.2. Fenske, who last Saturday ran the three-quarters mile in 2:59.7, the first time that distance ever had been run under three minutes, undoubtedly is in great shape. If pressed enough, he has the ability to produce a memorable performance.

Rice's Mark Threatened

There is a good chance that Gregory Rice's new indoor record of 8:58.2 for the 2 miles may fall. He'll be racing against such stars as Walter Mehl, Don Lash, Tommy Deckard, each of whom has bettered nine minutes.

Jimmy Herbert's indoor world mark of 1:10.8 for 600 yards appears in danger, with Herbert racing against Charley Beetham, Roy Cochran, whose 48.2 quarter-mile in the Big Ten meet was the fastest ever run indoors; Wes Wallace, of Fordham, and Charley Belcher, the National A. A. U. indoor champion at the distance. Three men in the high jump field—Dave Albritton, Mel Walker and Artie Byrnes—are capable of beating 6 feet, 5 inches, the mark set last year by Albritton and Bob Diefenthaler.

C. Heafner, Hogan Favored At Greensboro

By the Associated Press

Greensboro, N. C., March 22—Clayton Heafner, a boy they all know around here, and Ben Hogan, a comparative stranger, were made co-favorites today on the eve of the third annual $5,00 Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Heafner, a Carolina product only two years out of the caddie ranks, is one of the local prides. Rated a 10-to-1 shot when the betting books were opened for the 72-hole test, he was brought down to 6 to 1 through the combination of an anticipated heavy play on him and the fact that he's likely to win any tournament he starts in if he plays consistently.

Hogan, winner of the North and South championship at Pinehurst yesterday with a record 277, came down from 12 to 6 on the strength of that brilliantly gained triumph. Together, the two stand ahead of the original choices, all still at 8 to 1—Sam Snead, Henry Picard, Dick Metz and Ralph Guldahl, who rejoined the troupe here.

The Starmount Forest Country Club will be used for the first 18 tomorrow and the second round Sunday. The last 36 holes will be played Easter Monday at the Sedgefield Country Club.

Important Soccer Clash Tomorrow

Regal Clothiers' last chance to throw the Washington and Suburban Soccer League into a play-off will occur tomorrow when the team faces Heurich Brewers, first-half winner, at the Monument field No. 1 at 2:30. The only other league clash will bring together Sandy Spring and Marlboro at the same time at Marlboro.

A feature of the battle will be the fact that Jesse Burton, 37-year-old veteran, with 20 years of soccer behind him, will be playing his last game for Heurich. The grizzled left fullback plans to take up coaching next year, leaving his active career behind.

Police-Sponsored Boxing Card in Violation of Law

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., March 22.—Officials of the State boxing and wrestling commission spotted a violation of the law governing boxing matches today but they were uncertain what to do about it.

A provision of the rules and regulations states that "under no conditions are the clubs permitted to give publicity to a card unless the cards have been approved by the commission."

The newspapers here today announced a big boxing show for Richmond's City Stadium on June 27. The commission said it hadn't approved the cards.

Manor Club's Number 18th Offers Test

The woods on the left mean no chance to reach home in the regulation two shots while if a fade or slice puts you in the trees to the right—it's out of bounds. Bordering the righthand side of the fairway, even with the ditch, is a narrow but penalizing trap.

Thus the middle of the fairway is the best bet, for, after a normal drive the green is a good long iron shot in the distance to the extreme right. An added incentive for a good second shot on Manor's eighteenth, in the summer at least, is the usual crowd on the terrace, just beyond the green or the ones in the swimming pool to the right, that always give a hand for a "stony" second shot.

A trap on the righthand side of the green catches a too cautious approach while if the ball slides off the green on any side a bank breaks away. It's just a foot drop, but enough to make the chip shot a ticklish one.

Manor's seventeenth hole runs the eighteenth a close race for the toughest par honor on the course, the 239-yard par three requiring a long, straight tee shot with a driver, the club for most of us. The consistent locker room wail is "I was only two over playing the sixteenth but finished 5-6," or words to that effect.

No. 14 Also Hard

A recent illustration is the pro tourney at Manor last Monday. The coleaders, Andy Gibson and Al Jamison, each went over par on the last two holes after playing the first 16 in one under perfect figures. Treder ranks No. 14 as a good tough hole—it measures 430 yards of flat fairway. The second shot must be on line or a bogey threatens from trouble around the green. The sixth hole on the front nine, another back-breaking par four, was also considered.

However, the others fall a trifle short of the eighteenth, with its double wooded protection, the two big trees as landmarks, one at the dog leg and the other over the green, the well-placed sand traps and the natural layout of the hole.

Al Treder's golf shop is the scene of most of the spring housecleaning, where a few coats of paint, new shelves, counters and stock represent a month of more work by him and Assistant Eddie Stevens.

The course will play as last year, although Greens Chairman Ralph Gibson has temporary tees in use to save the regular ones for better underfooting. The combination of Gibson, Golf Committee Chairman Harry Pitt, President Jack Daily and Entertainment Impresario W. W. Jones have things well in hand.

Branch five in a semifinal in that division.

Treasury Favored

But to return to the girls' struggle, Treasury will be a slight favorite. The team boasts five players from the Rockville Athletic Association, winner of several District A. A. U championships. These players are Margaret Lanier, Marguerite Howard, Josephine Smith, Edith Koiner and Gene Smith.

Stopping Miss Lanier will be a big task for Sherwood. The Rockville girl probably could earn a forward position on an unlimited men's team. She can drop them through from any angle and is the leading scorer in the division. Miss Howard also is a good shot, particularly from a distance. She has made the most spectacular baskets of the tournament. The other member of the forward combination, Josephine Smith, hasn't taken many shots this year, her passing has been a keen factor in the scoring. Treasury's guards also have performed brilliantly in the tournament. Their experience throttled the late scoring of Hyattsville to send Treasury into the finals.

Typewriters Click

The United Typewriters barely survived against Petworth in the second round, but they clicked in good style in their quarter-final against Bell Clothiers. The Typers will have to show everything Monday night to defeat Northeast Boys Club. Cooksey, Stasulli, Embrey and the others are keen courtment. The team lacks only in height. However, it packs a fighting spirit that should carry it far. Northeast downed Interior in a thriller last out.

The Typers have a new scoring threat in Ollie Tipton, former Business High star. The veteran Tipton, generally the backbone of the passing, took to scoring against the Clothiers and performed sensationally.

Programs Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will bring the tournament to a close. Tuesday night, Delaware & Hudson's Coalmen meet FBI in an unlimited semifinal, with the Stewart Brothers Photographers facing J. C. C. in a 145-pound semifinal. The unlimited and 145-pound finals will be played on Wednesday night.

A tournament sponsored, financed and participated in by Bethesda-Chevy Chase High stars will be staged tonight at the suburban school gym, starting at 8 o'clock, with three other strong 135-pound quints in the running.

Stanton Aces, Southeast Boys Club and Chevy Chase will vie for honors with the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Club. Three games will be played, deciding the title in one evenings' play.

Strongest of the contenders will probably be Stanton Aces, represented by there former Tech stars—Marshall Dellinger, Moe Tannebaum and Lowell Keagy—and the three Poston brothess, Johnny, Richard and Rob.

5 D. C. Banks Among 253 U. S. Leaders

$25,000,000 or More Resources Boasted By Local Units

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Five District of Columbia banks are among commercial banks of the country with total resources of more than $25,000,000, according to the first 1940 edition of Rand McNally Bankers Directory. They are:

Riggs National Bank, ranking seventy-seventh with $118,731,000; American Security & Trust Co., 118th with $84,244,000; National Metropolitan Bank, 238th with $30,631,000; Hamilton National Bank, 243rd with $30,084,000; Washington Loan & Trust Co., 253rd with $27,965,000. There are 275 commercial banks in the country with more than $25,000,000 in total resources, a gain of 14 in six months. Total resources of these 275 amount to $43,265,359,000, an increase of $3,092,139,000 in six months.

Bank Votes Dividend

Columbia National Bank's board of directors, at a meeting held this week, declared a dividend of $3 per share, payable as follows: $1.50 per share to stockholders of record March 28, payable April 1; $1.50 per share to stockholders of record June 28, payable July 1.

At a meeting of the board of directors of Security Storage Co. held this week, a dividend of $1.25 per share was declared on the capital stock of the company payable April 10, to stockholders of record at close of business, April 5.

A total of 8,100 Washingtonians are stockholders in District of Columbia-operating chain stores, a survey by Institute of Distribution, Inc., New York reveals. It shows approximately 1,200 chain stores in the District, thus, on the average, nearly seven local stockholders for each chain store here.

From All Walks

The survey is based on figures reported by chain store companies operating nearly one-third of all such stores in the District. Figures submitted were checked and certified by a public accounting firm. Results of the survey show that 8,100 local persons who are chain store stockholders are, for the most part, those in all walks of life. Nearly 92 per cent of these were in this classification. A total of nearly 8 per cent were chain store company officers and employes and less than ½ of 1 per cent, bankers, brokers and investment underwriters.

International Finance Corporation, of Washington, announces it has acquired 61 per cent of the stock of Personal Industrial Bankers, and, as a result, Guy G. Personal Industrial Bankers and subsidiaries own and operate 11 small loan banks in Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts. Mr. Harper, who resides in Arlington, Va., is also president of Arlington Finance and Budget Finance Co., local personal loan companies.

New York, March 22 (AP).—Howard Hughes, flyer and motion picture producer, has made a deal to increase his financial backing of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., it was disclosed today.

Hughes, it was announced, has agreed to purchase at $14 a share 119,154 additional shares of capital stock in the New York-Los Angeles air line to provide $1,668,158 for purchase of five big passenger planes.

The purchase raises Hughes' holdings, owned in the name of the Hughes Tool Co., Houston, Tex., to 282,954 out of 950,000 TWA shares, or about 30 per cent of the total.

Some financial circles said Hughes apparently would have working control of the air line. A payment of $397,000 had been made on the new planes, with delivery scheduled next summer.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

The Racquet Club, like the other men's clubs, is the scene of many exciting rubber bridge games. Players who would not dream of entering a tournament, who know nothing and care as little for duplicate technique, rarely miss a couple of rubbers for stakes each afternoon.

Opening lead: K ◇

An unusual and expensive hand was recently smuggled out of that all masculine retreat and is here presented to shock all such women as choose to review it.

Neither North nor South have much of a bid according to the book, yet they went as high as five spades and when doubled had the temerity to redouble. Any sensible player with East's cards would be outraged. But five spades was made with ease, in spite of East's three aces and a king. Declarer established his hearts by ruffing. Such are the fortunes of distribution.

The best East can do with all his honors is to try for five clubs. With correct defense, he won't make it, but if he can persuade South to make a slip and lead a spade after the ace is gone, when he gets in on either the club ace or the diamond queen, a ruff and a heart discard will win the hand.

Of the play at five spades redoubled, our anonymous contributor says: "The opening lead was the diamond king, followed by the club seven. This was taken by South's ace, and a small spade brought down both king and ace. East and West were "through for the day."

Listen! with Slocum

Swing musicians fascinate this simple little mind of mine.

I sit around WJSV's music room listening to Paul Kain's artists, and my dancing friends tell me they are true artists, talking that musical patois which is perfectly comprehensible to them but is so much like double talk to this "icky."

There is one, however, who is a source of constant comfort. He, like the author of these deathless lines, is a frustrated ballplayer. His name, James Fitzpatrick; his instrument, the tenor saxophone, or as we musicans say, the tenor sax; and his ambition in life, to play first base for the Boston Red Sox.

He can quote you the batting averages of every professional playing for the Red Sox and most of the semi-pros with the Boston Bees.

I did find out he started the sax 14 years ago; played for Leo Reisman the year the A's sold Foxx to Boston; was out on the West Coast with Kain the year young Freddie Hutchinson was burning up the Pacific Coast League; was in Detroit with Kain when Hank Greenberg broke his wrist; in New York the year DiMaggio started his big league career; and came to Washington that year when Dutch Leonard beat Bobby Fellers, 1-0, in 13 innings.

He plays much of the afternoon, most of the night and is up at 7 a. m. to toss a baseball around. He realizes he may easily break a finger playing ball and thereby lose a career, but after all, what's eating compared to baseball.

Another Nero Wolfe Story

BY REX STOUT

OVER MY DEAD BODY

Young Donald Barrett, who had obtained jobs at Milton's fencing studio for Neya Tormic and Carla Lovchen and who had been in the building when Percy Ludlow was murdered, was Nero Wolfe's latest visitor. He was caught off guard when Wolfe quietly asked Barrett where he had hidden Mme. Zorka, but he recovered quickly and played dumb. Then Wolfe bullied him into admitting that Zorka had phoned him she had seen Neya place the murder weapon, a col de mort, in Archie Goodwin's overcoat after Ludlow was murdered. Placed on the defensive, Barrett became unpleasant, which annoyed Archie, Wolfe's confidential secretary.

Chapter 18

"I . . . I didn't mean——" said Barrett.

"Have you?" demanded Archie.

"No."

"Are you sorry you said it?"

"Yes."

"Don't say it to oblige me. I'd rather you refused to say it. You are sorry?"

"Yes."

"Marshmallows," I muttered, and went back to my chair.

Wolfe said, "You'll have to learn to control that, Archie. Physical duress, unless carried to an intolerable extreme, is a miserable weapon." He wiggled a finger at Barrett. "Not that I object to duress when it's necessary, as it is now. It doesn't matter what it was that moved Mme. Zorka to tell you about her phone call to me; the fact is that she did so; nor does it matter what form of persuasion you used on her. It's obvious that you hid her, or at least you know where she is, since it was you who got her to pack up and go——"

Barrett started off. I circled around him on the lope to head him off at the door. Wolfe snapped at his back:

"Come back here! Unless you want everyone sniffing on the trail of Bosnian forest concessions and Yugoslav credits——"

I admit that Wolfe's form of duress was more effective than mine. Mine had made him eat a bite of crow, but Wolfe's apparently drained him of his blood. Three steps from the door he stopped and stiffened, and his cheeks went pasty. He turned slowly then, to face Wolfe. I went back to my chair and sat and enjoyed looking at him.

He wet his lips with his tongue, twice. Then he moved, clear to the corner of Wolfe's desk, and squeaked down at him: "What are you talking about? Do you know what you're talking about?"

"And what about it?"

Wolfe shook his head. "I furnish no details, Mr. Barrett. You know them better than I do. The precise amount of credits held by your firm, for instance, and the extent of its relations with the Donevitch gang. I don't need to supply details in order to blackmail you, which is all I'm after. I merely want to see Mme. Zorka, and I'm sure you'll help me on that rather than have this Yugoslav foray exposed to a lot of disconcerting curiosity."

Barrett, motionless and silent, gazed at him. Southwest of his ear, above the edge of his starched white collar, I could see the tendons on his neck standing out. Finally he squeaked again:

"Who are you working for?"

"For Miss Tormic."

"I asked you, who are you working for? Rome?"

"I am working on a murder case. My client is Neya Tormic. My only interest—"

"OH, SKIP IT. Do you think I'm a boob?" The international financier put the tips of eight fingers on the desk and gave them some weight. "Look here. I understand perfectly that no matter who you're working for, you wouldn't be tipping me off just for your health. If you'll put this damn pet gorilla of yours on a leash, I'm quite willing to discuss details and terms—subject of course to consultation with my associates—"

"Pfui." Wolfe was disgusted. "I might have known it would make you ugly. Now how the devil am I going to convince you that my only concern is the welfare of my client?"

"I don't know. If I were you I wouldn't try." Barrett's voice had lost its squeak and assumed a tone that might have sold me on the idea he was really tough if I hadn't already caught a glimpse of the yellow. "I don't know how far you're in, but I presume you know what you're doing. If you do, I don't need to tell you that it's too dangerous a game for anybody to try any private hijacking."

"I said blackmail."

"All right, blackmail. Who are you selling out and what's your price?"

I let it pass. If he was going to wholesale his insults, it would save trouble to wait till he was finished and then collect in a lump sum.

Wolfe leaned back and sighed. "Will you sit down, sir?"

"I'm all right standing."

"Then please back up. I'm not comfortable with my head tilted. Now listen. Get it out of your head that I represent any interest, either friendly or hostile to you, in your Balkan enterprise. I don't. Then, you wonder, how did I learn of it? What's the difference? I did. Next you must somehow manage to believe that I do not want a slice of the loot. Incredible and even immoral as that must seem to a man of your instinct and training, I don't. I want just one thing. I want you to conduct Mr. Goodwin to Mme. Zorka, wherever you have put her, and he will bring her here. That's all. Unless you do that, I shall send information at once, to three different quarters, of your firm's projected raid on the property of the people of Yugoslavia. You know better than I do the sort of hullabaloo that would start. Don't complicate matters by assuming for me a cupidity and corruption beyond the limits I have set for myself. You're suffering from an occupational disease. When an international financier is confronted by a holdup man with a gun, he automatically hands over not only his money and jewelry but also his shirt and pants, because it doesn't occur to him that a robber might draw the line somewhere. I beg you, understand that I want Mme. Zorka and nothing else. Beyond that I do not and shall not represent any threat to you—unless, of course, it should turn out that it was you who murdered Percy Ludlow."

WOLFE shifted his eyes to me. "Archie, I'm afraid there's no help for it. Mr. Barrett will take you to Madame Zorka. You will bring her here."

"I doubt it. She can't have got far. Take the roadster and go after her. Hang onto Mr. Barrett."

"That's the part I don't like, hanging onto Barrett."

"I know. You'll have to put up with it. It may be only——" He switched to Barrett. "Where is she? How far away?"

The financier was standing there trying to concentrate, with his gaze fastened to Wolfe, and his lips working. He made them function: "Damn you, if you let this out——"

Wolfe said curtly, "I've told you what I want, and that's all I want. Where is she?"

"She's—I think—not far away."

"In the city?"

"I think so."

"Good. Don't try any tricks with Mr. Goodwin. They make him lose his temper."

"I'm coming back with them. I want to talk——"

"No. Not tonight. Tomorrow perhaps. Don't let him in, Archie."

"Okay." I was on my feet. "For God's sake, let's step on it, or my bed will think I'm having an affair with the couch. I only wish I was."

He didn't like going, leaving Wolfe there within three feet of a telephone and all that intimate knowledge of Bosnian forests buzzing in his head, but I eased him into the hall and on out into the November night.

I had rather expected to find a Minerva town car waiting at the curb, considering his category, but there wasn't anything there at all, and we had to hoof it to Eighth avenue before we could ambush a taxi at that ungodly hour. We piled in, me last, and told the driver Times Square.

As we jolted off I surveyed him disapprovingly. "Don't tell me you left her standing on the sidewalk."

Disregarding that, he twisted himself on the cushion to face me in a confidential manner. "See here, Goodwin," he demanded, "you've got to help me. I'm in a bad hole. It wouldn't have done any good to try to persuade Wolfe that I don't know where Zorka is, because he was convinced that I do. But the fact is, I don't know."

"That's too bad."

"Yes. I'm in one hell of a fix. If you go back and say I told you I couldn't take you to her because I don't know where she is, he'll do what he threatened to do."

"He sure will. So I won't go back and say that."

"No, that wouldn't do. If I couldn't persuade him I don't know, I can't expect you to. But we could work it this way. We can drop in somewhere and have a couple of drinks. Then, say in half an hour or so, go back and tell him I took you to an address—pick out any likely address—and we went in expecting to find Zorka and she wasn't there. You can describe how astonished and upset I was—you know, make it vivid."

"Sure, I'm good at that. But you haven't——"

"Wait a minute." The taxi swerved into Forty-second street, and he lurched against me and got straight again. "I know you'll get the devil for going back without Zorka, but you can't help that anyway, because I don't know where she is. I wouldn't expect you to help me out on this just for the hell of it. Why should you? You know? How about $50?"

I HAVE NEVER seen a worse case of briber's itch.

I made a scornful sound. "Now, brother! Fifty lousy bucks with a big deal in international finance trembling in the balance? A century at least."

The driver called back. "Which corner?"

Barrett told him to stop at the curb and leave his meter on. Then he stretched out a leg to get into his trouser pocket, and extracted a modest roll. "I don't know if I happen to have that much with me." He peered and counted in the dim light. Glancing through the window, I saw an old woman in a shawl headed for us with a box of chewing gum. I wouldn't even have to leave the cab.

"I've got it," Barrett said.

"Good. Gimme, please. I can concentrate on the details better with the jack in my jeans."

He handed it over. Without bothering to count it, I shoved it through the window at the old woman and told her, "Here, grandma, two packets and keep the change." She passed them in, took the currency and gave it a look, gave me a swift startled glance from bleary old eyes and shuffled off double-quick. I offered a packet of gum to Barrett and said, "Here, one apiece."

Instead of taking it he sputtered. "You goddam lunatic!"

I shook my head. "Nope, wrong again. You sure do make a lot of mistakes, mister. That little gesture I just made, that wasn't original—I first had the idea upstate in a cow barn and the beneficiary was a guy in overalls with a pitchfork." I stuck a piece of gum in my mouth. "Maybe this will keep me awake. That's enough horseplay, and, besides, Mr. Wolfe is waiting. Lead me to Zorka."

"Why, you dirty cheap——"

"Oh, can it! What's the address?"

"I don't know. I don't know where she is."

"Okay." I leaned forward to the driver. "Go to Forty-eighth street, east of Lexington."

He nodded and got in gear.

Barrett demanded, "What are you going to do? What are you going to Milton's for?"

"I left my car there. I'm going to get it and drive it home and tell Mr. Wolfe the sad news, and then, I suppose, help him until dawn with phone calls, and so on. He never puts off till tomorrow what I can do today."

"Do you mean to say that after taking my money and giving it to that hag——"

"I mean to say exactly this. Either you quit stalling and squirming and take me to Zorka, or I go back to Nero Wolfe and watch him throw the switch. I ought to be asleep right now. You claim you don't know where Zorka is. My employer claims you do. I have no opinion. My mind is open, but I follow instructions blindly. Take me to Zorka or pop goes the weasel."

3 Schoolboys Face Hearing On Fraternity

Joined Unapproved Secret Society, Say Education Officials

Washington public school officials, while being urged to ban high school fraternities and sororities on the ground that they are undemocratic, were yesterday planning a hearing for three youths in difficulties for joining unapproved fraternities.

The boys joined a secret, and unapproved, fraternity when they were promoted from Alice Deal Junior High School to Woodrow Wilson High School. They didn't mention their joining to the school principal until later—when, apparently, it was too late.

Lose Honors

They learned that resigning from the unapproved organizations was not enough. The boys, as soon as they admitted their memberships, lost such positions of honor as places on the student council and the school football team. School Board rules say that members of unapproved fraternities cannot hold cadet commissions, elective or appointive positions on school publications and other school activity posts. Rules also bind students to report their affiliations upon enrollment.

The three boys involved at Woodrow Wilson will be heard April 2, it was learned yesterday. Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and a committee of high school principals set the date after discussing the whole situation.

Colman Assails Them

Meanwhile the whole question of fraternities in the public high schools has been opened by the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations. Yesterday L. H. Colman, council president, reaffirmed the position taken by the organization at its meeting Thursday night. The council recommended that fraternities be banned because they do not "belong in a democratic school system."

"The general sentiment in this community is against the fraternities," Colman added yesterday, "because of the discrimination caused among students and embarassments to students and faculties. The sentiment here is strongly opposed to them."

Comdr. Durgin Will Take Over Naval Air Station

DURGIN

Comdr. Ginder, who has headed the local base since last June, will be assigned duty at Camden, N. J., in charge of fitting out the new seaplane tender Curtiss, which he will command when it is completed.

Comdr. Durgin, now commanding officer of the utility wing of the fleet base force, is a native of Palmyra, N. J. He entered the Naval Academy in 1912 and during the World War served with the destroyer force at Queenstown, Ireland. He became a flier in 1920.

Dies Aid Charges 'New Deal' Delays Dozenberg Action

By International News Service

Charges that six consecutive postponements of the sentencing of Nicholas Dozenberg, New York Communist, were arranged by the "New Deal" to prevent Dozenberg from testifying before the Dies Committee were made yesterday by Representative Thomas (Democrat), of New Jersey, committee member.

Department of Justice officials refused to comment on the charges of Thomas, who declared:

"Dozenberg is a key witness in one of the most startling exposes ever to come to the attention of the committee. It is imperative that he be given over to the committee. Any further delay will unnecessarily postpone the American people being apprised of highly important evidence, and will also have the appearance of one more case of sabotage of the Dies Committee by a New Deal agency, the Department of Justice."

Thomas pointed out that until Dozenberg, who pleaded guilty to violation of the passport laws, is sentenced, he is immune from summons before the committee.

New Play Fund Setup Urged for D. C.

Control by Barrett Proposed; Auditor Expected to Object

A new set-up for handling funds collected at the city's major recreation centers from admission fees, club dues and donations, was recommended yesterday to the Board of Commissioners by the District Recreation Board.

The proposal will be studied by District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, who is expected to oppose it because his office—as at present—would have no jurisdiction over collection or disbursement of the funds.

All funds would be deposited in central trust funds under the control of Lewis R. Barrett, director of the Community Center and Playground Department, and all expenditures from such funds would be made with his approval.

The plan also provides for the appointment of a treasurer of the playground department, who would be recommended by the director. An annual report would be submitted to the Board of Education and to the Board of Commissioners.

The recreation board reiterated its opposition to the use of school buildings for money-raising purposes. The school, pupils, alumni or parent-teacher groups, however, may use the buildings to raise funds for school purposes.

Present at the meeting yesterday were Commissioners David McCoach, jr., and George E. Allen, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, C. Melvin Sharpe and John H. Wilson.

Macfaddento Run For the Senate

Miami, Fla., March 22 (AP).—Bernarr Macfadden, magazine publisher and physical culturist, announced tonight he would seek the United States Senate seat now held by Charles O. Andrews (Democrat), of Florida, in the Democratic primary May 7.

In making the announcement, Macfadden said "I am definitely against every form of socialism, and much of the New Deal is just socialism under a new name."

Cromwell Said To Be in Capital Seeing Edison

Predictions that James H. R. Cromwell, Minister to Canada, would resign following Secretary Hull's rebuke for the minister's recent pro-Ally speech at Toronto, had not materialized last night, as officials expected a visit from the envoy.

There were reports that Cromwell was in the city last night to confer with Secretary of the Navy Edison regarding New Jersey political matters, and that he planned to call today on President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. The young diplomat is generally expected to run for the Democratic nomination for the Senate in New Jersey.

Secretary Hull indicated at his press conference that he considered his reprimand of the minister a closed incident, unless the breach of standing instructions against uneutral activities was repeated.

Despite a New York report that Cromwell's speech had been submitted to President Roosevelt in advance, the White House said it had no knowledge of the contents of the address before its delivery.

Mrs. DuBose, Admiral's Wife, Dies; Rites Today

Mrs. Elizabeth Jasper DuBose, 62, wife of Rear Admiral William G. DuBose, Construction Corps, U. S. N., died yesterday at her home, 2122 California street northwest.

Mrs. DuBose was born in Charles Town, W. Va., the daughter of a Naval officer, Capt. Robert Jasper, and Elizabeth Selden Jasper. She had lived in many sections of the United States. For the past 25 years she had been a resident of Washington.

Surviving, besides her husband, is a son, William Jasper DuBose, of Washington, and three grandchildren.

The funeral will be at 11 a. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

7,500 to Get $212,000 From Park Savings

Checks Will Be Ready May 1 for Depositors Of Closed Bank

Seven thousand five hundred depositors of the closed Park Savings Bank will share in the distribution of $212,000, John F. Moran, receiver, announced last night.

Participants in the special dividend represent only one-third of the total number of persons with accounts in the Park Savings at the time of its closing on March 6, 1933. Recipients of the dividend are depositors who had money in the bank when its charter expired August 30, 1929, and who still maintained accounts when the bank closed.

The dividends for the 7,500 depositors will amount to 26.20 per cent of the lowest balance held by the depositor between 1929 and 1933. Checks will be ready about May 1, according to Moran.

Three dividends already have been distributed to depositors, totaling 36.5 per cent of the total deposits. With the new dividend, one-third of the depositors will get back altogether 62.7 per cent of their money, and will share in the final distribution of dividends later in the year.

The special dividend will be paid out of the $350,000 collected from directors of the bank following suit instigated by Moran. The $350,000 represents a settlement with the directors of the bank, and the $212,000 is what is left for the depositors after the District Court approved expenses for the suit.

Unions Transfer Truck Drivers

The transfer of concrete-mixer truck drivers from the operating engineers to the teamsters' union has begun, union officials announced yesterday. Both organizations are A. F. of L. affiliates.

About 175 men are affected. The action climaxes the jurisdictional dispute last fall, when the teamsters struck in protest against engineers driving concrete-mixer trucks. A board of referees held that the work rightfully belonged to members of the teamsters' organization.

Now or Never to Beat New Deal, Says Gannett

St. Paul, March 22 (AP).—Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., newspaper publisher, brought his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination into Minnesota today with a prediction that the New Deal will be beaten this year—or never.

The Republican nomination is still wide open, he declared. He predicted that 600 or more delegates to the national convention at Philadelphia would be uninstructed.

Quakers Seek Army Exemption If U. S. Enters War

Philadelphia, March 22 (AP).—Traditionally peace-loving Quakers, expressing "sorrow and dismay" because of the European war, sought today to insure younger members of their sect exemption from conscription in the event this country becomes involved.

The Philadelphia yearly meeting of Friends, representative assembly of Quaker groups in Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, approved registration of Friends between 18 and 35 "to record their convictions before the arrival of times of abnormal distress consequent upon the declaration of war."

More D. C. Funds Asked by Labor

Protests against the brevity of hearings held by the House subcommittee on District appropriations were made yesterday by labor spokesmen in a letter to the subcommittee.

The letter set forth the needs for increasing unemployment relief to $4,000,000 and asked for a larger public health appropriation.

It was signed by Jack Mink, business agent of the Cafeteria Workers Union; John Anderson, business agent of the United Construction Workers; Grace Taylor, business agent of the United Office and Professional Workers; Jack Zacker, business agent of the United Shoe Workers, and Calvin Cousins, of the Laundry Workers Union. All are members of the C. I. O.
